MRS. EVANS, A BRITON, SLAIN FROM AMBUSH IN MEXICO

Widow of Former President of Bank of London in Mexico Killed Near Ranch She Had Fought For.

ROMANTIC CAREER EMBROILED NATIONS

British Charge Had Been Forced to Leave Mexico Because of His Spirited Defense of Her.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Rosalie Evans, formerly of Brownslee, Tex., and a widow of a former president of the Bank of London in Mexico, an Englishman, was shot dead in the vicinity of Texmelucan, State of Puebla, Saturday evening when on the road to her hacienda. The slayers are unknown but are believed to be agrarians who have been spurred on by anti-foreign agitators in the region.

Mrs. Evans was shot through the left side and, falling from the buggy in which she was driving, her hair caught in the wheels and the body was dragged some distance. Her face was badly mutilated.

John Strauss, a German, manager of Mrs. Evans' hacienda, was with her at the time of the attack. He was seriously wounded by the assailants who escaped with a payroll of 2000 pesos which he was carrying.

Mrs. Evans' body was recovered by a Spanish subject, Luciano Rodriguez, and taken to Texmelucan where Strauss is being cared for. Federal forces were immediately dispatched in pursuit of the slayers.

George Camp, a Texan, formerly of the Boston Institute of Technology, who abandoned his contract from the business in Mexico City several months ago for the purpose of assisting Mrs. Evans on her ranch, is safe, but his whereabouts is unknown.

Mrs. Evans' six-year fight to hold her hacienda, consisting of about 436 acres and called San Pedro Coxtocan, has been followed with intense interest in diplomatic circles and in both the British and American colonies.

The question figures in the pre-recognition conferences last summer when the American delegates' unofficial efforts succeeded in bringing about a meeting between Mrs. Evans and President Obregon. Several months ago, when word reached the capital that the hacienda was surrounded by armed agrarians, volunteers from the British colony visited Puebla to help protect the owner.

She personally waged a fearless fight, several times driving invaders off her land at pistol point. She insisted on living in the ruined ranch house, which had been burned, and besides her employes, was protected by Camp, the Texan.

Official admission that the Evans case had been taken over by the American embassy came several weeks after Charge Cummins' departure, when Ambassador Warren said Mrs. Evans had laid the entire question before him. The Mexican Government's stand has always been that Mrs. Evans was making obstinate and unjustifiable resistance to its plans for the division of her estate under the governmental agrarian program, with proper remuneration to her.

British Government Leaves Affair in Hands of American Embassy.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The British Government is leaving surrounding the killing of Mrs. Rosalie Evans entirely in the hands of the American embassy in Mexico City, which has been handling British affairs there since the withdrawal of Herbert C. Cummins as charge des archives.

Recommendations will be made from London as to the course to pursue as soon as full details have been received.

Mrs. Evans' Case Caused Recall of British Representative.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The death in Mexico of Mrs. Rosalie Evans recalled here the long fight she waged with the Mexican authorities over land questions, which culminated in the departure from Mexico City of Herbert C. Cummins, the British charge, and the taking over of the Embassy archives by the American Ambassador.

Temperature of 94 at 2 P. M., Highest Recorded This Summer.

The temperature at 2 p. m. today was 94, the highest this summer. Although it surpassed the season's previous record of 93.2 establishe dat 3 p. m. yesterday, it was attended by far less discomfort than yesterday, because of lower humidity. Today the humidity ranged from 79 per cent at 7 a. m. down to 43 at noon. Yesterday the reading was 80 per cent at 7 a. m., 62 per cent at noon and 64 at 7 a. m.

On two other occasions this summer—July 21 and July 29—the temperature has reached the 93 mark, but discomfort was far less marked because the humidity was 10 to 15 per cent lower. At the Weather Bureau it was stated that ordinarily the moisture in the air does not exceed 30 to 40 per cent when the temperature is 90 or above.

200 CHILDREN MAY LOSE EYES

Fourth of July Casualty List Shows Firecracker Damage.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The Fourth of July accident list this year includes at least 200 children who probably will lose the sight of one or both eyes, the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness announces.

The greatest damage was caused by firecrackers, the eyes of 82 children having been injured by premature explosions and similar accidents. Firearms injured the eyes of 24 boys and toy cannon those of seven. Torpedoes injured nine and roman candles and skyrockets 12.

RUSSIA TO PAY BRITAIN

Economic and Financial Agreement Reported Concluded

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Anglo-Russian conference here was reported this afternoon to have concluded an important economic and financial agreement. Official confirmation of the report was not obtainable.

It is understood that the soviet government has agreed to pay Great Britain 28,000,000 pounds (normally $140,000,000) of the Russian debt, which it was unofficially estimated was 160,000,000 pounds.

FIRE AT REINHARDT'S CASTLE

Rare Pieces of Furniture Belonging to Theatrical Producer Destroyed.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Aug. 4.—Fire, said to be of suspicious origin, last night seriously damaged the castle near Salsburg belonging to Max Reinhardt, German theatrical producer. The blaze was discovered several hours after Reinhardt and Morris Gest, American theatrical producer had departed for Venice.

The castle was greatly damaged and many rare pieces of furniture and other treasures were lost.

POLLS TO OPEN AT 6 A. M. TOMORROW, CLOSE AT 7 P. M.

Total Vote of 600,000 in the State at Primary Forecast, With About 125,000 in St. Louis.

CANDIDATES OF FOUR PARTIES TO BE CHOSEN

Police and Election Boards Here to Co-Operate in Precautions Against Possible Fraud.

Tomorrow is Primary day in St. Louis and throughout Missouri. In the 618 precincts in St. Louis and the 3360 other precincts of the State the polls will be opened at 6 a. m. and closed at 7 p. m. It has been estimated that upward of 600,000 votes will be cast in the State, of which approximately 125,000 are expected in St. Louis, or about one-fifth of the total.

In this primary, which is a nominating election, voters throughout the State will select candidates upon the Republican, Democratic, Socialist and Socialist-Labor tickets for Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of State, State Auditor, State Treasurer, Attorney General, one Judge of the Supreme Court, members of Congress from Missouri, members of the State Senate from the odd-numbered districts and members of the lower House of the State Legislature.

Local Offices at Issue.

In St. Louis local offices for which nominees will be selected are: Sheriff, four Circuit Judgeships for full terms and one for an unexpired term, one Judge of St. Louis Court of Appeals, one Judgeship in the Court of Criminal Correction, Circuit Attorney, Public Administrator, Coroner, City Treasurer, and member of the Board of Aldermen from the Sixteenth ward for an unexpired term.

The four party ballots in St. Louis bear a total of 413 names, of which 181 are Republicans, 162 Democrats, 65 Socialists and 11 Socialist-Laborites.

For this election St. Louis has a total registration of 259,789, which is slightly larger than for the primary and election in 1922.

The Board of Election Commissioners has estimated that approximately 90,000 Republicans will vote here tomorrow and 35,000 Democrats.

Precautions Against Fraud.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken here to assure a clean election, cooperation to that end having been established between the Boards of Election and Police Commissioners, Circuit Attorney Sidener and Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer. Deputy Election Commissioners have been designated for precincts in the downtown wards where fraud sometimes has occurred in the past and men from the Election Board's office have been assigned to certain wards to act in the nature of inspectors, roving from precinct to precinct to watch for trouble.

The Police Department for tomorrow will switch all patrolmen into precincts where they do not ordinarily work, to the end that a strict enforcement of election regulations may be had.

The recent police canvass of the registration rolls disclosed 640 names of persons registered who could not be found at the addresses given. In order to vote tomorrow these persons will have to furnish householders' affidavits proving their place of residence.

How to Call Election Board.

Persons desiring tomorrow to reach the Board of Election Commissioners by telephone may call Main 5580, the City Hall Exchange, and ask for Stations 34, 35, 56 or 92, or they may call Central 2525, 2526 or any number in the series to and including Central 2531.

As the election is a nominating election, each person may vote for the candidates of only one party, in which the primary differs from a general election.

A person desiring, for instance, to express a preference between candidates upon the Republican ballot, will call for a Republican ballot and proceed to scratch the names of all candidates against whom he desires to vote, so that the only names remaining on the ballot without lines through them, are the names of the persons he desires to support. For instance, three candidates seek the Republican nomination for Governor. To vote for any one of them the voter will draw lines through names of the other two. Should more than one name be left unscratched as to any office, the ballot will not be counted for that office.

May Change Party Allegiance.

KIEL THINKS HE HAS IT ON LORD MAYOR OF LONDON

Not as Much Gold Lace Here, but Term Lasts Longer, He Finds on Trip Abroad.

PRAISES ENGLISH TRAFFIC SYSTEM

Predicts Surface Cars Will Disappear in Time in Big Cities — Saw Only One Tipsy Person.

Being Mayor of St. Louis is a better job than being Lord Mayor of London. So Mayor Kiel, just back from his visit to England, near the end of his third four-year term, is convinced.

The Lord Mayor of London has gold lace, and a footman, and a coach and four, though he uses an automobile for most purposes. But—let Mayor Kiel tell it:

"The Lord Mayor serves only one year. Not only in London, but in Liverpool, where the Mayor seems to have fully as much pomp and velvet as in London. As I understand it, the Mayor is elected by the Council from its own membership, and in one year he's out. Not at all as it is here.

"I met Lord Mayor Newton of London, and he invited me to sit on the bench with him—it seems he has some of the duties of a magistrate—but I didn't have time to accept the invitation."

Trip Did Not Change Mayor.

Six days of London, and a week on an English ship in either direction, did not change the Mayor of St. Louis much. He does not drink tea for breakfast, or say "right-o," or "eh, what," or "cue" for "Thank you," or "sorry" for "Beg your pardon." Nor did he bring home an English suit of clothes, or even a London hat. Mrs. Kiel, who stayed behind to travel on the continent, may do some buying, he remarked.

A six-day visitor to London gets mostly outdoor and surface impressions, but it happened that the surface things were what Mayor Kiel most wished to see. Particularly transportation and traffic.

"I was amazed to see how many people the busses carry," he remarked, "and how many busses can run in their streets, not wider than ours, without congesting traffic. That is because they have no surface street car tracks. Of course, the underground lines carry much of the long-haul business. The underground lines are a network, as much so as our surface lines here. Some of them are a long way down, but they have big elevators and escalators to take the people up and down.

Says Trolleys Will Disappear.

"What I saw of London traffic convinced me that surface street car tracks will disappear some time, in our large cities. Their problem is not the same as ours in all ways. They do not have to land as many people in any one area as our car lines do. The downtown district is spread out, with buildings only five and six stories high."

The parks of London impressed the Mayor, but he commented that the people have to pay for the use of outdoor recreation facilities—a penny or a ha'penny even for a seat on a bench. The smaller parks he compared to Lafayette Park, near which he lives, but remarked that most of them are surrounded with iron fences.

Except for his meeting with the Lord Mayor, he saw nothing of English politics, and he noticed that Englishmen seldom asked questions about the pending presidential election here. They are more likely, he found, to comment on the American prohibition laws.

"They don't understand why we should have such restrictions," the Mayor said. "And I must say I agree with them. I saw in England only one tipsy person, a woman, in Liverpool."

The Mayor's tour to London was made with the Advertising Club of St. Louis, and he attended the opening exercises of the admen's convention at the Wembley Exposition. The Prince of Wales won his admiration, both as a convention speaker and a "mixer." The Mayor did not meet King George.

From London the Mayor and Mrs. Kiel went with a party to Paris, and after three days there, the Mayor and two of the St. Louis excursionists went by rail and motor through the occupied territory of the Rhineland, visiting Mainz and Wiesbaden, and returning to Paris through the now French city of Strasbourg.

Few Automobiles Seen.

"You don't see automobiles when you get outside the cities," the Mayor commented. "In good-sized towns, such as in this country would have a town square or a

New Navy Catapault Launches Airplane By Powder Charge

Device Is Faster Than Former One Using Compressed Air; Tests Are Successful.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The navy has made successful tests recently with a new type of catapult for launching airplanes from surface vessels, using a charge of powder, instead of compressed air, to give the plane its initial start in flight.

The catapult gun contains a piston which is connected through a series of multiple pulleys to a small wheeled car. The plane is placed on this car, which runs along a track about 50 feet long. When the powder charge is fired in the gun, the piston, acting in conjunction with the pulleys, causes the plane to move forward at 60 miles an hour, at which speed it is projected into the air. The car is arrested at the end of the track, while the plane hops off.

STREET TRAFFIC VIBRATIONS SHAKE LONDON BUILDINGS

Delicately Adjusted Device With Light and Mirror Detects Slight Movements.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Right down to its clay foundation 40 feet below the surface, London is in a constant state of vibration caused by underground railways and increased street traffic, according to Prof. J. A. Fleming, professor of electrical engineering in the University of London. He says the continual vibration will in time weaken the structure of buildings.

Accurate measurements of sound are taken by Prof. Fleming by reflecting light from the surface of a delicately suspended concave mirror on to a screen. When a sound wave strikes this mirror its vibration strength is shown by movements backwards and forwards of the ray of light on the screen.

"In the early morning," he said, "and late evenings I have noticed that the vibration decreases with the lessening of the traffic. This University Building and every other one in London is gently rocking all day long."

BEER IN GERMANY AGAIN CONTAINS PRE-WAR "KICK"

Tipplers Rejoice When Government Restriction Is "Scrapped;" Six Per Cent Is Average.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—Beer is to be beer again in Germany. After years of delay the German law now permits beer to return to its old strength of 6 per cent or more alcohol and old tipplers have been rejoicing over the disappearance of the near beers which at one time during the war contained only one-half of one per cent of alcohol and lacked all the kick which made beer cellars the great joy of Munich, Wuerttemberg and other German towns.

The restrictions, instituted early in the war to protect the grain supply, were scrapped recently by Government order, and brewers may now go the limit.

BELGIUM SILENT FOR MINUTE ON INVASION ANNIVERSARY

Then Bells Ring in Every Belfry Recalling the Country's Liberation.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 4.—On this, the tenth anniversary of the invasion of Belgium in the World War, at 9:30 o'clock this morning, the hour at which, on Aug. 4, 1914, the first German troops crossed the Belgian frontier sirens on the Belgian factories and the whistles of locomotives and steamships gave the signal for a minute's silence.

Many of the inhabitants were in tears when after this brief interval the bells rang out from every belfry, recalling Belgium's liberation after her suffering.

7 MEN INDICTED FOR FRAUD IN SALE OF MOROSCO STOCK

Federal Grand Jury in New York Names Men Who Formed a Holding Company.

OLIVER MOROSCO $5,000,000 LOSER

Defendants Alleged to Have Stripped Theatrical and Movie Producer of All His Property.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—An indictment charging use of the mails to defraud was returned today by the Federal grand jury against seven men accused of having defrauded the investment public of more than $2,500,000 through the sale of stock of the Morosco Holding Company, a Delaware corporation organized to exploit the theatrical and motion picture interests of Oliver Morosco.

Those indicted are George R. Bentel, vice-president and general manager of the holding company; Benjamin Levin, organizer of the Morosco Sales Corporation; George H. Pierce, known also as G. Harris Pierce, sales manager; George G. Hanson, an associate of Leven; Albert Dew Blum, sales manager; William C. Amos, a former Assemblyman, who was said to be the star salesman, and George Derr, sales manager.

Morosco Lost $5,000,000.

According to Assistant United States Attorney McCoy, who presented the matter to the grand jury, Morosco himself was a victim of the alleged fraudulent activities of the men indicted who, he said, have stripped him of all his properties, valued at about $5,000,000.

Morosco, according to McCoy, turned over all his property valued at $5,000,000 to the holding company and received in return the entire issue of stock of the company. There was no treasury stock. Morosco properties included leaseholds on theaters in this city and in California and all his rights to theatrical productions. He also turned over his interest in a tract of more than 100 acres in Los Angeles known as "Moroscotown." It was Morosco's intention to make "Moroscotown" a unique pleasure city, its principal features consisting of villages representing places in England, France, Germany and other continental countries. The deal for the development of "Moroscotown" fell through because Morsco failed to obtain title. He had, however, a contract to purchase, McCoy said.

"Morosco at that time had been divorced from his first wife, who obtained liens against his property for over $300,000," McCoy said. "He made a settlement of $350,000 on her and to secure the payment of this money she took an assignment on his lease of the Morosco Theater in this city and on the Morosco Theater in Los Angeles.

"Benjamin Leven came on from Chicago to New York and had Mr. Morosco organize the Morosco Holding Co., Inc. Mr. Morosco was made president and William J. Flynn, who was then chief of the Department of Justice, and L. Lawrence Weber, prominent theatrical producer, were, among others, made directors. Franklin Underwood, a production manager, was made treasurer.

"In the fall of 1921 George R. Bentel, who was associated with Mr. Morosco in the Morosco Production Co., a California motion picture concern, came East, got in touch with Leven, who was in charge of the sales organization of the Morosco Holding Co., Inc., and got up all the propaganda, prospectus and literature used in the sale of the stock.

Morosco Tried to Stop Them.

"The stock to be sold was all personal property of Oliver Morosco. At least $2,500,000 worth of stock was sold on representations that the stock was treasury stock of the Morosco Holding Co. Inc., and that the company was possessed of the

POLICEMAN AND GUNMAN KILLED IN PISTOL DUEL

Canton (Ill.) Police Chief Also Shot When Suspected Bootlegger Is Approached.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CANTON, Ill., Aug. 4.—A gunman, in whose possession was found a notebook containing the name of John Nicodemus of Peoria, was shot and killed here yesterday in a pistol duel, in which David O'Brien, 40 years old, assistant chief of police of Canton, was also killed and Chief of Police Ray shot five times. Chief Ray is expected to recover.

The two policemen were driving a patrol in the southeastern part of the city, when they saw the gunman, whom they believed to be a bootlegger. O'Brien approached the gunman, who opened fire and then was shot by O'Brien. O'Brien fell, and the wounded gunman staggered to the patrol as Ray was leaving the driver's seat. The gunman shot Ray five times and then collapsed.

Examination of the notebook, besides disclosing the name of Nicodemus, revealed the names of a number of automobile garages and license plate numbers. The man's finger prints were forwarded to Peoria, and the authorities here were informed that they were those of Nicodemus, and that he was wanted by the police there. In his pockets, the man carried also $190 and a pair of rubber gloves.

DONALD W. ROSS FORMALLY SENTENCED TO TEN YEARS

Looter of Assets of Defunct Night and Day Bank Files Appeal Bond of $50,000.

Donald W. Ross, former deputy State Finance Commissioner, who looted the remaining assets of the Night and Day Bank while serving as liquidation officer for the defunct institution, today received formal sentence, from Judge Calhoun, to a term of 10 years in the penitentiary.

Ross was convicted twice of embezzlement charges, the second time being last December, and the jury gave him 5 years on each charge. Three more embezzlement charges remain, and under a recent decision of the State Supreme Court, he can be tried on any of these after having been sentenced by the court. Ross gave a new appeal bond for $50,000, or $15,000 on each of his convictions. The total of defalcations charged in the indictments against him is $167,000.

Dr. William Healy Says Boys Said They Would Commit Crime Again Under Like Circumstances.

YOUTHS' ASSOCIATION BEGAN AT AGE OF 15

Franks Murder Described as "Absolutely Unique;" Origin in "Absurd Childish Compact."

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The kidnaping and murder of Robert Franks by Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold Jr. was absolutely unique in the medical history of crime as it is known to science, Dr. William Healy of Boston, testified before Judge Caverly today. He was the second alienist to take the stand for the defense, and he declared at once that the whole case bore a pathological aspect.

Following his declaration that the crime might be attributed in some degree to "a childish compact" between Loeb and Leopold, he was compelled to describe this compact. This resulted in the first testimony of perversion which has entered the case.

Describing the mental tests which he applied to the defendants, Dr. Healy declared that Leopold made the highest grades of any individual to whom he had ever applied the tests, and he indicated that he had applied them to hundreds. In one of the Stanford-Binet tests which involves the correct answering of a set of questions correctly in that time, Leopold made a perfect grade, and concluded in three minutes and 15 seconds, he said. A cryptogram test with a time limit of 15 minutes was correctly deciphered by Leopold in five minutes, he added.

Dr. Healy testified both boys had told him they would again go through with the Franks murder if their associations and the conditions were the same. He said Loeb told him he "found nothing to deter him," and that Leopold had said he would commit the crime again "if it gave him pleasure."

When Dr. Healy, at a later point in his testimony, termed Leopold a "paranoic personality" and said he was "thoroughly unbalanced," State's Attorney Crowe sought to have him admit Leopold was "insane," but the alienist replied he did not use the terms sane or insane and did not think in them.

Physician and Psychologist.

Dr. Healey, at the opening of the morning session, identified himself as "a physician and psychologist." He was graduated from Harvard University and Rush Medical College and studied abroad. Later he was head of the "Psychopathic Bureau of the Chicago Juvenile Court." He lectures at Harvard and Columbia universities.

His scholarly appearance is of a pronounced type. He is a blue-eyed man of middle age, with mustache and a small imperial, and wears spectacles. He spoke crisply and positively. Opening questions elicited the fact that he had written a large number of books, several of them dealing with criminal delinquency from a psychiatric viewpoint. He said that nearly all his studies had been restricted to adolescents and remarked that the period between the ages of 15 and 22 was a particularly dangerous one in the lives of boys because of the multitude of new impulses which form then.

In the present case, he said, in addition to applying scientific tests to both Loeb and Leopold, he had interviewed a large number of acquaintances as well as members of their families, and had conducted much research into their personal histories. He regarded his opportunities for testing and obtaining information about them as singularly conducive to accurate conclusions. He had read much of the defendants' corre-

WADE'S AIRPLANE IS ABANDONED AT SEA AFTER 6-HOUR FIGHT TO SAVE IT

Aviator Sees Craft Which Had Carried Him 19,000 Miles Wrecked by Breaking of Ship's Tackle.

SMITH AND NELSON REACH ICELAND

Ice in North Atlantic Harbors May Cause Change in Plans for Landing and Refueling.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD U. S. S. RICHMOND, Aug. 4.—The "Boston," the airplane piloted by Lieut. Leigh Wade in the American Army world flight, was abandoned early this morning. The plane was taken in tow by the Richmond yesterday after Lieut. Wade and his mechanic had been forced down at sea by engine trouble while on the hop from Kirkwall, in the Orkneys, to Iceland.

The Richmond's effort to salvage the wrecked plane was abandoned when the machine, which had been gradually filling while being towed in a heavy sea, capsized. Seeing the hopelessness of attempting further to save it, the officers cut it adrift.

The Richmond then turned about and made for Reykjavik, Iceland.

The value of the naval patrol protection for the flyers was amply demonstrated in yesterday's search for Wade and Ogden. After the patrolling vessels had been informed that the flyers had made a forced landing the Richmond and the Billingly converged on the position indicated by the message sent by Lieut. Smith, and the destroyer, making 31 knots, had ample time to reach the damaged plane before the late darkness in these latitudes. The Billingsley, in fact, reached the Boston immediately after Wade and Ogden's machine was found by the Grimsby trawler.

The raido was stilled except for official business during the search for the missing airmen.

By the Associated Press.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 4.—The wrecked airplane which had been piloted by Lieut. Leigh Wafe in the American around the world flight and which was abandoned early this morning by the cruiser Richmond, is being taken to the Faroe Islands by the trawler Rugby in order to ascertain whether it may be possible to repair it in time to continue the flight, it is understood here.

If it is possible to repair the "Poston" despite serious damage to the plane's wings and pontoons, the cruiser Raleigh will bring the machine to Reykjavik where the repairs will be made and where if possible, Lieut. Wade will continue his flight.

"It has not yet been decided whether Flight Commander Lieut. Lowell H. Smith and Lieut. Eric Nelson will start from Hoefn Hornafjord for Reykjavik today or tomorrow.

Lieutenant Smith does not care to predict the possible effect of the flyers being held up by the Greenland ice, but he is at least considering the alternative of a direct flight from Reykjavik, on the west coast of Iceland, to Ivigtut, on the west coast of Greenland, with a possible halt at sea for re-fueling if conditions are favorable.

"We will find some way of making it, in any event," he said tonight.

According to old residents of Hornafjord the weather probably will continue uncertain, with a lessening percentage of good days as the month wears on. Therefore, the aviators may be depended upon to continue their flight at the earliest possible moment.

The flight along the Iceland coast from here to Reykjavik is not considered particularly difficult as the coast line is comparatively smooth, although there are rugged promontories, while the charts show a number of sheltered harbors where the aviators can find safe moorings if forced to descend.

Worked Six Hours Adrift to Repair Plane.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 4. — Misfortune has again laid a harsh hand on the American Army world flight expedition. Two of the pilots, Lieut. Lowell H. Smith and Lieut. Eric Nelson, with their mechanics, are at Hoefn Hornafjord, Iceland, ready to continue on to Greenland and over the watery wastes of the North Atlantic to Labrador, but Lieut. Leigh Wade and Sergt. Ogden, his mechanic, are out of the running through no fault of their own.

Rescued by a British trawler and the American destroyer Billingsley, after they had been forced down at sea by engine trouble on the hop to Iceland from Kirkwall, in the Orkneys, Wade and Ogden stood by helplessly on the deck of the U. S. S. Richmond and saw a steel boom weighing a ton crash through the fragile tissue of their plane while endeavors were being made to hoist it aboard the vessel.

The wings of the machine had previously been seriously damaged in the forced landing at sea and the two men had worked for six hours, adrift at sea, attempting to make temporary repairs which would enable them to rise again and continue their adventurous journey. The accident during the hoisting process after they had boarded the Richmond, sent all their hopes crashing.

Lieut. Wade and the commander of the flight, Lieut. Smith, hopped off from Kirkwall yesterday morning to join Lieut. Nelson, who made the trip to Iceland alone Saturday after the three had become separated in a fog and the first two had returned to Houton Bay. Smith won through and joined Nelson at Hoefn Hornafjord, although he had a hard flight during the latter part of the flight, encountering both rain squalls and heavy fog banks.

First Oil Pump Trouble.

Lieut. Wade, on board the Richmond, was chagrined over the fate that had brought his plane to grief and stopped the participation of himself and Sergt. Ogden in the flight when it was so near a conclusion, but he took the disappointment well. Describing his experiences, Lieut. Wade said:

"It was the first time we had had trouble with the oil pump and our second forced landing in the 19,000-mile flight. The first was on the Japanese coast when we came down for water.

"On yesterday's flight, when the trouble came, we signalled Lieut. Smith by waving that we were forced down; also that the engine was out of commission, requesting him to advise the patrol. We expected to remain in the water until the Richmond arrived. We saw a merchant vessel at 2 o'clock in the afternoon but could not attract its attention. An hour later the trawler which rescued us was sighted. We had to signal her with pistol and rifle before she noticed us."

Lieut. Wade said he and Ogden were afraid at first to eat the sandwiches and drink the water they had, not knowing how long it would be before they were rescued. They were confident all along, however, that they would sight a vessel and eventually reach land, and they kept the plane constantly before the wind. They suffered from the cold and from the tossing of the wrecked craft about by the waves, but did not at any time consider their position critical. The effort to save the plane and continue the flight was made.

"When the four planes left America the army hoped all four would return," said Wade. "But its all in the game. We did our best."

Lieut. Smith to Alight on Sea Beyond Reach of Ice.

By the Associated Press.

KIRKWALL, Orkney Islands, Scotland, Aug. 4.—Plans for the flight of the American round-the-world airmen from Iceland to Greenland and over Greenland probably will be somewhat altered. Flight Commander Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, according to latest information received here, expects to abandon the original plan to land in a sheltered bay at Anoretok, Greenland, and to chance finding safe moorings in the sea close to the cruiser Raleigh, which will anchor as near the harbor as the ice will permit.

Lieut. Smith has been advised by Lieut. La Clair D. Schulze of the United States Air Service, on board the Danish Government vessel Gertrud Rask, that it will be impossible to make a landing nearer to the bay.

The Danish vessel which is acting as a supply ship for the aviators, is icebound 25 miles out of Anoretok, Lieut. Schulze reported.

When he left here, Lieut. Smith had practically decided to make the landing at this stop on the sea out of the reach of the ice, using the Gertrud Rask, the Raleigh and a Danish warship which is in the same waters to make a triangular fence about the planes, thus protecting them from the heavy seas, ice and winds. No trouble is anticipated in landing in this manner but the flight leader fears that difficulty will be found in taking on gasoline and oil and in the possibility that the planes may be damaged by rocking on a heavy sea. The only alternative in the event of a storm at sea will be landing on the icy coast, risking irreparable damage to the floats. Rather than rest on top of a heavy sea Lieut. Smith will take the latter choice, awaiting new floats if they are necessary.

The destroyers Reid and Billingsley now are on their way to the court from Reykjavik, Iceland, to Angmagsalik, Greenland. The Raleigh will leave Hornafjord at the same time that the planes depart and will steam toward Anoretok. By the time the planes depart for their second stop in Greenland, the patrol vessels expect to have received further orders from Washington. The Richmond probably will return to the United States from Reykjavik.

The most dangerous part of the trip in the opinion of Lieut. Smith will be the hop from Anoretok to Ivigtut, because a safe landing will be impossible should either of the planes develop trouble in the air.

Bluejackets Jumps Into Icy Sea to Save Flyers Note.

By the Associated Press.

HOEFN HORNAFJORD, Iceland Aug. 4.—Lieut. Erik Nelson and his mechanician, Lieut. John Harding Jr., divulged today that it was not until they had passed the destroyer Billingsley on their flight from Kirkwall to this settlement yesterday that they learned their comrades, had been forced by the weather conditions to return to Scotland.

As Nelson's plane flew past the destroyer, Harding threw a note asking the commander to show one puff of smoke if Lieut. Smith and the others had continued and two puffs if they had returned to Kirkwall. The note fell overboard and despite the frigidity of the water a bluejacket jumped into the water to recover it. Then the destroyer showed two puffs.

The first news of Wade's trouble came in a report from the island of Sudero, the southernmost of the Faroe group. It was contained in a message dropped by Smith as he passed over the island. The message requested that a dispatch be sent to England that Wade had been forced down 115 miles off Birsay, in the Orkney Islands. Wireless dispatches were immediately sent to the patrol fleet to go to the rescue.

Icebergs and Heavy Seas Reported from Labrador.

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. BARRY, Aug. 4.—(By wireless to the Associated Press.)—The American destroyer division which will patrol the Arctic waters for the United States army world fliers arrived yesterday off Indian Harbor, Labrador. The cruiser Milwaukee later sailed for Ivigtut, Greenland. The Milwaukee will be stationed four miles southwest of Ivigtut. One destroyer will be stationed off Cape Farewell and another between Ivigtut and Cape Farewell.

On the Ivigtut to Indian Harbor leg of the flight, four destroyers will be stationed at equal intervals over the route and one will be at anchor in the harbor.

After leaving Belle Isle Straits the destroyers saw a number of icebergs and had a night of heavy sea.

Lieut. Wade to Quit Flight Unless Plane Is Repaired.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Unless the wrecked airplane of Lieut. Wade, army flyer, can be repaired at Reykjavik he is definitely out of the world flight, it was said today at the War Department.

It was understood that consideration of a plan to send another craft to replace the Boston would not be pursued because that was found to be impracticable. On arrival of the Richmond at Reykjavik, unless Lieut. Wade's ship is in better condition than reports have indicated, he will be instructed to continue to the United States on the cruiser Richmond which took him aboard in mid-ocean.

The following official report on the accident to the Boston was received by the Army Air Service today from Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commanding the flight, sent form Hornajford, Iceland.

"Wade forced down between Faroe Islands and Orkney Islands with motor trouble. He made a nice landing in a heavy swell. There was oil on the side of his plane and in the water. He signaled motor gone and to send help. We dropped a note on Sybero Island for the Richmond and one on the Billingsley. Both ships going in search.

"Word just received Wade picked up by fishing boat longtitude 5 degrees 22 minutes, latitude 60 degrees 40 minutes. They have him in tow.

"We left Kirkwalls 9:25, landed Hornajford 3:45. Rain and poor visibility from Faroe Islands. Future plans depend upon Wade."

Decision to terminate the army round-the-world flight at Seattle was announced today definitely at the War Department. The terminating point had been left open pending consideration of claims of other Pacific Coast cities to secure the designation.

obtained the intercession of Cummins, and the question finally was placed in the hands of Premier MacDonald, who in the House of Commons said the Mexican Government was trying to dispossess her and that Cummins would have been lacking in the performance of his duty if he had failed to make representations on her behalf.

The Mexican Government took the position that it could not "permit Mr. Cummins' discourtesies toward the Mexican authorities" in handling Mrs. Evans' case, and asked for his recall. After a few exchanges the Mexican Government decided to expel Cummins but this step was never carried out and he was permitted to depart.

American Charge Schoenfield took over the British archives in June and since that time Cummins has returned to England, sailing a few weeks ago from New York.

Details of Mrs. Evans' dispute with the Mexican authorities have never been made clear here, although in speaking of it in the House of Commons, Premier MacDonald said it was a "romantic story."

Slain When Talking to Woman.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW MADRID, Mo., Aug. 4.—Lafe Duncan, 35 years old, is held on a first-degree murder charge following the inquest into the death of Claude Kelly, 35, from gunshot wounds early yesterday. Witnesses testified that the two men had quarreled and Duncan, borrowing a shotgun, shot Kelly in the right side as Kelly was talking to a woman.

spondence and declared it threw considerable light on their mentalities.

State's Attorney Crowe entered a general objection to all the testimony as well as to the manner of giving it. It was the same objection, in substance, as that made by the State to Dr. White's testimony, and it was overruled.

Association Begun at 15.

"There is such a mass of material," Dr. Healy began, "that I hope you will pardon me if I forget the source of some of it. I shall try to be as explicit as I can. The association of the two boys began when they were 15 years old." Here the witness interrupted himself to interpolate:

"Let me say that this crime is unprecedented to my knowledge in the literature of the subject. The absolute lack of motivation, the unfeeling manner in which it was carried out, the defendants' quarrel, and many other aspects of the homicide give it a strong pathological color, although one that is absolutely unique in my knowledge.

"Their joint crimes began, so far as I can discover, with extensive cheating at bridge. It appears that they were not very successful at it, but it seems to have been the beginning of their mutual crime. Loeb says that their drinking was also a considerable bond. When he was nine years old Loab had climbed through a neighbor's window and stolen a vase, and also had stolen some money which another had buried in his yard.

"There was quite a little stealing by Loeb from city shops—pencils and other small articles which he says he took for the thrill of doing it.

Absurd Childish Compact.

"I have their stories, told separately, of an incredibly absurd childish compact between them."

State's Attorney Crowe demanded that the witness describe this compact and Dr. Healy said it was unfit to be described publicly. The attorneys and the Judge put their heads otgether and Dr. Healy went ahead with his testimony in a whisper. The compact which he described and which he said appeared from their letters purported to contain the conditions which Leopold imposed on Loeb in return for Leopold's consent to join in Loeb's criminal enterprises. It was the first direct evidence of perversion which has been introduced and it is notable that it was brought in by the defense. The state had produced evidence that Leopold read a considerable amount of literature on the subject.

Leopold displayed much uneasiness during the whispered testimony. He shifted in his seat, bit his lips, flushed and paled, and did not meet the gaze of those around him. Loeb did nothing of the sort, merely continuing to gaze absorbedly at the witness' face.

Judge Caverly said: "There will be nothing brought out here that is not fit for publication." He directed attorneys and court stenographers to gather closely about the witness when Dr. Healy proceeded with his testimony in a quiet tone.

"Get back there, you newspapermen," directed Judge Caverly as reporters and photographers pressed forward. "This is not fit for publication and you are not going to get it."

Continuing his audible testimony, Dr. Healy said Leopold had many physical abnormalities, and such peculiarities as quick flushes and pallor, nervous gestures of the hands, and muscular twitching of the face. All these have been noticeable in the court room. He added that Leopold manifested great nervous energy and an extraordinarily high intellect.

Describing the application of several standard tests to Leopold, he said: "He not only answered them all correctly but did so in less time than any individual I have ever examined."

Tests of Intelligence.

Crowe insisted on knowing something more about the tests than their mere names, such as the Munroe and the Binet tests, and Judge Caverly upheld the demand. Dr. Healy produced the formulae used. One consisted in supplying the missing words in sentences, another in solving problems in logic and perception. The only one upon which Leopold did show up well was the visualization test, he said. This test consisted in describing the shape of something used.

Under the insistence of the state, Dr. Healy continued a description of the tests which were applied to Leopold. They covered a wide field, ranging from such simple ones as the substitution of missing words to that involving effect of a double negative, as compared with effect on a double wrong, the question being:

"If two negatives make a positive why don't two wrongs make a right?" All these were intellectual, as distinguished from emotional tests.

In explanation of "muffing" one answer, Leopold told Dr. Healy that he was "all upset now." "It was the first evidence I had ever seen that he possessed any emotions at all, under the surface or anywhere else," the witness declared.

Brilliant Future Sacrificed.

The very fact that Leopold was willing to take the extraordinary chance of sacrificing a brilliant future for the incredibly petty rewards to be had from his participation in the crime was in itself a tremendous evidence of his abnormal mentality, Dr. Healy declared.

"He might have been a distinguished scholar. He had already, in fact, attained wide celebrity as a student of bird life and had published notable contributions to the subject. It is impossible to believe that a normal individual would have taken the chance of ending such a career for virtually nothing.

"Again we find a strong contradiction between his notion of his self superiority, on the one hand, and his low personal and social conduct on the other.

"He says he is a superman on the basis of Nietzsche's philosophy. Even in jail, although he may be generally despised, he really is a Napoleon on St. Helena, he told me. A very interesting thing which he said to me was that he feared he had failed to impress us scientists with his conviction that the preservation of dignity was more important than the preservation of life."

It appeared, from this statement, that Leopold had endeavored to persuade the alienists, in the event of their going on the witness stand, that he would prefer to be hanged rather than have them disclose facts which would impair his dignity.

Would Write Autobiography.

Dr. Healy continued: "You have heard that, if he is sentenced to death, he wants to write an autobiography for the purpose of showing that his life has not only been perfectly consistent but that he had succeeded in packing his 19 years full of interesting experiences. He also desires to be permitted to make a last speech, for the same reason.

"Taking up his phantasy life, there is no doubt that it has been abnormal. We all do our day dreaming, usually in connection with our ambitions. Leopold's first dreams were of suffering. He says the story of the crucifixion made a deep impression on him as a small child, and he often visualized persons being nailed down or tied own. Sometimes he was the victim, sometimes he was the executioner. The nature and persistence of these phantasies even then indicated a diseased emotional condition.

Ridiculed the Alienists.

Dr. Healy testified this afternoon that Leopold had ridiculed the alienists themselves, deriding their opinion that he was not mentally sound. He told them that, while he certainly was different from the average person, the difference was purely one of his superiority. He said that making up his mind to commit murder was simply like making up his mind to have peace with his supper—that it was merely a question of whether it would give him pleasure," the psychologist declared.

On the other hand, he continued, there was no consistency in Leopold's egotism. "With all his self love, he had no self regard. Despite his love for himself, he took reckless chances, and exposed himself wantonly to utterly needless danger."

"In my opinion," the scientist summed up, "he is thoroughly unbalanced. He is a paranoiac personality. There is no reason why he shouldn't commit murder. Anything he wants to do is right to him."

Lacks in Practical Judgment.

In contrast with Leopold's demonstration of intellectual power was the demonstration of the witness in the tests which bore on practical judgment. Here he scored 56¼ out of a possible 100, which is the average for boys of 12. In other words, Dr. Healy said, 25 per cent of 10-year-old boys do better than he did.

"He has worked out a memory system which enables him to achieve remarkable results," the witness continued. "If you give him 20 names he can repeat them for you, forward and backward or tell you the position of each with regard to the others. He told me he did it by assigning each word to a room in his house, and identifying them with the furniture and place of those rooms.

"He enjoyed the display of his mental powers enormously. It was obvious that there is nothing he enjoys quite so much as his remarkable mental activity. I was struck by his attainments in languages. Aside from his wide knowledge of obscure languages, I found he invented original exercises such as writing French in Greek or Sanscrit characters."

Defense to Elaborate Evidence of Mental Irresponsibility.

The correspondent learns from inquiry that the defense is well satisfied with the progress of the expert testimony thus far, and that Dr. William A. White's testimony has encouraged defense counsel to enlarge and elaborate its evidence of mental irresponsibility. Consequently, the hearing is likely to be prolonged beyond first expectations. Defense counsel intimated last week that the expert witnesses might be confined to Drs. White of Washington; Healy, of Boston, and Glueck, of New York. It is now likely, however, that Drs. James Whitney Hall and William J. Hickson, who assisted in the examinations, also will be called.

This morning's session brought forth the largest throngs of curiosity seekers of the trial. It was necessary to station police guards at the front entrance of the building. Only those with passes were admitted.

Crowe Said to Believe Youths Tricked Alienists.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe is preparing a rebuttal of the alienists' testimony in the Franks murder case with a view of showing that the slayers, Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, are intellectually capable of plotting just such a defense as is being offered.

Crowe has said he believed it possible that these two "intellectual super-men," realizing that their lives depended on "mental irresponsibility," had concocted such a series of reactions as they knew an alienist might seek as a basis for a finding of abnormality.

Clarence Darrow, chief defense counsel, said yesterday that his two clients were being tried by extra judicial agencies not for the murder to which they have pleaded guilty but for their wealth, their intellect, their social position and a score of other contributing circumstances which would not weigh down an obscure murderer.

He said the public demand for the blood of the boys was unfair.

DEATH PREFERABLE TO LOSS OF DIGNITY, SAYS LEOPOLD

Slayer Displeased When Intimate Secrets of His Life Are Told in Effort to Save Him.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Death is preferable to loss of dignity and Nathan Leopold Jr. would rather go to the gallows than have all the intimate secrets of his life disclosed from the witness stand by alienists whom the defense has called in the effort to save him from execution, he emphatically declared to the Post-Dispatch correspondent today during the noon recess of the trial of himself and Richard Loeb before Judge Caverly for the murder of Robert Franks.

During the morning session Dr. William Healy of Boston, a noted alienist, had made merciless analysis of Leopold's characteristics before a crowded courtroom. He had concluded numerous revealing statements which Leopold had made to him during the privacy of examination and Dr. Healy had even brought in notes passed to him by Leopold in the courtroom.

From the standpoint of legal defense, the testimony appeared to be extremely favorable to the defendants. But it was dreadfully humiliating and embarrassing from a personal standpoint, and Leopold displayed a growing uneasiness and anger as it went on. As a matter of fact, the witness had quoted Leopold as saying, on one occasion, that preservation of life was not so important as preservation of dignity.

Displays Bitterness.

A few minutes after Loeb and Leopold had been taken back to the jail for lunch, the writer called on Leopold and asked him how he felt about the action of the alienists in disclosing so many intimate and confidential facts about him.

"I seem to have about as much privacy as a gold fish," he declared, with sardonic bitterness. "That is the result of being in the hands of my family and lawyers. When I said that death was less important than the loss of dignity I meant exactly what I said. When these examinations were conducted, I had no idea that these intimate detail was to be published, and I do not think it would have happened had not a Chicago newspaper, with a fine display of the horror which great newspapers manifest in their dealing with murders, stole two of the reports and published them."

It was suggested to him that most people not only would prefer life to dignity but that, in their efforts to save their lives, a majority of accused persons usually throw dignity to the winds.

"I suppose it is another of my unfortunate abnormalities that I feel the other way," he replied with another of his ironic smiles. "What is death?" he flung out. "Are you afraid of sleep? Would you fear death if you were convinced that it would be merely a perpetual sleep? Well, I am just as certain of that as I am of anything."

"Death a Measly Thing."

Then he hadn't changed his mind on that subject since his present plight began? "Certainly not," was the scornful reply. "I have changed my mind about nothing and certainly not about such a measly thing as death.

"There has been no fundamental alteration of my philosophy in any degree, and any man whose philosophy is altered by a mere change of environment is contemptible and his philosophy is not worth a thought. The whole thing, including my own state of mind, has been precisely as I expected.

"Death," he explained, with another scornful laugh. "It isn't half as bad as cancer."

"The only regret I will have in the event I am hanged will be that I will be unable to read the morning paper account of it the next day," Leopold said. "I have a curiosity to see just how badly they would handle it."

ITALIAN COUNT AND WIFE HURT IN AUTO COLLISION

R. T. Baker's Limousine, Halted by Collision With Touring Car, Is Struck by Another Car.

Policeman and Girl Companion Overtaken After Complaint Is Made — Figured in Assault Case.

Motorcycle Policeman Grover L. Caudle, whose altercation with a motorist July 20 resulted in application for a warrant for assault, was suspended today, pending investigation of charges of accepting a bribe and transporting liquor.

He was arrested and taken to the Magnolia Avenue Station about 2 a. m. on complaint of W. F. Van Luik of 3820 North Grand avenue. Van Luik reported that a short time before he was driving his automobile east on Gravois avenue, just east of Grand, when another automobile drew alongside, the driver commanding him to halt.

The driver, who he said was a policeman, was in civilian attire, but displayed a police badge and told him he was under arrest for speeding. He was asked, he said, if he knew the location of the Magnolia Avenue Station and the Newstead Avenue Station, and when he replied affirmatively, he says he was told to report to the latter.

Says He Gave Policeman Money.

In the conversation that ensued, Van Luik says he produced two one-dollar bills, which he handed to the policeman, and was told to drive on. He complied, driving to Grand and Gravois, where he reported the incident to Patrolmen Stein and Lange. The policemen got into the car, which returned eastward and in front of 3230 Gravois avenue, came upon Caudle's car, which had struck an automobile parked there, belonging to Carl Schultz of that number.

Caudle and a young woman, who said she was Miss Mildred Miller, 19, of 3136 Clifton place, were bleeding from cuts on the face, and Schultz was assessing the damages to his car. While Van Luik was identifying Caudle as the driver who had stopped him, Schultz chanced to look into Caudle's car, and there found three half-pint bottles of whisky.

Caudle and Miss Miller were sent to city hospital, the former being treated for lacerations of the nose, wrist and left leg and the latter for multiple lacerations. Caudle was then taken to the Magnolia Avenue Station and questioned. He admitted having halted Van Luik's car, but denied any knowledge of the money transaction.

He also denied knowledge of the presence of the whisky, saying it must have been in the car, which he had borrowed from an agency. He explained that he and Miss Miller were enjoying a drive, when he observed the other car speed by him.

Assault Warrant Dismissed.

Caudle, who is 33 years old and lives at 1278 Hamilton avenue, is attached to the Laclede Avenue Station. On July 20 an attorney for Clarence Baris, 19, of 6429 Cates avenue, applied for a warrant against Caudle, charging assault, growing out of Baris' arrest by Caudle on charges of speeding and resisting arrest.

Baris' story was that as he was driving his father's touring car near Maple avenue and the Wabash tracks, a coupe, occupied by Caudle and three women, drove alongside and Caudle shouted to him to stop. Not knowing Caudle, who was then off duty and in civilian attire, was a policeman, Baris said he kept on going until he was crowded to the curb and forced to stop. He charged that Caudle leaped out of the car and began pummeling him about the face, while holding a revolver against his side.

However, the application for a warrant was not pressed, the boy's father notifying the Prosecuting Attorney's office that a settlement had been reached with Caudle. On July 29, the youth pleaded guilty in police court to the charge of resisting the officer and was fined $3 costs.

Adalbert Von Gontard and His Bride On Their Wedding Day in New York

THIS photograph was taken upon the arrival of Baroness Susanne Schilling von Cantstatt of Baden. Her fiance went down the bay to meet her and they planned to be married on board the liner, but this was not possible because the captain's power to solemnize marriage is confined to the high seas. The ceremony followed that night in New York. Von Gontard is a grandson of Mrs. Adolphus Busch of St. Louis and has been here for some time. The newlyweds will live at the Forest Park Hotel.

KIEL THINKS HE HAS IT ON LORD MAYOR OF LONDON

white way lined with cars, you see only a few old machines. The country people don't have flivvers, as our farmers do—they are lucky to have even a horse. You don't see livestock in pasture; they work the cattle by day and tie them up at night.

"Gasoline—they call it 'essence'—is very high in France, 45 or 46 cents a gallon, but taxi fares are low. Good food is about the same price in those countries as here. Champagne is as low as 75 cents a bottle.

"The Moroccan soldiers of France, whom you see in the occupied territory, are not what I would call negroes. They are more like Turks. Some of them have long black beards. I found use being made of the relief funds contributed in this country, to give a morning meal, usually at 10 o'clock, to school children in the occupied territory, and it has been a lifesaver to them."

In Paris, the Mayor found the Folies Bergere "artistic," but could not say as much for the Moulin Rouge and Bal Tabarin, where the show is not confined to the stage, but is spread over the place, cabaret fashion.

"The tomb of the Unknown Soldier was the thing that impressed me most in Paris," he said. "It is beneath the Arch of Triumph, right in the city, not off in a cemetery as is the similar tomb near Washington. A perpetual light burns there."

Impressed With Buildings.

All through Europe, the Mayor, as a builder, was impressed with the permanence of buildings, both public and private, which are constructed for the centuries. Fires are less frequent, and firemen and fire apparatus less conspicuous than here, he noticed.

The journey back was—well, nice, but not so interesting as the eastbound voyage. Coming back, the Mayor was not with his own crowd, as he was when going over. He returned, as he went, by Montreal and Quebec.

"Most of the people on the ship, coming back, were delegates from England to the convention of the Association for the Advancement of Science, in Toronto," he explained. "They were pleasant people, but hardly so lively a bunch as the admen."

POLLS TO OPEN AT 6 A. M. TOMORROW, CLOSE AT 7 P. M.

been Republicans and who want to vote for a candidate on the Democratic ticket, must call for a Democratic ballot. Should the election judges refuse, the demand may be enforced if the voter agrees to support the Democratic nominees at the general election in November. The same is true as to Democrats who want to vote in the Republican primary and so on.

The primary serves as a final election, in each ward, for party committeeman and committeewoman. Every voter, man or woman, can vote for both a candidate for committeeman and a candidate for committeewoman, of the voter's own party and in the voter's own ward only.

Should the voter spoil a ballot in trying to mark it to express his choice, a new one may be obtained upon demand from the election judges.

All of the banks and the St. Louis Merchants' and Stock Exchanges will be closed tomorrow.

Vigorous efforts have been made by the League of Women Voters, the Chamber of Commerce and the Associated Industries of Missouri, in co-operation with numerous other agencies, to get out a heavy primary vote in St. Louis and similar efforts have been made elsewhere in the State. The argument has been made that a voter's best opportunity to influence the character of public officials elected in November is in the primary, where the first weeding-out occurs. The job then can be completed at the general election.

Returns for St. Louis will be tabulated at the office of the Board of Election Commissioners tomorrow night as usual, based on results from the various precincts transmitted to the Election Board by the police.

properties of Morosco free and clear of any liens. When Morosco became aware of the methods employed by Leven and his salesmen, he tried to put a stop to the sales. Subsequently to that Morosco resigned as president.

"Mr. Morosco was succeeded to the presidency of the holding company by August Janssen, proprietor of the Hof Brau House on Broadway. Mr. Janssen's experience cost him $400,000.

"Prior to 1921, Mr. Morosco enjoyed an income of $500,000 a year from his properties. He had accumulated about $5,000,000 as the result of his genius as a theatrical producer. Today he is broke."

Another heavy loser in the venture, according to McCoy, was J. W. McKinney of Titusville, Pa., who lost about $200,000.

COMMUNITY FUND PASSES MILLION DOLLAR MARK IN JULY

Report Shows Sum of $1,088,560.81 Was Paid on 1924 Pledges to 52 Charities.

The Community Fund collections passed the million-dollar mark during July, the sum of $1,088,560.81 having been paid on 1924 pledges to the 52 charities and philanthropies in the fund, A. O. Wilson, treasurer, reported to the Executive Committee today. This money had been paid by 90,000 subscribers up to the first of August.

Wilson pointed out that the fund had collected 75 per cent of its 1924 pledges in 58.3 per cent of the elapsed year. The amount subscribed to the Community Fund organizations for 1924 was $1,449,985, Wilson reported. He further stated that more than 97 per cent of 1923 pledges have been paid, $26,750 having been paid on these pledges since the first of the present year.

While Wilson terms this a remarkable record for collections, his report states that it is a fortunate circumstance, for several organizations in the fund will be compelled to exceed their anticipated budgets owning to unexpectedly heavy demands for service and relief due to unemployment. One organization, the Provident Association, the largest family service organization in the city, apparently will run $25,000 above its expected 1924 budget.

GEHNER IN RACE TO AID M'KELVEY, SCHULER CHARGES

Deputy Assessor Induced to File for Sheriff by Persons Friendly to McKelvey, He Says.

SEES PLOT TO SPLIT INDEPENDENT VOTE

Contest in Deeper Significance and Effort to Eliminate City Collector Koeln From Politics.

Deputy Assessor Fred Gehner was persuaded to file for the Republican nomination for Sheriff by persons friendly to the candidacy of Director of Public Safety James N. McKelvey, who desired to split the independent vote which they thought would otherwise have gone to City Marshal Anton Schuler, the latter charged today in a letter to Sheriff George Strodtman. Strodtman Saturday had espoused the candidacy of Gehner.

This was just one of several developments in the fight between McKelvey and Schuler, which in its deeper significance is a struggle for Republican control in St. Louis between Nat Goldstein and the other faction leaders dominating the Republican City Committee, and City Collector Edmond Koeln, whom the committee chieftains have determined to crush in this campaign. Twenty-six members of the City Committee are supporting McKelvey, while Koeln is behind Schuler, himself a member of the committee. Gehner has no organization support outside of Peter H. Anderson, First Ward Committeeman, his father, State Senator Peter Anderson, and Sheriff Strodtman, a resident of the First Ward.

Koeln and Becker in Tilt.

Collector Koeln issued a statement yesterday in which he characterized as the "death rattle of the bosses" an attack made upon him Saturday by Chairman Louis J. Becker of the City Committee, in which Koeln was described, though not by name, as "an aspiring under-cover boss" and as desiring to be a "super-politician." The Becker statement ascribed to Koeln authorship of a "break-the-slate" ballot issued by a citizens' committee of 10 business men. This committee indorsed the candidates who are being supported by Koeln, including Schuler, Public Administrator Otto Hampe for renomination, Deputy Treasurer William G. Buechner for nomination for City Treasurer, Circuit Attorney Sidener for renomination and Dr. R. S. Vitt for nomination for Coroner.

Collector Koeln, in reply, said:

"It seems to worry Mr. Becker and some of his political cohorts that I won't swallow some of the candidates as dictated by 'Nat' Goldstein, Bobby Moore, Becker and others of his kind. I have looked over the ticket sent out by the Republican Citizens' Committee and believe they have recommended the best men who have offered themselves for the offices.

"Every time the citizens of St. Louis have been awakened the boss slate has been demolished. For instance J. Hugo Grimm was opposed by the same crowd and Judge Henry Lamm for Governor had their opposition and both led their tickets in the primary. When I was a candidate for Collector I did not seek or get the support of Goldstein, Moore or Becker of the Republican Committee, but was nominated just the same. So will be the candidates in the primary tomorrow who are opposed to the machine. The voters will not be decoyed into supporting the machine slate. The bosses of the Republican City Committee are not fooling the people."

Statement as to Gehner.

Koeln, too, declared that Gehner had been put into the Sheriff's race to divide the antiboss vote with Schuler in an effort to assure McKelvey's nomination.

Marshal Schuler charged in his letter to Sheriff Stredtman that "Gehner was filed for sheriff, by Mr. Peter Anderson, a close personal, intimate friend and business associate of Mr. McKelvey Mr. Anderson has been associated in the building business directly or indirectly, with McKelvey for a number of years and I know and you should know that Mr. Gehner is in the race solely and only to divide the vote, well knowing that the citizen has no method of organizing and that the vote of the independent citizens would be divided between Gehner and myself and thus insure the McKelvey nomination."

Schuler declared in response to Strodtman's declaration that large sums were being spent for Schuler, as well as McKelvey, that the Schuler expenditures are within the law and that the campaign accounts are open for inspection.

McKelvey's Campaign Methods.

"On the other hand the signs of my opponent, Mr. McKelvey will be found over practically every business house whose business comes under the control and jurisdiction of McKelvey," asserted Schuler. "For instance the motion picture houses where Mr. McKelvey has charge of the lives of the people who patronize them, all carry his slides. Also look at the buildings in course of construction and you will find the McKelvey signs.

The Citizens' Committee also issued a statement declaring that through a printer's error its ballot had been signed "Republican City Committee instead of "Republican Citizens Committee.

"We feel that the printer owes us an apology for calling us the Republican City Committee, the "break the slate" group said.

Chairman Becker of the Republican City Committee responded today to Koeln's broadside, with a declaration that it is significant that whenever the Collector himself is a candidate for office "housecleaner" movements and the like are effectively squelched and Koeln is happy to have the support of the men "he now tries to tag as bosses." But, in other years, when the Koeln job is not in danger, it is different, said Becker.

"Two years ago when Mr. Koeln ran for re-election, when his tenure in office was threatened by Harry Salisbury and when he was begging for support from every quarter, he got it in plenty from men whom he now assails," Becker said. "But he now repudiates that support and with his usual modesty admits that he nominated and elected himself. What sort of meat does he eat nowadays that makes him so great?"

Gehner Sues Both Koeln and Schuler for $100,000 Damages.

Fred Gehner today filed two $100,000 damage suits in Circuit Court, one against City Collector Edmond Koeln, the other against City Marshal Anton Schuler, both based on the Koeln and Schuler charges that Gehner is in the Sheriff's race solely to split the vote Schuler would have had in his fight against Director of Public Safety McKelvey for the Republican nomination. The Koeln suit is based on an interview, the Schuler suit on a letter from Schuler to Sheriff Strodtman, both published today in St. Louis newspapers.

"I am in this race to win," declared Gehner to the Post-Dispatch. "I was not put in by any clique or group whatever. I have made a clean campaign, not having mentioned either Schuler or McKelvey, publicly or privately. I think this charge is the dirtiest kind of politics."

Koeln, asked about the suit, said, "I don't know anything about it. If he wants to sue I guess he can."

Sample Ballot Issued by Boss Essen in County.

The Boss Essen slate of Republican candidates favored by his St. Louis County organization made its appearance in Clayton today in the form of a sample ballot. Essen's selections were:

Lieutenant-Governor Hiram Lloyd for Governor; State Senator Phil A. Bennett of Springfield for Lieutenant-Governor; Charles U. Becker of Bolivar for Secretary of State; L. D. Thompson of New Bloomfield for Auditor; C. Eugene Stephens of Maplewood for Treasurer; Robert W. Otto of Washington for Attorney-General; Frank E. Atwood of Carrollton for Judge of the Supreme Court; Simon G. Nipper of Potosi for Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals; Cleveland A. Newton for Congress; Richard F. Ralph for State Senator; Alfred E. Wilson for member of the Legislature; William J. Preiss for Judge of the County Court; Fred E. Mueller for Prosecuting Attorney; Albert A. Wilmas for Sheriff; George M. Herpel for Assessor; Michael Eble for County Treasurer; Roy Jablonsky for Surveyor; Oliver G. Kohlmeyer for Public Administrator; John H. Sutter for Coroner; Charles H. Boenecke for Constable of Central township, and Gertrude LeMasters and Albert Autenreith for Committeemen.

Dr. B. W. Clark Offended by Republican Citizens' Slate.

Dr. B. W. Clarke, candidate for the Republican nomination for Coroner, today characterized an advertisement headed "Can We Break the Machine Slate?" being published by a group of men under the name, "Republican Citizens' Committee," as a "damnable and pernicious slander of candidates who have no political or machine connection."

The advertisement implies that all candidates not indorsed by it are "machine" candidates," Dr. Clarke asserted. He is not indorsed and denies he has "machine connections." The slate of candidates recommended in the advertisement has been indorsed by City Collector Koeln, a Republican factional leader. Dr. Clarke declared that the slate in the advertisement "presents, with one exception, only names of present office holders, and that one exception is a former office holder."

Negro Democrats Indorse H. S. Priest For Governorship.

The St. Louis Colored Democratic Club, in a communication signed by Harry J. Ridgeway, its secretary, today announced names of Democratic candidates indorsed by it. Ridgeway said he estimated there were 3600 negro Democratic votes in St. Louis.

The candidates approved were: Henry S. Priest for Governor; Mrs. Kate S. Morrow for Secretary of State; George H. Middelkamp for Auditor; Judge William H. Allen for Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals; James R. Claiborne and Robert J. Kirkwood for Circuit Judges; John E. Toolis for member of the Legislature; Andrew C. Maroney for Circuit Attorney; David D. Israel for Sheriff, and William H. O'Brien for Public Administrator.

NOTICE TO ELECTION JUDGES AND CLERKS

THE newspapers of this city have arranged, as usual, to compile the returns of the election in the rotunda of the City Hall so the public will be furnished with the result without waiting for the official count.

The police officers stationed at all the polling places have been supplied with blanks on which the returns should be copied as soon as they are completed. These blanks should be signed by the judges and turned over to the police officers for prompt delivery.

Lenine's Body Embalmed to Keep Life-Like Semblance for Years

Scientists Maintain New Process Is Better Than Egyptian or Modern Methods.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Aug. 4.—The body of Nikolai Lenine, the former soviet premier, which rests on a brilliant red velvet bier in a hermetically sealed glass-covered coffin, was exhibited to the American and other foreign newspaper men yesterday. The embalmers appear to have accomplished something of a scientific miracle in fortifying the tissues of the dead soviet leader against dissolution. All who knew Lenine in life say that in death he looks as natural and serene as on the day of his death.

Although the medical experts who embalmed the body say that neither wax nor any coloring material was used, the face appears normal in every way, there being no indication of pigmentation of the flesh, emaciation of the body or shrinkage of features. The embalmers even have contrived to impart a smile to the face.

The body of Lenine is dressed in a simple semi-military suit of a material resembling American khaki. His hands rest easily on the chest, but with the right hand clenched, which was characteristic of the revolutionary leader in life.

Entirely New Method.

Above the black and red coffin, with its pyramid-shaped glass canopy, is a set of fire axes and fire extinguisher apparatus. An armed "Red" soldier stands at the head of the bier and another at its foot.

Professor Sbarski of the Moscow institute of chemical science, who with Prof. Vorobeff of Kharkev University, carried out the four months embalming process, said today that neither the Egyptian nor any other foreign method of preservation had been adopted, but that for the first time in history a purely scientific chemical and medical formula, based on pathological research, had been employed.

The simple process of displacing the water content of the body by a strong chemical solution, containing glycerine, calcium and other elements, was used in embalming. The professor said experiments on human flesh had been made on bodies furnished by the Russian morgues and pathological institutes and that the results of these experiments were applied to the body of Lenine.

Preserves All Features.

According to Professor Sbarski, the Russian chemists had achieved a real triumph over the ancient Egyptian embalmers, in that the system evolved by the Russians made sure not only the preservations of the full contour of the body but the preservation of the features of the face. He contended that the Egyptians had succeeded only in mummifying bodies at the sacrifice of every trace of personality, while the latest Russian methods conserved everything lifelike.

If no marked change in temperature occurred in the tomb, said Prof. Sbarski, Lenine's body should last forever. At present the temperature in the mathsoleum is 16 degrees reamur (68 degrees Fahrenheit).

Prof. Sbarski said the entire cost of embalming the body of Lenin was only $7500, in striking contrast to the fortunes the Egyptians spent on the bodies of their pharoahs, nobles and high priests. A commission of experts who examined the body expressed the opinion that it would last in its present state from 30 to 40 years and perhaps longer.

The features of Linine are illuminated by an electric light, the strong rays accentuating the pallor of the face and emphasizing with garish effect the crimson bed on which the body rests. Already 15,000 persons have viewed the body. Their presence affected the temperature inside the tomb by raising it only one degree. This rise is not considered by the experts as dangerous.

SPEEDING AUTO HITS POLE; THREE MEN HURT

Youth Chases Ball Into Street and Is Run Down by Motor Car.

Three men were seriously injured when an automobile, in which they were speeding, attempted to pass another car and crashed against a telephone pole at Broadway and Cherokee street, at 6 a. m. yesterday. The driver, Frank J. Koch, 43, a saloon keeper of 3722 Delmar boulevard, suffered a skull fracture; Peter Flanagan, 24, of 2214 Sullivan avenue, a fractured left leg and brain concussion, and Leo Kennedy, 24, of 4409 Greer avenue, a fractured left jaw and skull injuries.

Hunter H. Barrow, 6719 Raymond avenue, escaped serious injury when his automobile collided with another at Broadway and Ferry street, last evening, but his mother, Mrs. Nina Barrow, 55, suffered lacerations and another passenger, Mrs. Elizabeth Lambert, 50, of 3505 Bell avenue, a skull fracture.

Police are investigating the case of Charles Anderson, 21, of 5078 Union boulevard, who was found at Taylor and Florissant avenues, last night, with a skull fracture and internal injuries. He is believed to have been struck by an automobile.

While playing handball at Ninth and O'Fallon streets, yesterday, Joseph Kelly, 16, of 1210 North Ninth street, chased a ball into the street and was struck by an automobile, suffering severe skull injuries.

Others injured in various automobile accidents were: Fred Kloepfinger Jr., 20, of 2021 Kosciusko street; Eugene Williams, 19, of 2418 North Broadway; Edward Diehl, 32, of 4502 Nebraska avenue; Robert Melville, 20, of 4662 Rosa avenue; Mrs. Lillian Fox, 32, of 317 North Boyle avenue.

PHYSICIAN IN AUTO KILLED WHEN STRUCK BY TRAIN

Dr. Charle E. Harnsberger Was Returning From Call Near Alhambra, Ill.

Dr. Charles E. Harnsberger, 60 years old, of Alhambra, Ill., was killed at 10:55 o'clock this morning when his automobile was struck and demolished by a Clover Leaf train at a crossing a mile out of Alhambra, as Dr. Harnsberger was returning from a visit to a patient.

Dr. Harnsberger was a native of Alhambra and had practiced there since his graduation in 1890 from the Missouri Medical College. He is survived by his widow and a son, Pogue.

DR. ROBERT ADCOX FORMALLY SENTENCED TO TWO YEARS

Dr. Robert Adcox of 4144 Delmar boulevard was formally sentenced to two years in the penitentiary by Circuit Judge Ittner, today, the punishment having been assessed by a jury, June 18.

Dr. Adcox was convicted of bribery, the charge being based on the payment of $35 by him to B. H. Jolly, County Superintendent of Schools of St. Charles County, for signing false certificates of scholastic grades, for the use of candidates for medical diplomas.

Upon the passing of formal sentence, Dr. Adcox filed an appeal bond.

STONE FINDS NO PROOF OF ANTHRACITE TRUST

Attorney - General Makes Known Result of Inquiry Into New England Coal Trade.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-22 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Attorney-General Stone has informed Representative Rogers of Massachusetts that investigation by the Department of Justice failed to show any evidence that the anthracite coal operators are violating the law in charging exorbitant prices for the delivery of the product to New England consumers.

He added that no immediate action toward prosecuting anthracite interests is likely to be taken unless damaging evidence is revealed. No evidence has been obtained of combination or monopoly to create a shortage and exact high prices.

Just before Rogers left Washington early in July he urged the Attorney-General to look into the anthracite situation and determine whether responsibility could be fixed for the shortage of fuel and the exorbitant prices in New England.

"Mining, transportation and sale of anthracite, so far as the files of the Department of Justice show, are carried on without violation of the Federal anti-trust laws," Rogers said yesterday. "At least there has been no evidence brought to light by the department's investigators upon which could be based any court action.

"If any such evidence is brought to my attention now or hereafter, I will promptly lay it before the Department of Justice and urge it to take drastic action."

Attorney-General Stone's letter to Rogers said: "Since your recent visit I have given some consideration to the anthracite coal situation. I find that last winter's investigation did not find sufficient evidence to base a prosecution of purchasers and distributers of anthracite under the Federal statutes. Moreover, the department has not at the present any substantial evidence of a combination or monopoly in the transporting and selling of this commodity that would justify the institution of proceedings. It goes without saying that if you have any such evidence, or can indicate the sources from which such evidence may be obtained, the department will be glad to consider and develop the same.

"As you know, decrees are now being carried into execution looking to the separation of the Lehigh Valley and Philadelphia & Reading Railroads from their coal properties. I am glad to say that under the direction of the able and high-minded trustees appointed by these decrees, these segregations are proceeding satisfactorily."

MAN SHOOTS STEPSON AFTER FAMILY RO[W]

Earl East, 42, Also Clubs Wi[fe] With Revolver in Olive Street Rooming House.

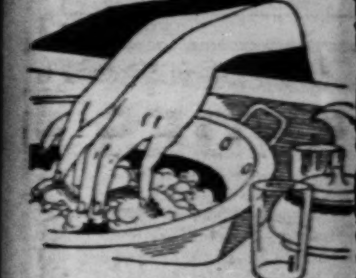

George Smith, 24 years old, residing with his mother, Mrs. Le[na] East, in a rooming house at 20[..] Olive street, was shot twice and seriously wounded by his step-father, Earl East, 42, at 7:15 a.m. today, following a quarrel in which Smith sided with his mother.

Mrs. East, 40, keeper of th[e] rooming house, was beaten on the head with a revolver by East in the affray and suffered bruises and scalp wounds. She and Smith were taken to City Hospital. Ea[st] hailed a passing taxicab and escaped before the police arrived.

Smith, suffering from wounds [in] the right side and right arm, was found by a watchman a few minutes after the shooting, sitting on a curbstone on Twenty-first street between Pine and Olive. According to his story, East fired on him as he lay in bed in his room and then pursued him as he ran from the house, firing two more shots. The quarrel, he said, began Saturday over division of the proceeds from the sale of the rooming house. At that time East was arrested on a charge of beating his wife and released on bond to appear in Police Court today.

This morning the trouble afresh began when East, who had been drinking drove up to the house in an automobile and entered with [a] revolver, demanding to see his stepson. Mrs. East met him in the hall and attempted to dissuade him from injuring her son, but was struck on the head with the weapon and driven from the house with Mrs. Lydia Butts, a roomer who was awakened by the quarrel. East then entered Smith's room on the first floor and fired at his stepson, ordering him to get up. When Smith fled out the rear door, East followed and fired two more shots, the bullets taking effect in the right forearm and the right side of the abdomen.

Roomers at the house said the Easts had been quarreling for several days and exhibited acid stains on a linoleum where they said East had tried to empty a bottle of liquid on his wife Saturday. The police seized East's automobile which he had left standing in front of the house.

GOOD LUMBER

There is only ONE Ru-Ber-Oid Roofing

TODAY RU-BER-OID occupies a unique position among roofings—a position which, once in a great while, some particular article achieves in its field.

Due to its high quality, and also to the fact that it was the first—and for many years the only—ready-roofing on the market, and due to the unrivaled service it has given users in all parts of the world, RU-BER-OID has become the standard by which ready-roofing must be judged.

RU-BER-OID is a copyrighted brand name.

There are hundreds of brands of ready-roofing on the market. They look very much alike, but vary greatly in quality and slightly in price.

All RU-BER-OID roofing is labeled with the RU-BER-OID man in a red circle. It is distributed in St. Louis and St. Louis County only by the Goodfellow Lumber Company.

RU-BER-OID roofing or shingles applied over Goodfellow lumber gives lasting satisfaction.

'REDS' JAR MEMORIAL TO GERMAN WAR DEAD

Berlin Communists Precipitate Fight at First Official Observance of Conflict Since Armistice.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—For the first time since the armistice, Germany yesterday officially remembered the World War, begun 10 years ago. In a ceremony outside the Reichstag, designed as a memorial to the German soldier dead, German generals, glittering with imperial decorations, and Reichswehr infantry, stepping to the strains of old war songs, held the attention of a crowd of 100,000. If a band of Communists had not made the demonstration an occasion for a revolutionary uproar, the soldiers would have been the whole show.

The "Red" manifestation began at noon, when a hush fell on the big crowd. This silence was meant to last two minutes, during which all movement was halted throughout the Reich. The Moscow disturbers, however, immediately raised their voices in singing the "Internationale," coupled with yells of "Down with the capitalist war!" "Long live the soviets!" "Down with the murderous Reichswehr!"

The police reserves, held in readiness for such an occurrence, charged into the communist section of the crowd with black jacks and rifle butts. One policeman was stabbed in the melee, and a dozen persons wounded. Forty-five ring leaders, including several young women, were arrested. Minor battles between the "reds" and the disciples of Gen. Ludendorff added to the confusion.

Throughout this scene, President Ebert, surrounded by members of his Cabinet and the Generals, stood silently on the steps of the Reichstag. When the two minutes' silence was over, military bands drowned the communist chant with "Deutschland Ueber Alles," in the singing of which the crowd joined, while, throughout Germany, flags were hoisted from half-mast to full-mast.

Hermann Suderman, German dramatist, caused a small disturbance by trying to eject several American correspondents from the press enclosure, near the presidential enclosure, because they were wearing light suits, and not black coats and silk hats.

"We swear today," said President Ebert in the course of his speech, "that we will do all in our power to help Germany resume her proper place among the nations. Let us swear to build, in memory of our dead and our sacrifices, a memorial more permanent than iron—a free Germany."

WOMAN HELD FOR OBSERVATION AFTER HER HUSBAND DIES

Mrs. Madja Zepp, 42 years old, was taken to city hospital for observation yesterday morning, after her actions attracted the attention of policemen and two physicians, who had gone to her home to treat her husband, Fred W. Zepp, 74.

Mrs. Zepp would not let the doctors see her husband when they first called, but they returned later with patrolmen. An examination of Zepp disclosed he had died an hour earlier from heart disease. The physicians said Mrs. Zepp's manner had been noticed by them on previous visits.

ATTORNEY GENERAL
—OF—
MISSOURI

He is endorsed by judges and lawyers in St. Louis and throughout the State.

Four years ago in Democratic Primary for Attorney General he was nominated, and carried 96 out of 114 counties in Missouri.

In the November election of that year he led the entire Democratic State ticket.

Judge Charles B. Faris, United States Judge at St. Louis, says of him:

"I have been personally acquainted with W. H. Meredith, of Poplar Bluff, for many years. He has enjoyed a large, dignified and lucrative practice as a lawyer and his legal ability is conceded wherever he is known. His standing as a man, a citizen and gentleman is above any sort of reproach."

He will be courageous, able and fearless in the discharge of his duty as Attorney General.

YOUTH SLAIN, ANOTHER SHOT BY SALOON MAN

East St. Louisan Says He Fired in Self-Defense After Being Attacked.

James Flannery, 23 years old, of 3627 Cook avenue, St. Louis, was killed, and Charles Cleven, 22, of 131A St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis, was critically wounded in a fight with A. G. Green, in the latter's saloon at 101 North Third street, East St. Louis, yesterday.

Green fired four revolver shots, all of which took effect, after the two men had beaten him with a gas pipe, he said. Flannery and Cleven each received two wounds in the abdomen, and Flannery died at 11 p. m. at St. Mary's Hospital, where Cleven is under treatment.

According to Green and his bartender, Daniel Kneemeyer, the trouble started in the forenoon when Flannery and Cleven, frequenters of the saloon, stole Green's automobile from in front of the place. It was wrecked in a collision at Fairmont City, near East St. Louis, where the two men told authorities they had borrowed it, and were released.

Kneemeyer said Green was asleep at 2 p. m. when the two men walked into the saloon, apparently intoxicated, and insisted on seeing Green. When Green entered the bar, one of the men seized a four-foot gas pipe, used as a door prop, and without warning, struck the barkeeper on the head.

"I crawled to a shelf and got my revolver while they were beating on me," Green told the police. "I fired at close range in self-defense. I shot to save my life."

Green was treated for a dislocated shoulder and lacerated scalp and is held without bond pending the inquest in Flannery's death.

HENKE DENIED BOND PENDING PRELIMINARY HEARING AUG. 12

Circuit Judge Wurdeman Passes on Motion for Accused Man's Release.

Harry A. Henke of Richmond Heights, charged in a warrant with the murder of his wife, Marie Henke, will not be admitted to bond, pending his preliminary hearing Aug. 12, Circuit Judge Wurdeman announced today at Clayton.

A motion for Henke's release on bond was filed Saturday by Henke's counsel, Fred Berthold. The Judge passed on it today without waiting for the lawyer to appear. He said that the question of bond was one to be settled by the preliminary hearing, and that he would not prejudge the outcome of that hearing. Justice Stecker is to conduct the hearing.

Man Found Dead in Freight Car.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 4.—The body of a man, with his jaw broken and marks of violence about the head, was found in a Nickel Plate freight car, two miles east of here today. An employe's pass, of the Ford Motor Co., Detroit, was found in his clothing, and a meal ticket in his pocket was made out to Harry Anamis, of 54 Manchester street, but with no city indicated.

Police believe the man was assaulted and later put into the box car. A small sum of money and a watch were found in his clothing.

Explosion Kills Three Miners.

DRUMHULLER, Alberta, Aug. 4.—Three coal miners were killed and another miner was gassed when an explosion, caused by gas occurred at the Midland Collieries mine here Saturday while the people of the town were watching an "anti-war" parade.

SKIN INFECTION CLEARED IN LESS THAN WEEK!

Says Mercirex Has No Equal. Stopped Itching, Cleared Skin.

MERCIREX CREAM GUARANTEED

"As a treatment for skin disorders, Mercirex has no equal. It cured a troublesome infection on my skin in less than a week. My skin is now soft and clear, and free from itching. At the first appearance of a blemish I apply Mercirex. In the morning it is completely gone."

Mercirex heals the worst cases of eczema, pimples, blackheads, boils, itch, etc.

You don't take a single chance! Mercirex is guaranteed to clear your skin—or you get your money back! We can make this iron-clad guarantee because we've put Mercirex to the hardest tests. We asked physicians in our state to use it on their worst cases of skin infection. Mercirex cleared up every case.

Do not suffer the embarrassment of treating your skin with uncertain, greasy, messy, smelly surface ointments of the patent medicine type. Use Mercirex—a professional remedy—that penetrates through the outside skin to the true skin, acting on the real nucleus of your trouble.

Mercirex vanishes. Put it on and go to a dance. Wear your best linen, the most delicate fabrics—Mercirex will not stain or soil. It has just a faint fragrance that women like and men never notice.

Here's your opportunity to free your skin of embarrassing, humiliating blemishes. Ask your druggist for Mercirex Cream to-day—only 75 cents—and your money back if you are not relieved! Begin its use at once. Write to The L. D. Caulk Company, Milford, Del., for free book on the care of the skin. Special package of Mercirex Cream and Soap, value $1.55, for $1.25.

MRS. FERGUSON BEGINS RUN-OFF FIGHT THIS WEEK

Texas Voters Will Select Her or Robertson for Governorship on Aug. 23

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 4.—Judge Felix Robertson of Dallas and Mrs. Miram Ferguson of Temple will begin their final campaigns this week for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Mrs. Ferguson is the first woman to make the race for the governorship in Texas, and one of the two will be nominated at the run-off primary Aug. 23.

Mrs. Ferguson, who was second in the July 26 primary, will open her campaign in Dallas Wednesday and will carry it into the cities and sections of the State where Judge Robertson, the Ku Klux Klan-indorsed candidate and high man in the recent primary, polled his heaviest vote. Her husband, James A. Ferguson, former Governor, will manage the campaign and will make the majority of the addresses. Robertson will open his campaign at Wichita Falls Tuesday.

Mrs. Ferguson will continue her campaign along the lines she followed for the first primary, appealing for nomination so that the Ferguson name will be vindicated from the impeachment of her husband in his second term as Governor. She says she is not a candidate through any great desire to hold public office, and that she will not seek office again if "our prayers for vindication are answered."

She has declared herself for a strict enforcement of the prohibition law and for a better educational system.

Regarding prohibition she said since the July primary that the legal saloon was bad enough but "the modern bootlegging drug store is a disgrace to the country." She promised to "use every power vested in me as Governor to have the prohibition laws enforced in letter and spirit, tempered only with justice and humanity."

ONE OUT OF TWO WINTER DAYS FAVORABLE TO BUILDING

Survey of St. Louis Weather as Affecting Contractors Made by Department of Commerce.

St. Louis weather offers contractors and builders slightly more than one day out of two for work in the five-month winter season from Nov. 1 to March 31, a survey, covering records of the last 10 years, shows. The study was made by the Department of Commerce to determine to what extent building might be pushed during the winter months.

Sixty-five days out of 125 in the period selected have been free of rain or freezing temperature during the working hours. The report of the survey says that the placing of steel, concrete and masonry work may be carried on in inclement weather, if shelters are provided and materials properly prepared.

Construction in the United States amounts to more than $5,000,000,000 annually, the report says, and points out that the men employed in the work have only three to five months of steady employment and never work more than nine months in the year.

The number of inclement weather days out of 125 in other cities was reported as follows: St. Paul, 106.40; Denver, 83.70; Chicago, 74.20; Boston, 74.60; New York, 67.50, and Atlanta, 27.35 days.

CARS TO BE ADDED HERE TO SPECIAL TRAIN TO MEXICO

American Industrial Mission to That Country to Pass Through St. Louis in September.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—E. M. Herr, president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., has accepted the chairmanship of the committee which is organizing the American industrial mission to Mexico of 1924, for the American Manufacturers' Export Association, William Wallace Nichols, president of the association, announced. Frank D. Waterman, president of the L. E. Waterman company, is vice chairman. The mission is scheduled to leave New York City on Sept. 8 on a special train, adding cars at St. Louis. The Americans will be met at Laredo, on the border, by Mayor Raya of Mexico City and other Mexican officials, who will convey the visitors in a special train to the capital. Here, in addition to many conferences with business and industrial leaders, the program will consist of excursions and entertainments, including an official dinner given by the President of Mexico.

Butler Forms a Regiment.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—An infantry regiment of two battalions, one of police and the other of firemen, is being organized by Director of Public Safety Butler. The primary purpose of the regiment, the Director said today, was to instill public interest in the police athletic games by holding parades, but he added that it would also serve as an emergency unit in case of serious outbreaks.

HUGHES, IN BERLIN, SAYS "EUROPE HAS TURNED CORNER"

Tells Correspondents Dawes Report Initiates New Era —Hints Germany Will Carry It Out.

MEETS HEADS OF GERMAN NATION

Some Express Doubt That Reichstag Will Pass Necessary Legislation if Ruhr Occupation Continues.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—"The Dawes report initiates a new era and its execution is absolutely essential to the reconstruction of the shattered post-war economics," Secretary Hughes told the American correspondents today.

While earnestly endeavoring to maintain his "official incognito," the secretary nevertheless was willing to admit his conviction that the skies were brightening and that he believed "Europe has turned the corner."

Hughes made only a slight allusion to the conversations he had had in Berlin, although he hinted he was convinced Germany was fully prepared to go through with the Dawes report.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

BERLIN, Aug. 4. — Secretary Hughes arrived here Sunday morning and lost no time in impressing on President Ebert and members of the German Cabinet the importance of making the Dawes plan effective at the speediest possible moment.

The Germans assured him of their desire to put the plan into operation with the minimum of delay, but pointed out that certain decisions of the London conference run counter to the German interpretation of the spirit and text of the Dawes recommendations.

Secretary Hughes intimated that it was his conviction full opportunity would be accorded the German representatives to discuss the application of the plan with the allied statesmen.

Secretary Hughes was met at the station by Baron Maltzan, permanent under-secretary of the Foreign Office, and American Ambassador Houghton and the embassy staff. Neither the Chancellor nor the Foreign Minister were present as they were engaged, it was explained, in preparations for their departure for London.

An official of the German Foreign Office made a neat curtsy as he passed over a sheaf of roses to Mrs. Hughes. Outside the station several hundred persons crowded about the motor car which Hughes was to use and which soon took him down Wilhemstrasse to the American Embassy.

A swarm of secret service men surrounded the Secretary as soon as he set foot on the platform and let it be known they would accompany him wherever he went.

Calls on President Ebert.

The visitor, whose visit was hailed with joy by the entire Berlin press, called on President Ebert half an hour before the time fixed for the official luncheon given in his honor by the President. Ambassador Houghton and Baron Maltzan were interpreters during Hughes' conversation with his host, which is described by German officialdom as "highly important."

After the luncheon, at which all the members of the Marx Cabinet were present, the Secretary talked briefly with the Chancellor and with Herr Stresemann.

Last night, after a dinner given by Ambassador Houghton, another longer conference took place. The New York World and the Post-Dispatch learn that the German chiefs expressed doubt whether the Reichstag would pass the legislation enacting the Dawes plan if the French persisted in remaining two years longer in the Ruhr. A continuance of the occupation that long, they said, was opposed to the restoration of German sovereignty in the occupied area, envisaged by Dawes and his associates.

Distinguished Guests at Dinner.

Among the guests at the dinner were Gen. von Seeckt, commander of the Reichswehr; Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank; Prof. Hoetricht, the nationalist leader; Prof. Walter Nernst, the physicist, who in 1921 received the Nobel Prize, and a number of Government officials, well-known financiers and industrialists. The Countess Szechenyi, formerly Gladys Vanderbilt of New York, also was among the guests.

Save for his visit to President Ebert, Hughes remained all day at the American embassy and saw

BOTH COOLIDGE AND DAVIS 'UNACCEPTABLE TO LABOR,' SAYS A. F. OF L. COUNCIL

Text of Report in Which Candidacies of La Follette and Wheeler Are Indorsed and Old Party Platforms Denounced.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 4.—Heads of the American Federation of Labor made public yesterday their indorsement of the platform of the Cleveland Conference for Progressive Political Action and that convention's nominees—La Follette for President and Wheeler for Vice President.

The document is a denunciation of the Republican and Democratic platforms. The former party is charged with having "flaunted the desires of labor in an arrogant manner," the latter with having flaunted labor's desires with "that evasiveness which is the customary mark of insincerity."

Both parties are asserted to be "morally bankrupt" and manipulated by "machine politicians" who have involved the nation in "moral obliquity and unashamed betrayal."

Coolidge and Dawes, and Davis and Bryan are dismissed as "unacceptable to labor."

Thus, in the language of the text, "there remains the candidacy of Robert M. La Follette and Burton K. Wheeler; the first an independent Republican; the second an independent Democrat, running as such."

Those candidates, it continues, "have proferred a platform in which the economic issues of the day are met in a manner more nearly conforming to labor's proposals than any other."

Although it does not conform to the federation's proposals on international issues—specifically the League of Nations—the La Follette-Wheeler platform is held to come more closely to the federation's lineup on domestic issues than either of the major party platforms.

Platform Plank Approved.

In the platform of the candidates it has indorsed, the federation finds pledges for favorable action on its chief demands—relief from injunctions, abolition of the Railroad Labor Board, curtailment of the Supreme Court's power, prompt ratification of the child labor amendment, direct election of President, Vice President and Federal Judges. These and a few other of the planks of the platform are cited as justification for supporting it and its sponsors.

"Our course is clear," is the conclusion. "In pointing to the platform and records of the independent candidates, we do so with the confidence that no other course can be pursued if we are to remain true to our convictions and our traditions. Those who are hostile to labor must be opposed."

Care is taken, however, to make plain that the American Federation of Labor indorses only La Follette and Wheeler and their platform. It distinctly does not wish to be identified as the pledged backer of candidates for other offices who may have La Follette and Wheeler as chief, under the standard of a third national party.

Not Indorsement of Groups.

The action of the council is not a pledge of identification with an independent party movement or a third party, it is asserted, and "neither can this co-operation imply our support, acceptance or indorsement of policies or principles, advocated by any minority groups or organizations that may see fit to support the candidacies of Senators La Follette and Wheeler."

The report, prepared by the National Nonpartisan Political Campaign Committee of the American Federation of Labor, was adopted unanimously Saturday by the Executive Council of that organization in annual session at the Hotel Ambassador in Atlantic City. It was recorded verbatim as offered, but the labor leaders reported that minor stenographic errors caused the delay of a day between its adoption and its publication.

An informal ballot prior to the official action was said to have revealed that six of the council were for the report and four against it unless revised, with Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor and chairman of the council, not indicating how he would vote. He joined, however, in the later unanimous adoption of the report.

Text of Indorsement.

The text of the "conclusions and recommendations" for the indorsement of the candidacies of La Follette and Wheeler follows:

The Executive Committee of the American Federation of Labor National Nonpartisan Political Campaign Committee presented labor's proposals to the Republican convention.

The Republican convention gave labor's representatives a brief and curt hearing. The Republican platform ignores entirely the injunction issue. It fails to deal with labor's right to organize or the right of the workers, even in self-defense, collectively to cease work. That platform sustains the Railroad Labor Board, with all that it means in the direction of governmental coercion of wage earners. It fails to recommend the ratification by the states of the child labor constitutional amendment.

The Republican convention nominated candidates unacceptable to labor.

Its candidate for Vice President is one of the most outspoken enemies of labor and is the founder of an organization dedicated to the task of writing into all political platforms planks calling for the anti-union shop—an organization which also encouraged and supported the Daugherty injunction against the railroad shopmen.

Criticises Democratic Platform.

Labor's representatives submitted to the Democratic convention identical proposals to those submitted to the Republican convention. At the convention an extended hearing was granted. The Democratic platform pledges that party to legislation to regulate hours and conditions of all labor, a proposal against which the American Federation of Labor has struggled throughout its whole history. It is silent as to the injunction. It does not meet the Railroad Labor Board issue. On that point it is so equivocal that the enemies of labor may well feel that their desires will be met. It, too, fails to recommend the ratification by the states of the child labor constitutional amendment.

The Democratic convention nominated candidates unacceptable to labor.

"Arrogance" and "Insincerity."

As to the candidates and platforms, both the Republican and the Democratic national party conventions flaunted the desires of Labor—the Republican convention in an arrogant manner, the Democratic convention by evasiveness which is the customary mark of insincerity.

There remains the candidacy of Robert M. La Follette and Burton K. Wheeler, the first an independent Republican; the second an independent Democrat, running as such.

These candidates have proferred a platform in which the economic issues of the day are met in a manner more nearly conforming to Labor's proposals than any other platform.

This platform pledges a remedy for the injunction evil.

It pledges the right to organize and collectively to cease work.

It pledges protection of the rights of free speech, free press and free assemblage.

It pledges abolishment of the railroad labor board.

It pledges a measure to annul the power of the Supreme Court to declare laws permanently unconstitutional.

It declares for direct election of President and Vice President and election of Federal Judges.

It recommends prompt ratification by the states of the child labor constitutional amendment.

It pledges subsequent Federal legislation to protect child life.

On international issues this platform does not conform to Labor's proposals, but it does more fully than any other political platform meet Labor's views in relation to domestic economic issues.

We cannot do other than point out this fact together with the further and perhaps more important fact that the candidates, La Follette and Wheeler have, throughout their whole political careers, stood steadfast in defense of the rights and interests of the wage earners and the farmers.

Betrayal by Political Machines.

We cannot fail to observe that both Republican and Democratic parties through manipulated control are in a condition of moral bankruptcy which constitutes a menace and a peril to our country and its institutions. Machine politicians have brought upon our country moral obliquity and unashamed betrayal. We are judging on the basis of the condition which exists and this judgment will be reversed only when the conditions upon which it is based are changed.

Service to the people is a noble cause which demands consecration and the American labor movement demands that there be that consecration in candidates to whom it gives support.

Our course is clear. In pointing to the platform and records of the independent candidates, we do so with the confidence that no other course can be pursued, if we are to remain true to our convictions and our traditions. Those who are hostile to labor and to the people generally and who devoted their energies to the service of reaction and special interests, must be opposed.

We call upon the wage earners and the great masses of the people everywhere who stand for freedom, justice, democracy and human progress, to rally in this campaign to the end that the representatives of reaction and special interests may be defeated and the faithful friends and servants of the masses elected.

Not a Party Affiliation.

Co-operation hereby urged is not a pledge of identification with an independent party movement or a third party, nor can it be construed as support for such a party, group or movement except as such action accords with our nonpartisan political policy. We do not accept government as the solution of the problems of life. Major problems of life and labor must be dealt with by voluntary groups and organizations, of which trade unions are an essential and integral part.

Neither can this co-operation imply our support, acceptance or indorsement of policies or principles advocated by any minority groups or organizations that may see fit to support the candidacies of Senator La Follette and Wheeler.

"In the campaign to elect to Congress, regardless of their political group or party affiliation, men deserving of Labor's support there must be unity of purpose and method, therefore leadership must lie with the only organization which has the right to speak for the entire labor movement. In this the American Federation of Labor yields to none, but will maintain steadfast its leadership, guidance and direction.

"In the selection and election of men to public office within the several states leadership must lie with our State Federations of Labor and in city or county elections this right must rest with central labor bodies.

"Organized labor owes allegiance to no political party or group. It is not partisan to any political party or group. It is partisan to principles—the principles of freedom, of justice, of democracy.

Duty of Trade Unionists.

It is the duty of the trade unionists, their friends and sympathizers, and all lovers of freedom, justice and democratic ideals and institutions to unite in defeating those seeking public office who are indifferent or hostile to the peoples' rights and interests. It is the duty of all to support such candidates to

LA FOLLETTE WIRES THANKS TO GOMPERS

Says Importance of Labor Indorsement "Cannot Be Overestimated."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Senator La Follette sent a telegram today to Sampel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, expressing "deep appreciation" for the indorsement given his independent candidacy for President by the Federation's Executive Committee." The telegram follows:

"I desire to express my deep appreciation for the action taken by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor in indorsing the independent candidacy of Senator Wheeler and myself. In taking this step, after deliberate judgment, the American Federation of Labor has adhered to its traditional non-partisan policy. The importance of the support by the American Federation of Labor for the Progressive ticket cannot be overestimated.

"Your Executivee Committee, in stating the American Federation's political purpose says: 'Organized labor owes allegiance to no political party or group. It is not partisan to any political party or group. It is partisan to principles—the principals of freedom, justice and democracy.' It seems to me that in this brief paragraph you have set forth a creed of citizenship which, if accepted and acted upon by the great body of common citizens, would rapidly make the Government of our country what it was intended to be, the peoples' own instrument of service.

"I have, in my public record, attested my accord with the aspirations of American wage earners as represented by the American Federation of Labor. I welcome this indorsement.

"To break the combined power of selfish interests upon Government, is the paramount issue of this campaign, and with the support of organized labor, the farmer, business men, professional men, and all other men and women whose sole interest in Government is that of good citizenship, I feel confident we shall win."

Trainmen's Brotherhood Did Not Join La Follette Indorsement.

PORTSMOUTH, Va., Aug. 4.—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainment, as a national organization, did not join the American Federation of Labor in indorsing the presidential candidacy of Senator La Follette, and almost certainly will not do so, W. Has Man Mastered Ether?

Nickel-in-the-Slot Contact With the World Will Be Reality With Perfection of New Radio Marvels

Marconi, Hammond and Other Short-Wave Inventions May Link Civilized World.

By ERNEST BRENNECKE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Tomorrow, Mr. Smith, a New York business man, may ring up "foreign radio," and converse with Mr. Jones, his associate in London, or with Mr. Brown, his partner in Singapore, as casually as he now calls Chicago or Philadelphia. He will probably find it cheaper, quicker and more efficient to do this than to send a cablegram. Tomorrow, he may lift his telephone receiver from the hook and speak to Mr. Adams on board the Twentieth Century Limited, speeding through the Eastern country at 60 miles an hour, or to Mr. Dupont, who is flying by plane somewhere between Bucharest and Constantinople.

Tomorrow, Mr. Adams, in his parlor-car chair, may listen to San Francisco's or Vienna's public broadcast program. At home in Akron, O., he may put a quarter in his "radio meter" and tune in the "narrow-cast" exclusive matter, sent out from the low-power stations at Paris, Sydney, Manchester or Munich. Tomorrow, complete newspaper pages may be "flashed" across oceans and continents in a few seconds' time, and ships at sea may keep steadily to courses marked by invisible radio beams.

All this may be realized tomorrow—that is, in probably not more than a few months from now.

Today there are 600 broadcasting stations, reaching perhaps 12,000,000 listeners in the United States alone, and ships at sea are in constant wireless communication with other ships, and with shore stations, safeguarding thousands of voyagers' lives. Today, international radio corporations are already competing seriously with commercial cable companies. Pictures as well as sounds are traveling through the ether. Loud speakers are being installed in motor cars and railway carriages.

Only yesterday none of this was dreamed of, save by the most sanguine of scientists. A mere score of years ago communication between two distant points, without the use of wires to connect sender and receiver, ranked with transmutation of lead into gold, and with the elixir of life, as a wild fancy, impossible of realization. The world has only begun to adjust itself to the established miracles of radio.

Other Radio Marvels Are Due to Follow.

More marvels are soon to follow. The most recent developments and announcements in the field promise immediate and far-reaching effects on the entire world.

It was in 1903 that Guglielmo Marconi, the foremost figure identified with wireless, announced the accomplished fact of the transmission of messages through the air in a lecture at the Hall of the Horatii and Cruiatii, in Rome. At that time he boldly predicted radio communication between the most distant points on the earth's surface. This has not been achieved, through the construction of superpowerful stations, throwing out long waves, varying from a half mile to 20 miles in length.

A little over a year ago Senator Marconi gave out another announcement. He said he had perfected plans and apparatus for the long distance transmission of very low-powered waves, not "broadcast," but shot out in narrow beams, thereby achieving increased speed, low costs and absolute secrecy, making the wireless a potent rival to the transoceanic cable.

Shortly after this announcement, radiogram traffic was discontinued at the Marconi station at Poldhu, situated at the tip of Cornwall, and the Carnarvon station handled all transatlantic messages. Marconi himself set out in his specially constructed experimental yacht, the "Elettra," taking with him his mysterious new apparatus. His assistant, Mr. Franklin, kept in touch with him at Poldhu. The "Elettra" cruised down the western coast of Europe and Africa, around the Cape of Good Hope and into Asiatic waters. Exhaustive experiments were conducted.

Franklyn suddenly appeared in London and went into conference with Alexander Gray of the British Marconi Co. A brief announcement was given out to the newspapers, saying that phenomenal success had been attained with short radio waves. More information was promised to the public as soon as the discoveries could be adequately protected by patents.

Much significance was attached to the fact that many radio contracts were cancelled, and construction of several high-powered sending stations was ordered suspended. Mr. Gray admitted that waves only one meter long had been employed, and sent in any desired direction with amazing results.

In ordinary broadcast communication, he pointed out, there was a radiation efficiency of only 2 per cent, and 98 per cent of the power was lost in transmission. Marconi he announced, had already attained an efficiency of 60 to 70 per cent, and he hoped to raise this to 98 per cent.

Static Almost Completely Eliminated.

In addition, "static" had been almost completely eliminated, making it possible to communicate day or night, and under all weather conditions. Distance, cheapness, secrecy and reliability had all been achieved together.

A few days ago, Marconi again appeared at the Hall of the Horatii and Curatii. Again he announced, and again he prophesied, "by the use of short wave lengths," he said, in effect, "by which I mean waves measured in meters or even in centimeters, instead of hundreds of thousands of meters, and by sending these waves in directed beams like those of searchlights, the following advantages are now within our grasp:

"First, due to the low power required, the first cost of sending stations will be reduced by 90 per cent.

"Second, due to increased speed, one small station will be able to do the work of several large ones of the present type.

"Third, continuous service throughout the 24 hours of every day can be maintained

"Fourth, the greater ranges of workable wave-length bands and beams, will permit a larger number of stations to be installed, without any danger of their interfering with one another.

"All this will certainly lead to the scrapping, in the near future, of all the high-power stations now in existence, and the substitution of small, cheap stations. The rates now charged for commercial wireless messages will be materially redu-

"At first 12 kilowatts of power were used at Poldhu. (Large stations employ as many as 200 kilowatts). These 'weak' signals were picked up by the "Elettra" at a distance of 4000 kilometers. They were so strong that they drowned out all static discharges and atmospheric discharges, and were far superior to the usual 200-kilowatt messages. The power was then reduced to one kilowatt. Even this was found sufficient to maintain communications. With a wave length of 90 meters, two or three kilowatts were found to be quite sufficient for communication regularly across the Atlantic Ocean.

"The most notable experiment was conducted on May 30 of this year. Using only 28 kilowatts, the human voice at Poldhu was picked up, loud, clear and uniform, by the Australian wireless company's station at Sydney."

It is now expected that regular service of this kind will be established between England and Australia within six months.

A curious observation made by Marconi is that free waves, sent from Poldhu in the morning, travel over the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans to Sydney, covering a distance of 22,000 kilometers. But, if they are sent in the afternoon or evening, they travel over Europe and Asia and cover a distance of only 17,000 kilometers. The reason for this has not been explained.

Marconi Secrets Guarded by Patents.

Secrecy Will Guard Conversations — Cost Will Drop as Low-Power Developments Increases.

to how they attain their results is still carefully guarded. American scientists and engineers, however, have been steadily working along similar lines, and surprises may soon be expected.

At the United States Bureau of Standards, in Washington, for instance, short-wave directional apparatus has been independently developed, and will shortly be applied to novel uses. A low-power station, small and compact, sending out a 40-meter wave, has been placed inside a "wave reflector," which sends out a well-defined parallel beam of comparatively enormous power. This reflector consists of a series of vertical wires, arranged in the form of a parabola. It takes up the waves emitted from the small antenna of the sending set, and re-radiates them in any desired direction.

The Bureau of Standards has built several small transmitters of this type for the United States lighthouse department. One of them has been installed on a buoy, and anchored off Staten Island, New York. During foggy weather, the apparatus is automatically set in operation. Its beam signals may be easily recognized by any ship's radio receiver. Directed along the channel, through which all vessels must proceed, it enables ocean traffic to keep away from all dangerous reefs, shallows, and rocks.

It is now proposed to chart two safe paths through New York harbor, always a difficult place to navigate, especially in darkness and fog. A buoy-sent beam, of one-way length, will be sent along the outgoing path, and one, of a slightly different wave length, along the incoming path. The possibility of collisions and other marine disasters will thereby be greatly minimized. If all the dangerous waters along the American coasts are similarly protected, such occurrences as the recent collision between the sound steamer, "Boston," and the tanker, "Swift Arrow," in which four lives were lost and many more endangered, would become virtually impossible. A ship's operator would pick up the buoy signals. As long as he continued to hear them, he would know that the vessel was on the right course. If they ceased, he would instantly inform the captain, and the course would be rectified.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has been using short waves for some time in its regular broadcasting system. These waves, although non-directional, are of proved efficiency. Station KDKA, at East Pittsburg, Pa., not only broadcasts its programs with long audible waves for its own district, but also sends them out over a special 107 metre wave-length. This secondary wave is picked up by Station KFKX, at Hastings, Neb., and also by Station QUAC at Manchester, England, from which points it is re-broadcast for western American and English listeners on the usual broadcast wave bands.

Plan to Link World With Short Waves.

Speaking before the World Power Conference, held in London a few days ago, W. J. Brown of Metropolitan cities, Great Britain, and Dr. W. H. Easton of the Westinghouse Co., predicted that the whole civilized world will soon be linked up by a system of short-wave connection, and re-broadcasting such as that now in operation.

From the Radio Corporation of America come even more significant intimations as to what the future will bring. John Hays Hammond Jr., vice president of the corporation, recently returned from a two months' visit to Europe, and made some important statements. The first of these is concerned with Hammond's invention of a "narrow-casting" device. This does not resemble the "beam" developed by Marconi or Bureau of Standards, although it does purport to insure secrecy in commercial wireless messages, and definite restriction in radio broadcasting. It gives complete isolation, to sender and receiver, from interference or listening in on the part of those who do not possess his special instruments. "It is merely a matter," he explained "of sending out waves which have curves and dents in them, similar to the rise and fall of the pulse as recorded on a physician's cardioscope. It is possible to change the type or characteristic curve of this wave, as readily as one changes the combination on the lock of a safe. No receiver can pick up the message, except one which is previously adjusted to the particular combination on which the transmitter operates."

Hammond also inquired in prophecy. "The near future," he said,

WEEKS DECLARES DEFENSE TEST IS NOT MOBILIZATION

Secretary in Letter Says Program Calls for Demonstration of Mobilization Plans.

"NO ARMY INCREASE FOR AN INSTANT"

Compares Affair to Fire Drill in School and Declares It Will Have Educational Value.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The statement that the army's "Defense Test" project scheduled for Sept. 12, "should meet with the approval of all, except possibly those who are opposed to any defense against external aggression," is contained in a letter sent by Secretary Weeks to a clergyman who has inquired as to the purpose and nature of the test.

"Nothing will be done on that day to alarm any sincere American citizen," Weeks said. "The event will not be a general mobilization. Our military establishment will not be increased for an instant on Sept. 12."

Letter of Weeks.

The letter says:

"In acknowledging your letter I wish to thank you for seeking official information on the 'Defense Test' to be held on Sept. 12. Nothing will be done on that day to alarm any sincere American citizen, and our plans should meet with the approval of all, except possibly those who are opposed to any defense against external aggression.

"In the holding of the 'Defense Test' the War Department is merely obeying the basic law of our country. The preamble to the Constitution gives national defense as one of the main objects for which our Government was formed. By an act of Congress in 1792 the democratic nature of our military service was determined when it was prescribed that all male citizens between 18 and 45 years of age should be available for military duty in time of war. The national defense act of 1920 prescribes that the 'Organized peace establishment * * * shall include all of those divisions necessary to form the basis for a complete and immediate mobilization for the national defense in the event of a national emergency declared by Congress.'

"To fulfill the expressed purpose of the Constitution we have organized a new citizen army, and prepared a mobilization plan based on community co-operation in the spirit of the act of 1792 and in conformity with the provisions of the act of 1920. Such a democratic conception of national defense will only meet the requirements of an emergency if it is thoroughly understood by all who have definite responsibilities under it. The most practical way of assuring this is by public demonstration.

Not a General Mobilization.

"The event to take place on September 12 will not be a 'general mobilization.' A mobilization would mean the bringing to war strength, in men, animals and material, of the armed forces of the nation. Our military establishment will not be increased for an instant on September 12. The 'Defense Test' will be only a demonstration of mobilization plans. It will be an endeavor on the part of the Federal Government to inform our people as fully as possible on the present status of our security.

"Our whole purpose is to present to our country the new citizen army of the United States and to indicate what action would have to be taken in a national emergency by our individual citizens, and by communities, if our country is to be defended successfully. The simple demonstration planned might be compared to a fire drill in a school for the safety of the children. Just as fire escapes and exits are of little value if the children do not know how to use them, so also are the best plans for our safety, if our people do not know what the plans are, and what they should do in a crisis. We firmly believe that our action is in the interest of more intelligent citizenship.

"We are able to take this forward step because our plans are purely for defense, and their object for peace. We therefore need not keep them secret. Our test will enable not only our own people, but all peoples, to visualize our proposed plan of mobilization. Open defense plans openly arrived at are merely a practical extension of the principles underlying open diplomacy.

Test a Precautionary Measure.

Compulsory Voting.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Australian Parliament recently passed a compulsory voting bill with assurance that it will soon become a law. As we are now using the Australian ballot system, we will probably also copy their new law, though it is a reform that this writer has been advocating in the press for nearly 20 years, several times in your columns.

We now have compulsory laws for taxation, military and jury service, etc. Is a compulsory voting law necessary? It is evident that the people must be compelled to attend to their public duties when they neglect them. How much taxes would be collected if payment were voluntary? Would the World War have ended a year after we had entered it, if we had depended entirely on volunteers? How many jurors and what kind would they be if the Judge had no power to inflict a jail penalty for failure to serve? Yet jury service, usually requiring a week, is only concerned with individual cases. Election day service, requiring less than an hour and concerning everybody, brings no penalty upon the 50 to 80 per cent of the qualified voters who do not care who makes, enforces or fails to enforce the laws, who assesses or collects the taxes, spends the money, administers justice, punishes criminals or runs government for or against the people as a whole.

The negligence of the voters is the opportunity of self-seeking interests, grafters and criminals who elect their friends and tools to office. This would be impossible if every qualified voter voted. If they did, many desirable candidates who are now afraid to run would gladly do so. A compulsory voting law is therefore badly needed, with jail penalty for violation and strict election holidays. What Priest Stands For.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

HAVING heard all our candidates for Governor, I have come to the conclusion that Judge Priest is the only one who flat-footed states his stand on the two pivotal questions of K. K. K. and the Eighteenth or "snooping" amendment to the United States Constitution.

One writer in your paper seems still to be in the dark as to what Judge Priest stands for. We expect him, when elected, to recommend to the Legislature a repeal of all laws that have any bearing on the Volstead law and enacted by our State Legislature in the past. Gov. Smith of New York State did this very thing and still was a very prominent candidate for president. The passage of this act by Missouri would place us beside New York State and gradually other states would also do so.

The Prohibition War Forces.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE K. K. K. is called the Invisible Empire in the U. S., but the United States now has a plainly visible empire, the empire of Volsteadism, the hierarchy that now rules us.

As seen by inclosed page of the Army and Navy Journal it now has its own navy, to which has just been added 20 ships, in addition to its previous strength.

It has an army of its own, greater than the Regular Army of the United States in 1877, and its navy now more powerful than the navy of its host, the United States, in 1877.

And it has, besides, an appropriation of money for its own use of $9,000,000 this year. But the subservient United States and the cringing 48 states—all aringe to the head of this visible empire.

Voter Seeks Advice.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

AS usual, we come to you for help. We are ready and anxious to vote for the first time: there are six of us and we live in a boarding house along with two married couples. These men tell us it is useless to vote at the primaries unless we pick the same candidates chosen by the central city committee and that others, no matter, even though they are much better in every way than those endorsed by the committee, have absolutely no chance whatever to win the nomination. Now, as this seems very unfair to us, we would be grateful if you would publish this letter and an answer.

DELLA COTTERMAN.

Candidates indorsed by the organizations do not always win. The purpose of the primary is to let the people, not the machines, name the nominees. ED.

GO TO THE POLLS.

In tomorrow's primary election the people themselves will be on trial—more so than any of the contestants for nomination. Every citizen who is thoughtfully concerned with good government will scan the results somewhat anxiously. Preference as to candidates is really a secondary consideration with such citizens. They will be curious to know whether the people have truly availed themselves of the great privilege of expressing their choice.

This phase of tomorrow's election will have a peculiar interest because of the unusual efforts that have been made to arouse the people to their sense of civic duty. The indifference of citizens in this vital matter of participating in their own government has become notorious. It is an ugly augury. With less than half of the qualified voters taking part in elections the first obvious consequence is that ours is a minority government. No less obvious are other consequences. Everybody knows that the type of politician who is in politics for revenue only is actively on the job in the primary election. So are his henchmen. But the political bosses and their henchmen would be powerless if anything like a reasonable number of the people qualified to vote would go to the polls. There is no special interest of any character but is numerically negligible compared with the great mass of citizens whose only interest in government is good, capable, honest government.

All this has been said many times before, but it will have to be said again and again until the citizens, aroused from their lethargy, assume both their privilege and responsibility under free popular government. Certainly minority government, such as we are now having in the United States because of the indolence and apathy of the voters, is piling up a record of incompetence, extravagance and waste that is swiftly approaching the intolerable. The costs of government, municipal, state and Federal, are appalling. And the basic explanation for that fact can be told in just three words—people don't vote. If all the people voted the whole art and practice of our government would magically be transformed. In the first place the incompetents or the servants of special interest would not get into office, or if they did their tenure would be brief. If our public servants knew that the entire electorate was voting and, therefore, was holding them to account and would reward them or remove them according to their deserts we should have a vastly different public service. Instead of building up machines, multiplying jobs, eternally devising ways for getting and spending the people's money—instead of making a government a party affair and expending their energy in prospering the party at the expense of the people—our public servants would necessarily strive to win the people's approval, if the people would only vote.

Moreover, the vicious tendencies of the times, the centralization of power, the various blocs and groups with their pet projects and grafts, the whole wretched pack of special interests, with their intolerances and fanaticisms, would all be put to rout if the qualified American people as a whole would shake off their inertia and buckle down to the greatest business on earth—the splendid business of governing themselves.

There is just one way by which we can have government of the people by the people and for the people and that is by going to the polls and choosing our public servants.

SUBSTANTIAL PROGRESS IN EUROPE.

There have been many temporary agreements among the Allies since the treaty of Versailles. There has been none which has had anything like the same practical promise as that reached on Saturday at London. If honestly adhered to, the plan proposed by M. Herriot and adopted by the conference marks a new phase in European relations.

M. Herriot went to London wishing peace but hobbled by a promise to preserve France's individual right to declare Germany in default and to punish Germany for the default. Under those conditions the Dawes plan would not have been worth the paper it was written upon and no loan to set it in action would have been justified. Fortunately, the British and American bankers made this plain.

It is to the great credit of M. Herriot that he was willing to face the facts and that he had the wisdom to offer a constructive solution. He has surrendered the substance of what the British and Americans had to demand. He has given up France's independent right to declare Germany in default and has therefore abandoned the whole legal and moral basis of the Ruhr occupation. But in the surrender he has shown himself a statesman by capturing for France and for himself the prestige of having proposed an acceptable compromise. He is able, therefore, to return to Paris not as a man who had a solution forced upon him but as the European statesman who has made the largest single contribution to the restoration of peace.

JOSEPH CONRAD.

There has not been any other man who attained the magnitude in the world of letters that Joseph Conrad did, who proceeded in the strange manner he did. The first language he spoke was Polish, the native tongue of the country of his birth. As a boy in school, he learned French, but he was a man grown, and apprenticed to the sea before he ever spoke English.

He was a sea rover born. The smell of salt water was always in his nostrils, even when he roamed among his inland hills. He learned English in ships in the Far East, and he learned to love the far lands, the low coast lines that hem the China Sea, the evening mists that hide the settlements, and the people who lived in the huts along the shore.

After many years, when he had earned his license as a master of sail and steam craft, he found himself one winter tied up in a French canal. He occupied himself with trying to write a novel. He had suspected for a long time that he could write a better one than many he had read. "Almayer's Folly" was the result, and when it was published, the sea had lost a sailor, and the sky above the world of letters had gained a new star.

He never seemed to write easily, and possibly he never did, but it is doubtful if any man now writing has so masterful a command of the English language. The years will have to measure his fame, but the conscientious critic of today will have difficulty finding among the works of another man, novels to compare with "Lord Jim" and "The Nigger of the Narcissus," and for pure wind and seamanship, there is nothing to eclipse "Typhoon."

For holding, compelling narrative, he never far passed "Almayer's Folly." He seemed to have started in his full stride, but his latest novel, "The Rover," is finer craftsmanship. In it, the blue and flowing sea is the constant background of the story. The sea is the perfect Mediterranean outside Toulon, but it is no more perfect than the character of old Peyrol, with his questionable past, and no more fluent than the story Conrad wove of his unspoken love.

Conrad had sailed all the seas, he had fought with pirates, rode out gales, found his way through perilous passages between rocks; he had made love all down the China coast as a young sailor man, but to the everlasting benefit of the world, he spent the best of his life in a sleepy English country side writing the stories he had learned. A great mariner has sailed over the rim of the world, and out into the sky, but the best that was in him he has left with us in books.

POOR BUTTERFLY.

Zoologist Sutt of London has demonstrated through experiments made in his screened summer garden that male butterflies are fond of whisky, but that the female of the species drinks only water. This shows that no Volstead has yet arisen in the insect world.

There are people now alive who can remember when the male alone of the human species drank whisky in summer gardens. In those days, the female rarely went beyond beer. Both beverages later were barred by constitutional amendment, and a peculiar spectacle was presented. Whisky appeared in profusion in violation of law and, strangely enough, was drunk by both the male and female of the species. Butterflies so far appear to be amenable only to natural laws.

THE THREE FISHERMEN.

The melancholy visage of the Massachusetts vacuum must be prominently displayed in all Ford agencies.—New Item.

Calvin, Henry and Charles one night
Chugged off in a little Ford;
Calvin sat there with his lips pressed tight,
Helen Maria roared.
"Where are you going and what do you crave?"
The old moon asked the three.
We have come the Shoals for Henry to save,
An we want the Presidency;
Lots of silver and gold have we,
Said Calvin,
Henry
And Charles.

The old moon laughed and sang a song,
As they rocked in the little Ford;
And the oil that helped their bus along
At Teapot Dome was bored.
To get at the Shoals was Henry's wish
That loaned them his beautiful car;
And if he gets it, then who's the fish?
I rather think we are.
You're going a little too far, too far,
Calvin,
Henry
And Charles.

All night long the bunk they threw
For the votes that to Bob might roam,
Then down came the Ford, just hitting on two,
Bringing the fishermen home.
'Twas all so pretty a sail it seemed
As if it could not be;
And some folks thought 'twas a dream they dreamed
Of our votes for the G. O. P.
But I shall name you the fishermen three—
Calvin,
Henry
And Charles.

Calvin and Henry are two that keep still,
But Charles can raise the old Ned;
And the little Ford that climbed the hill
Gets Henry his daily bread.
So shut your eyes while Butler sings
The wonderful G. O. P.
And you may see some beautiful things
Where the flivver for sale may be,
The flivver that rode the fishermen three—
Calvin,
Henry
And Charles. JOSEPH D. HEADE.

Sir: The present Loeb-Leopold murder trial in Chicago furnishes the best possible chance to estimate the value of the testimony of insanity experts. The attorney for the defense, Mr. Darrow, has written a book analyzing crime and criminal testimony, in which he admits that the alienist and the lawyer are practically on the same footing; and that the opinion of either one may be and is influenced in favor of the party employing him.

The first alienist for the defense swears that Loeb is a consummate liar and had begun to lie at an early age. Here is a young man then with a brilliant intellect, a student of psychology, without conscience or feeling, who has committed a crime which places his own life in danger. Who understands the necessity of making the Court believe that he is more or less mentally incompetent, and who has sufficient wit and intelligence to say just what is best suited to encourage that belief.

He tells a story then to the alienist, recalling the early incidents of his life as far back as he can remember. Does anyone doubt that the story which this young man tells, whose very neck is in danger, is anything else than a fantastic tale of his own, created for the purpose of saving him from the consequences of his horrible crime?

Yet the Court is expected to listen to this alienist, who himself cannot be unbiased, and hear his opinion based on the story told by this consummate liar in order to form an opinion as to the competency or incompetency of the defendant.

Is it possible to imagine a situation which could be more farcical? O. S.

THE BOOTLEGGER IN CANADA.

From the Toronto Mail and Empire.

MAY not the moral sense of the reputable citizens of prohibition grade as high as the moral sense formerly expressed, largely by the same voters, in favor of prohibition? Why was prohibition adopted in the provinces between Ontario and the Pacific Coast? It was adopted to get rid of an evil that had been found intolerable, that of the open bar. The popular feeling against the open bar was no passing mood. The open bar was wiped out, and the people intend that it shall remain wiped out. The same citizens who voted the western provinces to turn from prohibition to Government sale of liquor voted at the same time against alternative or complementary proposals for a limited bar trade. We believe that in the voting by which the provinces of Western Canada brought prohibition to an end many thousands joined who well deserved to be classed as adherents of the cause of temperance. Whatever the vices fostered by the open bar, bootlegging was not one of them. The licensing of the traffic made liquor available everywhere at moderate prices, and the bootlegger, who depends on the making of huge profits, had no feeling. But under prohibition the bootlegger reaped a rich harvest, a harvest whose season took in every day of the year. With the bootlegging traffic grew up enterprising criminal organizations, manned by the most vicious characters. It seemed as if these desperadoes suddenly came to realise that they had been previously too much afraid of the law. Like the savages who were held in awe by Capt. Cook's seeming magic, these were ready to fall foul of society the moment they found public authority to be of no more than human resourcefulness. When they found one weak point in the armor of the law they began to show their contempt for public authority generally and to rob and murder and carry on a system of terrorism. Public opinion, no matter how loyal to the cause of temperance in the use of intoxicating liquors, could not long tolerate this new and formidable evil. The same public conscience that put an end to the iniquities of the open bar is the Mounties now on the track of the bootlegger.

TEST OF HELICOPTERS.

From the New York Herald-Tribune.

THE fact that there are 16 entries for the British Air Ministry's £50,000 prize for a practicable helicopter is probably a testimony to humanity's enduring optimism in the matter of prize contests. Otherwise progress in the development of helicopters or "hovering" airplanes, must have been extraordinary. The British prize is for a machine that can climb 2000 feet and travel for at least 20 miles at a mile a minute. In France a prize of 10,000 francs has been offered for a machine that is required to rise to only one meter and travel only a kilometer, and, as far as it is known, none of these devices has done much more than get off the ground. A machine that can move or stand still at will, anywhere in the air, without the disadvantage of a gas bag, would be a startling innovation in aeronautics.

BISHOPSBURNE, England, Aug. 4.—Lovers of literature today mourned the passing of Joseph Conrad, author of sea tales, at his home here yesterday in his sixty-seventh year.

Death came suddenly. Conrad was apparently in normal health Saturday morning. At noon, however, he was seized with an attack of asthma, which developed with such rapidity that his physician advised the use of oxygen. The novelist suffered much pain and grew worse during the night. "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," a Fine Romantic Drama With Mary Pickford at Her Best.

FOR beauty of natural scenery setting and star Mary Pickford's current offering, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," now showing at the Kings is a motion picture gem. It is delightful entertainment for the Pickford fans who have eyes only for their favorite star and for those who do not approach it in a spirit of adoration it is almost equally satisfying because it is a good story well told with the romantic action moving forward in environments of enchanting loveliness.

And whisper Douglas Fairbanks is in it. Those are Doug's dorsal and shoulder muscles which are displayed on the first appearance of Rutland, one of Dorothy's suitors. This doughty cavalier is having his sword wounds dressed and sits with his back to the camera. Fairbanks did this pose as a substitute for Alan Forret who stepped into the part when Doug faded out. There is nothing on the printed program to let the fans in on this secret, but they may as well know it for its historical interest as the first joint appearance of Mary and Doug in a picture.

The story of the hoydenish Dorothy Vernon, loved by two men, one a patriot and the other a traitor, is fairly well known. It introduces Queen Elizabeth and Mary Queen of Scots in the unfolding of a plot which reaches dramatic heights when Dorothy's warning saves Elizabeth from an assassin's sword. Clare Eames give a wonderfully impressive characterization of the Virgin Queen and Estelle Taylor finely envisions the tragedy-stricken Mary, Queen of Scots.

Gloria as a Comedian.

MANHANDLED," the week's feature picture at the Missouri would seem to settle for all time the moot question "Can Gloria Swanson act?" Miss Swanson here has a fine opportunity for real comedy work and her performance along this line is a revelation. In the early scenes she does character work of great merit in portraying a harried shopgirl. The straphanging scene on the subway car is one of the season's funniest. In a later episode her impersonations of a Russian countess and of Charlie Chaplin are sure-fire laugh getters.

Not that Gloria doesn't make her usual display of wonderful gowns. She doesn't remain a shopgirl long. She moves on and up, first as an artist's model and later as the tea-pouring fake Russian Countess. Shoe goes to gay parties in borrowed fineries and finds wonderful opportunities for pleasure and display fairly thrust upon her by men who seem to be disinterestedly generous at first, but she soon learns they are not. Then comes the revulsion and in the end she goes back to her first love, an honest mechanic whose invention of an automobile contraption has made him a millionaire. It is in the main comedy, but there are some emotional and pathetic episodes. This is one of Gloria's best.

"Covered Wagon at Four Theaters.

THE Covered Wagon" which, last September, played in one of the down town theaters for several weeks, arrived at four theaters Saturday, where it is playing at something like "popular" prices. It is showing at the New Grand Central, West End Lyric, Lyric Skydome and Capitol. Very large audiences turned out for the showing at each of the houses Saturday and Sunday.

"The Covered Wagon," telling as it does a story of the early days of the settling of the West, is one of the few historically valuable movie dramas and, at the same time, is exceedingly interesting. It was made on a grand scale and while, in response no doubt to the general belief that every movie must have a love story woven into it somehow, the plot at times shakes off history and goes in for some rather mushy scenes. The action is swift and the picture never drags.

The story of "The Covered Wagon" is just what its name suggests—the prairie schooner days beginning with the trek from Kansas City, then called Westport, in 1847, and following the new trails into Oregon.

About everything which could and did happen in those exciting days of the winning of the West is graphically shown in this picture. There are Indian fights and fires, buffalo hunts and the fording of great rivers and then, when the news comes of the discovery of gold in California, is shown the parting of the ways of the members of the great caravan.

Ernest Torrence, as Bill Jackson, a typical plainsman of the early days, is the outstanding actor in the production and he, with Tully Marshall, who plays Jim Bridger, supply the comedy in the drama. Lois Wilson, J. Warren Kerrigan and Alen Hale are the chief characters in the "love interest" triangle.

"The Covered Wagon" is a well worth while picture. There are few enough of this type.

Domestic Tangles and Faith Cure.

PHOTOPLAY and musical comedy fairly divide honors on the bill at the Delmonte. The feature picture is "Flapper Wives," a story of domestic troubles in two families with a faith-healing minister as one of the leading characters. There are several melodramatic situations, including the curing of a blind boy, son of a woman whose love for the minister has caused her husband to sue for divorce. The domestic troubles of this couple are shown in considerable detail. There also is another couple encountering squalls on the sea of matrimony. The husband in this case was the minister's buddy overseas. It is the wife who is at fault, but the minister's efforts to effect a reconciliation are successful after a tragic happening which opens the eyes of the wife to her danger. It is melodramatic and at times overdrawn, but fairly entertaining. The revue offering has some pretty groupings and song and dance numbers.

LIBERTY MUSIC HALL OPENS

Musical Comedy Stock Company and Motion Pictures Please First-Day Audiences.

The Liberty Music Hall, the Fox Liberty that was, opened its season yesterday on a plan which was briefly tried out last spring. A musical stock company has been installed and will present a new show each week, with a feature picture and several vaudeville acts also on the lengthy program. Despite the heat yesterday the theater was crowded both afternoon and evening and the audiences seemed to take to this new form of entertainment.

"Too Many Husbands" is the title of the musical show being offered this week. Al Ferris, Donna Monroze and Delaine Chalmers, a charming dancer, were the featured players. There is a large chorus of local young women. Harry Carey in "Tiger Thompson" supplied the movie end of the program.

OPERA ATTENDANCE SHOWS A DECLINE

Receipts, for First Time, Are Below Those of Previous Year.

For the first time, according to a statement made public today by the Municipal Theater Association, its attendance and receipts show a decline, rather than a substantial advance, in comparison with corresponding figures for the preceding season. That is, while the 1920 season was more successful than that of 1919, and 1921 excelled 1920, and so on, the season of 1924 fell below that of 1923.

The total tickets sales for the 1924 series, it is announced, amount to $289,610.50, a decline of $6108.25 from the 1923 ticket sales of $295,718.75. The total attendance is stated to have fallen off from 425,931 in 1923 to 369,015—a loss of 56,880. The figure for 1924 includes an estimate of 66,000 for attendance in the free seats.

Hopeful of Small Surplus.

Whether a surplus or a deficit resulted from the summer's operations will not definitely be known until the association's accounts are audited, and no statement of expenditures has been issued. However, it is declared that the management is hopeful a small surplus may remain after all bills have been paid. Last year's surplus was $25,299.12, and that for 1922 was $41,873.40.

This showing, says an announcement from the association's publicity department, "is attributed by officials of the association entirely to the most unfavorable weather encountered in the history of the municipal opera."

It is set forth that only 10 performances were given under what might be called favorable weather conditions, and that rain interfered with 16 performances. However, it is also stated that out of a schedule of 70 performances the association succeeded in giving 66, only four performances having been abandoned completely on account of storms. Several of the 66 performances were curtailed by rain, but as this occurred after the deadline of 9:30 p. m., they were reckoned officially as complete performances.

Ticket Sales Discouraged.

It was not the rain falling at night which was chiefly responsible, according to the management, but that occurring between 5 and 8 o'clock, which is regarded as having discouraged ticket sales.

As has always been the case, the largest week's receipts coincided with the concluding production of the season—in this instance, the Poepping-Maguire musical comedy, "The Beggar Princess." The income from this work was $34,274.25, or $330.25 more than its runner-up, "Naughty Marietta," and $847.75 more than the receipts from "The Bohemian Girl." The largest receipts for a single night occurred on June 27, when "The Bohemian Girl" played to $6008. "The Bohemian Girl" is regarded as the only work of first-class presented during the season.

Three productions last summer, the association's statement continues, attracted larger receipts than "The Beggar Princess." These were "The Merry Widow," $36,007; "The Spring Maid," $35,346; and "The Prince of Pilsen," $35,342.

How Productions Drew.

Ranked in order as to receipts and attendance this summer's productions align themselves as follows:

"The Beggar Princess," paid attendance 38,099; receipts, $34,274.25.

"Naughty Marietta," 37,719; $33,944.

"The Bohemian Girl," 37,642; $33,425.50.

"The Fortune Teller," 33,862; $31,620.25.

"The Prince of Pilsen," 32,815; $31,919.

"Florodora," 28,843; $28,562.25.

"The Lilac Domino," 27,672; $27,722.

"The Chinese Honeymoon," 26,730; $27,125.25.

"Firefly," 23,995; $22,789.25.

"Princess Chic," 15,638; $19,125.75.

From these figures, it appears that "The Beggar Princess" in pail attendance, drew 280 more persons than "Naughty Marietta" and 1457 more than "The Bohemian Girl."

The Municipal Theater's sixth season came to an end last night with the final production of "The Beggar Princess." The paid admissions totaled 5500. There were no valedictory exercises, save that the entire troupe came to the footlights after the final curtain to sing "Auld Lang Syne," while the audience stood.

Members of the company cried out farewells to the gathering, and then Music Director Previn and Noel Poepping, composer of the score, were lifted from the orchestra pit and borne on the shoulders of members of the musical comedy's football squad. Finally the surplus ammunition, three skyrockets, was fired off, and with their fading passed the season of 1924.

PROFESSOR FOUND DEAD FROM GAS

Jet Turned On, Windows Closed—For 21 Years He Taught at New York U.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—William Everett Waters, who was retired last year from New York University, where he was professor of Greek for 21 years, was found dead in a gas-filled room in his home, No. 126 Claremont avenue, when his wife and son returned from church yesterday.

Prof. Waters, who was born in Winthrop, Me., 67 years ago, had suffered a complication of diseases for seven or eight years. When his wife and their son, Prof. William Everett Waters Jr. of Yale University, returned home shortly after 1 p. m. from West Side Presbyterian Church, they discovered Dr. Waters' body in a chair in the dining room.

The medical examiner's office reported death due to illuminating gas poisoning, although the family physician said he reported the case as "death due to complications."

A gas jet in the dining room was turned on and the doors and windows of the room were closed, according to the assistant medical examiner who investigated the circumstances.

The body will be taken Wednesday to Cincinnati for burial in the family plot at Spring Grove Cemetery.

Prof. Waters graduated from Yale, where he was a classmate of William Howard Taft, in 1878, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and received his degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Yale in 1887. He married Alma F. Oyler of Cincinnati on June 28, 1888.

He was the author, with William R. Harper, of "Inductive Greek Method," published in 1888; "Town Life in Ancient Italy," 1902 and "Cena Trimalchionis of Petronius," 1902. Since his retirement he has been professor emeritus.

only one or two personal friends.

He declined to take part in the memorial services for Germany's soldier dead, which attracted fully 150,000 people to Rechstag Square yesterday.

The press continues to maintain a note of extreme cordiality in its greeting to Hughes. It deplores however, the brevity of his visit and the fact that he comes at a time when the Government leaders are forced to make a hasty trip to London.

That Hughes' visit to Europe at this time has been productive of decisively beneficial effects on international discussions is the general view of German editors, who profess to see a marked advance in the London negotiations since the American official took a hand in them.

Hughes' visit to Berlin must be construed as a proof that the Americans are convinced that the success of the London conference is assured, says the Vossische Zeitung, which praises Hughes for the determined manner in which he created an atmosphere for the promulgation of the principles which were subsequently laid down in the Dawes report. These principles, in the opinion of Hughes, suggest the only way to the European Powers for a rescue out of the blind alley of post-war economies, according to the newspaper.

WHAT PERFECTION OF NEW RADIO MARVELS WILL MEAN TO WORLD

"will witness the flashing of complete newspaper pages across the Atlantic through the ether. The telephoning of pictures, already realized, is the first step in this direction."

Evidence of still further broadening of the influence of radio is contained in recent reports from Germany. Express trains running between Berlin, Hamburg and Hanover, it has been announced, soon will be fitted with radio equipment which will link them up with the entire land telephone system of the country. It will be possible, this autumn, for a passenger on one of these trains to speak to any telephone subscriber in Germany, at any time or place on his journey. Similarly, it will be possible for anyone to get in touch with a passenger, by calling the radio central, getting the train and having the particular passenger paged. Ordinary telephone conversation can then be established.

In addition, any passenger who drops a coin in a slot machine placed near his seat, will find a telephone head-set at his disposal with which he may listen in on any of the regular broadcast programs sent through the district which the train is traversing.

If this scheme proves successful in Central Europe, it is very probable that our American railways will adopt it. These things are promised for the immediate future alone and by the most conservative prophets. What the next few years will bring in the way of still more marvelous development no one can say. The fact remains that radio, born less than a generation ago, has already become one of the factors which will mould the characteristics of many generations which are to follow.

Coolidge and Davis "Unacceptable to Labor"

public office who have been fair, just and outspoken in behalf of the welfare of the common people.

"We shall analyze the record and attitude of every aspirant to public office and shall give our findings the widest possible publicity. Labor's enemies and friends must be clearly known and be definitely indicated.

"In calling upon all affiliated and recognized national and international and brotherhood organizations, state federations of labor, central labor bodies, local unions, labor's friends and sympathizers, to give united, unrestricted, loyal and active support to the non-partisan campaign now set in motion, we emphasize the imperative need of an intensive educational campaign to enable all to act with discrimination and wisdom in this election and to stand faithfully by our friends and elect them and to oppose our enemies and to defeat them."

General Report of Council.

The section containing the "conclusions and recommendations" was preceded by a general report, which the executive council, in adopting, declared was now "the expression and recommendation of the council to the entire organized labor movement, its friends and its sympathizers in the present political campaign." This section of the report follows:

Hotel Ambassador, Atlantic City, Aug. 2, 1924.

To the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor:

The Executive Council at its last meeting, instructed the Executive Committee of the American Federation of Labor National Nonpartisan Political Campaign Committee, and as many other members of the Executive Council as could find it convenient, to attend the national Democratic and Republican conventions and that the Executive Committee present the demands of labor to both conventions.

These instructions were carried out and we present the following report:

The policy of the American Federation of Labor's active and positive participation in politics was inaugurated in 1906. This nonpartisan political policy was intended to secure the election of those in favor of the just and and the humanitarian aims and purposes of the labor movement and the defeat of those who had demonstrated their hostility to the cause of labor.

Extension of Policy.

The scope of the application of our policy has been extended to apply not only to congressional elections but to the offices of President and Vice President of the United States and to participation in primary elections. However, in principle the nonpartisan policy inaugurated in 1906 has ever since governed the political course of the American Federation of Labor adherence to this nonpartisan policy has resulted in a splendid record of legislative achievements.

Reference to our 1906 bill of grievances, compared with legislative enactment since, testifies to the progress and success resulting from labor's nonpartisan political policy and by direction of the conventions of the American Federation of Labor, the Executive Council and the Nonpartisan Political Campaign Committee of the American Federation of Labor prepared a series of legislative and constitutional proposals for submission to both major political parties for favorable consideration and incorporation into their political platforms.

What Labor Proposed.

These proposals were as follows:

"To promote highest material progress which is the basis for national effectiveness as well as an agency for national service, we urge that industry and commerce be freed from legislative prohibitions that restrict development in conformity to economic requirements. To this end we propose the repeal of antitrust legislation and the enactment of legislation that will provide regulation in public interest and legalize economic organization as well as the constructive activities of trade associations.

"It is unescapable that an integral part of legislation establishing this economic policy is full recognition of the right of workers to assist themselves in unions for their protection and advancement both as workers and citizens and collectively to carry on the legitimate functions of trade unions. Extension of the injunctive process to apply to personal relations in industrial disputes must be prohibited and equity procedure returned to its beneficent service, in protection of property.

"It is essential for the conservation of national virility that child life be protected. We therefore urge the ratification by the states of the joint resolution passed by the Congress, to amend the Constitution empowering the Congress to enact such legislation as will safeguard the future child life of our republic.

"Because the labor clauses of the transportation act of 1920 have proved ineffective, we ask their repeal and the enactment of legislation that will afford opportunity for the voluntary organization of management and employes to deal with problems of industrial relations.

"We demand the enactment of legislation providing that products of convict labor shipped from one state into another shall be subject to the laws of the latter state exactly as thought they had been produced therein.

"In order to mitigate unemployment attending business depressions, we urge the enactment of legislation authorizing that construction and repair of public works be initiated in periods of acute unemployment.

" appreciation we urge adequate provisions for the full rehabilitation of all injured in the service during the World War.

"We urge proper recognition of the work of those in the civilian service of the Government with adequate compensation based upon equitable classification.

"We favor the enactment of more comprehensive compensation laws to provide for all workers not covered by state compensation acts. We demand more liberal provisions for those incapacitated by industrial accidents or occupational diseases.

"We maintain that the Volstead act is contrary to the desire of the majority of our citizens as well as the spirit of the Eighteenth Amendment, and we demand that it be modified to permit the manufacture and sale of beer containing not more than 2.75 per cent alcohol.

"We declare for the maintenance of freedom of speech, press, assemblage and association. We oppose any regulation to restrict these fundamental rights, believing that individuals and groups should be responsible for their acts and utterances.

Compulsory Labor.

"We oppose conscription except as a military measure for defensive war and oppose all proposals to initiate compulsory labor under whatever guise.

"In order to maintain representative government based upon the will of the people, we advocate a constitutional amendment enabling Congress to reenact by two-thirds vote any measure declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States.

"Labor favors graduated income and inheritance taxes and opposes the sales tax as well as all other attempts to place excessive burdens on those least able to pay.

"We demand that our nation identify itself with international agencies and conferences to promote world peace. We urge membership in the League of Nations and participation in the World Court."

In addition, the executive council adopted the following declaration on the selection of candidates for the offices of President and Vice President, which declaration was directed to the convention of both major political parties and to the conference group having placed independent presidential and vice presidential candidates in the field:

Declaration on Presidency.

"Devoted to the cause of American principles of justice and freedom, and patriotically desirous of contributing the efforts of the working people of our republic in the furtherance of true Americanism and of the improvement in the life and of the standards and conditions of work of the toiling masses of our country, the American Federation of Labor through its executive council enters the impending political campaign for the selection and election of President and Vice President of the United States and of senators and representatives, for the purpose of service to the people and institutions of our common country.

"In keeping with the traditional policy of the American Federation of Labor, the executive council in regular session assembled, considering our duties as American citizens, and our responsibilities as the representatives of America's wage earners do hereby manifest and express to the conventions of the major political parties of our country the earnest hope and pressing insistence that the declaration of intentions to be formulated by each of these parties, containing pledges to be redeemed by congressional and executive action, shall embrace the full protection and promotion of the rights and interests of the great mass of the people of the republic—the farmers and wage earners.

"It is the further hope and insistence of the American wage earners that, founded upon a platform of honesty and progress, candidates will be nominated for President and Vice President of the United States who shall commend themselves to the favorable consideration of the great mass of the citizenship of our country, and that in the selection of these candidates the hopes, aspirations, and claims of America's wage earners for favorable consideration shall be treated fairly and justly.

"Favorable consideration is strongly urged of the names of outstanding types of America's workers for the nominations to position within the gift of these political party conventions, and all workers, all citizens, are called upon in bringing to realization the high and lofty purpose of securing the selection of candidates capable of intelligently, fearlessly and justly promoting and protecting the human interest of our people and of restoring and safeguarding the principles of justice and freedom."

like acts without realizing the consequences of those acts, the 'Defense Test' will be a precautionary measure. Every one will be made aware of the sacrifices which war will require of him.

"The 'Defense Test,' on the other hand, will apprize the world as words never can of our friendly purposes as a nation. They will see that we have neither a standing army of half-a-million men, like some of the great nations, nor compulsory military training like other great nations. They will see a small standing army, reinforced only by citizens who have undertaken to prepare themselves voluntarily for service to their country in the event of war. As a matter of fact, some of those who object to our simple demonstration could well use it as an object lesson for all nations.

"From a military standpoint the 'Defense Test' will be of practical value. It will be educational both to the military establishment and to our citizens. We have tried to learn from the lessons of the World War. From them we have evolved our present plans which apportion our defense task equally among all communities. Their object is to save millions of dollars and thousands of lives, and to prevent wastage through delay and confusion in a defensive war. They are dependent for success, however, on each community understanding its particular responsibilities, and on the co-operative effort of all. Explanation and demonstration are necessary; hence the 'Defense Test.'

"In conclusion, I would like to emphasize that I am striving for peace, and that in common with all Americans I desire it most sincerely. My observation has brought the conviction that such is also the purpose of General Pershing, and of all members of the Army of the United States. But the promotion of peace is not secured by the denial of the lessons of history. Our country has always refrained during peace from adequate prevention against the possibilities of war. Nevertheless, wars have come in spite of us. Unpreparedness has never prevented war, and the only result of our peace-time nonchalance has been increased losses and hardships to those of our citizens who rallied to the defense of the nation."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—An appeal to churches, civic organizations and clubs to protest to President Coolidge and Secretary Weeks against defense day plans Sept. 12, was made last night by Robert Watson, president of the International Reform Federation. He termed it "mobilization day" and declared "such a demonstration can only injure us in the eyes of other nations."

GERMAN ENVOYS LEAVE BERLIN FOR LONDON MEETING ON REPARATIONS

Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann in Party—American Ambassador Leaves Tuesday

NEW AND WIDE POWER OF AMERICA

Agreement Gives This Country, Though Not Government, Almost Autocratic Control of Europe

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—The German delegation to the inter-allied conference departed for London shortly after 9 o'clock this morning.

The delegation comprises Chancellor Marx, Foreign Minister Stresemann, Finance Minister Luther and Herr von Schubert, Foreign Office Commissioner. Accompanying the plenipotentiaries were representatives of Prussia and Bavaria and a number of experts.

Alanson B. Houghton, the American Ambassador to Germany, will depart for London on Tuesday. Houghton expects to remain in the English capital until the conclusion of the inter-allied conference.

AGREEMENT GIVES U. S. WIDE POWER

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON, London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The pause between the first and second acts of the interallied reparation conference, awaiting the arrival of the Germans, who are expected early Tuesday morning, reveals the United States as commited to an extraordinary extent by the negotiations already concluded.

America appears in almost autocratic control of the reparation question in Europe, assuming that the Dawes plan gets going.

Of course it is not put like that. But comments from high American authorities when asked why the Americans sided with the French against the British and so compelled the negotiations of the transfer committee at Berlin to be admitted to arbitration if the French delegation alone demands it, will show how the British position, stripped of diplomatic camouflage, appears to insiders.

Americans have gone so far in accepting responsibility for Europe's future, this authority explained, that it was not felt expedient to take over the transfer committee i naddition. The British proposal provided that the chairman of the Transfer Committee should have the casting vote in case of disagreement.

Why America Sides With France.

The representatives of the United States sided with the French because of the fact that of the six members on the Transfer Committee—which alone has the final decision as to whether and how much reparations are to be paid in cash to the allies—the agent general who will be chairman, and one other, will be Americans.

To these two votes out of six would be added a third American if the chairman, in case of a tie, cast the deciding vote, and this explains Ambassador Kellogg's intervention in the plenary session in favor of the arbitration demand.

There is a tendency on the part of the Americans to fear the political reaction in the United States when Senators and others at home realize the extent to which unofficial Americans—not the Washington Government—are now involved in Europe's greatest problem.

The Agent General of Reparations, an American, will sit on the Reparation Commission not only when any German default is under discussion, but when any modification of the Dawes scheme is proposed; and of every arbitration board set up to deal with disputes arising out of the reparations settlement an American will be the chairman.

America in Full Control.

This appears to put the United States in full control of the economic situation in Europe; and it is assumed by authorities at the conference here, from the events of the last three weeks, that while the fiction may be useful for domestic purposes, and the Americans are unofficial and do not represent the Washington Government, the United States at last has accomplished the feat of taking a decisive part in the post-war crisis on the continent, while it still is able officially, to deny it is taking any governmental part at all.

The controversy over German deliveries in kind has been composed largely by American intervention. "Intervention" is the polite word; "dictation" would be nearer the truth.

The dictation, however, is merely submitted to by all concerned in a genuine desire for settlement, because of the belief in American disinteredness and of the hope of benefits to follow compliance.

The deliveries-in-kind dispute has been ruled by the American formula that while the tendency exists on the part of the Germans to starve French industrials of raw material, a similar tendency exists on the part of France to cripple German manufacturers.

Cannot Seize Machinery.

Accordingly, the Americans have seen to it that France is to have deliveries from Germany of all raw materials France needs, but France is not permitted to requisition German machinery or take any other of a long list of measures regarded as aimed at crippling a competitor rather than upbuilding her own economic activities.

Sub-committee No. 3, composed of experts of each allied country and Germany, and set up to devise controls over German revenues and monopolies, has agreed on certain points. Four remaining points have been submitted to the arbitration of Owen D. Young and Sir Josiah Stamp, and the committee has agreed to accept their decision.

The points are: Whether the Reparation Commission is to collaborate in fixing Germany's prosperity index. (The point is that after 1930 Germany's payments will be increased if the prosperity index goes up, and the French want the Reparation Commission to have the right to check on the methods of arriving at this index.); whether the Commissioner in control of German revenues, taxes and monopolies, earmarked for reparations, must obtain the consent of the agent-general for reparations before making any decision; whether the allies are entitled to enter free with German customs and tariffs; whether, if there is a deficit in the yield for specified taxes and more active allied control be necessary, Germany should be obliged to share the cost of that control.

COMMONS DISCUSSES PROPOSED ACCORD

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—In a discussion of the allied agreement on the reparations program, in the House of Commons today, Premier MacDonald, answering a question put to him by former Premier Lloyd George, declared he was convinced that France, under the treaty of Versailles, had no right to take separate action without the consent of the other allies. The Prime Minister was asked also whether he held the view, taken by the late Government, that France had no right to take such action without the consent of the other allies. MacDonald said:

"My attitude has not changed regarding the interpretation that the French government put on that clause on the treaty of Versailles, and on the view taken by my predecessors. When I was in the opposition, I took the view that the British government was perfectly right, and that individual action was not sanctioned by that particular clause. Since I have had the advantage of being in office, I have gone through the whole matter again, and I am more confirmed than ever in the view that the British government was right."

MacDonald told the House that various safeguards had been taken, to secure all parties against decisions in connection with inter-allied matters, which could be regarded as partial or unjust.

The effect of the agreement, the allied governments hoped, he said, would be to create a new spirit of cooperation on both sides, so that some points, which might still be left open, because of the impossibility of settling them in the present state of the public mind, might become negotiable by a change of that state of mind.

It has been agreed, MacDonald continued, that the discussions had reached the point where it was necessary to pursue them with the representatives of the German Government, and it was hoped that the conference will meet tomorrow with those representatives present.

After outlining the proposed agreements, which are in the hands of a committee of lawyers, the Prime Minister said he could not conclude without expressing his great obligations to the allied Premiers, and to the leading delegates and members of the experts' committee who, in a spirit of loyal accommodation, had worked so hard to bring about an agreement.

SUCCESS OF CONFERENCE NOW DEPENDS ON GERMANS, SAYS PREMIER HERRIOT

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 4.

THE ultimate success of the interallied conference on reparations now depends upon the attitude of the Germans, Premier Herriot of France told the Associated Press today.

"If the German delegates are wise," said Herriot, "we shall have a good peace, not only for Europe, but for the entire world. Everything now depends upon a proper understanding by Germany of the part she is to play. The allies have reached a complete agreement.

"In the attainment of the happy results we have achieved France has not made a bargain, but has merely proposed a thesis of justice, founded upon full recognition of the principle of arbitration, which is the basis of the London agreement."

THREE DEATHS NOW CHARGED TO PYROMANIAC

Series of Blazes in New York Tenement District Have Been Started in Rubbish Heaps.

WIFE OF MINISTER WAS FIRST VICTIM

15-Year-Old Boy Killed in Vain Attempt to Rescue Aged Woman, Who Also Perished.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The pyromaniac, who is believed to have set the fire at 104 West Ninety-second street early Friday morning which resulted in the death of a minister's wife, added two more deaths to his total yesterday.

The same district was startled out of its sleep in the early morning by fire apparatus racing from one to another of four fires discovered within two hours. In the last of these, in a tenement at 105 West One Hundred and Third street, a 72-year-old grandmother was suffocated by smoke and a 15-year-old boy who tried to save her was so badly burned he died in the hospital.

Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy was present at all of the fires. He found the fires had been set in rubbish in cellars of the four tenements.

Last night neither Fire Marshal Brophy nor the police had come any closer to the pyromaniac than the conclusion that he was responsible for all the four fires of yesterday morning, besides that of Friday morning. No one had been seen entering or leaving the tenements.

Suspects Arrested.

For hours after the last fire had been put out, shifty-eyed, sullen men stepped into the West One Hundredth street station, led by detectives and were questioned by police and Brophy. Some had been picked up lounging near the burned tenements. Others were men with criminal records.

They appear on the list in the Fire Marshal's office of possible suspects, having been convicted of incendiarism in the past or being known to have firebug "pals." They all denied any knowledge of the fires and gave glib alibis. They were released one by one with a warning.

The fire apparatus was fighting the third suspicious fire of the early morning at 768 Columbus avenue, a five-story tenement, for which three alarms had been rung in, when the first alarm for the fire on One Hundred and Third street came. A second, third and fourth alarm came within a few minutes.

The flames, which had caught all the tenants asleep, had gained tremendous headway before the alarm was sounded. On the top floor of the five-story tenement lived Mrs. Watson with the family of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Dalton, which included Kathleen, 9, and two boys, Albert, 16 and William, 18. In the apartment across the hall were living Mrs. William Stillman, her sons, Frederick, 15, and Arthur, 11, and her daughter, Mrs. Arthur McHenry, and the latter's 3-year-old son, Tom.

Awakened by Smoke.

The Stillmans were awakened first by the smoke. They opened their door to find the flames blocking them from the stairway. All that was left was a little iron ladder to the roof. They climbed it successfully just as Mrs. Watson, feeble with age, and her family came out into the hallway, choking with smoke. All but Mrs. Watson climbed to the roof. She wavered up two rungs of the ladder and suddenly fell backward, overcome by smoke. Slowly she crawled back into her apartment and toward a window.

Frederick Stillman, watching from the roof, dropped back into the hallway to rescue the old woman. He could not find her through the blinding smoke. Flames leaped out at him. He struggled to the roof and collapsed. He was terribly burned.

The body of Mrs. Watson was found a foot from a window by firemen. Frederick Stillman, taken to the Reconstruction Hospital, died a few hours later. William Dalton was taken to Knickerbocker Hospital, as was Mrs. Rebecca Mayer, 75, who lived on the floor below. Both are badly burned and may die.

The flames started in the cellar directly below the stairs, and cut off all escape by that means. Thirty tenants lived on the four upper floors. Many escaped across a narrow air shaft to the adjoining tenement. The others got to the roof or down the fire ladders

KLANSMEN HONOR JEW ON 50TH YEAR OF HIS BUSINESS

Pastor, Removing Hood, Delivers Speech of Congratulation to Emanuel Steiner at Fairfield, Ill.

30 HOODED MEN KNEEL IN PRAYER

74-Year-Old Merchant Thanks Each One as They File Past After Presenting Roses.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAIRFIELD, Ill., Aug. 4.—Thirty masked and hooded members of the Ku Klux Klan joined with the citizens of Fairfield today in celebrating the fiftieth anniversary in business here of Emanuel Steiner, a Jew.

After hundreds of Steiner's friends had paraded through the streets to City Park, he was led to a cleared space in the crowd, where the Klansmen were drawn up in a squad on foot. Their leader, who was mounted, raised his mask and disclosed himself as the Rev. Herbert S. Markley, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

"Mr. Steiner," he said, "We meet as friends. You are an honest, upright business man and the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan of Wayne County respect and revere you. As citizen there is none better than you. We remember that in the World War you gave your son to fight for your country. We recall that on last Armistice Day Old Glory floated from the store of Emanuel Steiner, and you were the first in the town to give it to the breeze.

"We have known you, Mr. Steiner, for many years. We know that you have been behind every movement for the welfare of your country. As an American citizen and upright business man we congratulate you."

Klansmen Offer Prayer.

Loud applause greeted this portion of the speech. Then the Rev. Mr. Markely produced a basket of roses and tendered them to Steiner with the words, "In behalf of 400 klansmen of Wayne County, who hold you in high respect and esteem I present a total of their friendship."

The klansmen knelt while Markley said a prayer and then they marched past and shook hands with Steiner. He thanked each one.

The man thus honored is 74 years old and has run a general store on the corner of Main and Second streets for 50 years. His works of charity have been many. In his younger days he was noted for the unselfishness with which he helped Wayne County families in sickness, frequently sitting up night after night with sick persons.

He will entertain the hundreds who have come to remember his golden jubilee with a barbecue this afternoon and a band concert in the evening.

Father a Junk Dealer.

Steiner came to this country with his parents when he was 12 years old. His father moved westward with peddler's pack and wagon. As soon as Emanuel was large enough he, too, had a pack.

The family first settled at Lebanon, Ill., later moving to St. Louis. The elder Steiner went into the junk business next and was a traveling buyer of scraps. In 1874 Emanuel moved to Fairfield and set up a store on borrowed money at the corner of Main and Second streets. His slogan today is 'On This Corner Since 1874."

Steiner is a member of the Fairfield city council and a public-spirited citizen. He belongs to the Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows and is a Mason. He has been treasurer of the local lodges in these orders for many years. He is an orthodox Jew.

FRANCO-BELGIAN FETE COMMEMORATING THE WAR

Monument to Havre Dead Dedicated; Gold Mounted Sword for King Albert.

By the Associated Press.

HAVRE, France, Aug. 4.—The two-day Franco-Belgian fete commemorating the war began here yesterday with a dedication of a monument to the Havre dead and will be marked today by the presentation of a gold-mounted sword to King Albert, the gift of France. The sword will be received for the King by Crown Prince Leopold. There also will be the unveiling of the Belgian gift monument representing Belgium's gratitude to Havre and France.

Flowers in the name of the American soldiers will be laid on the monument of the dead by Maj. William Johnson McKay of New York.

W. K. VANDERBILT, ON CRUISE TO STUDY FLOOR OF OCEAN

Friends Expect Him to Bring Back Many Marine Specimens—Will Voyage in Palatial Yacht.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Commodore W. K. Vanderbilt intends to put his palatial yacht, the Ara, to scientific use as well as pleasure. He and a party of friends are ready to embark upon a cruise which will carry them halfway around the world.

The trip will be not only recreational, but will have a two-fold scientific purpose. It is understood he intends to make an extended study of oceanography. He probably will bring back many new specimens for the Vanderbilt marine museum on Long Island.

The Ara sailed from New York Saturday night for Newport, whence she will depart immediately. The party will include Commodore Vanderbilt, J. Gordon Douglas, George Woolsey, Davis Barnes, John P. Grier and Dr. James R Lincoln.

The trip will require about six months, during which the yacht will touch at France, Spain and many Mediterranean ports. The party is expected to entertain and be entertained wherever the Ara calls.

The Ara, 214 feet overall, and driven by Diesel motors, is the largest power yacht afloat. She is a magnificent looking craft, much after the fashion of navy vessels and was admired by hundreds when she lay in the Hudson River this spring, upon her return from Miami.

She is elaborately fitted. Her main saloon is about 40 feet long and extends almost the full 31½ feet beam of the ship. There is a large dining saloon, a library, a smoking room and art gallery, and eight or nine large staterooms, in addition to the owner's suite, which consists of stateroom and dressing room.

Besides the ordinary complement of officers and men, the Ara has accommodation for purser, doctor and secretary. In addition to the hotel-like equipment of an ocean liner, the Ara was built to carry such luxurious accessories as a motor car and a 27-foot sailing cutter.

Commodore Vanderbilt already has used her for collection of specimens for the Marine Museum, which, with the additions the Ara brought from her winter trip to Miami, made the total number in the museum 400.

Commodore Vanderbilt is the first yachtsman to undertake a serious research of oceanography since the voyage of the late Prince Albert of Monaco, whose work along that line through many years of cruising in his yacht Hirondelle brought him high honor as a scientist and won for him the Agassiz gold medal of the National Academy of Science.

How extended a study of the ocean's bottom, currents and other characteristics the Commodore plans has not been revealed, but his friends say his interest in the subject is keen and that he may be expected to add materially to the science.

MAN GETS NOTE OF WARNING AFTER BLAST

Head of Printing Company Receives Threatening Letter After Explosion Damages Place.

W. S. McAdoo, president of the W. S. McAdoo Printing Co., 1214A Pine street, which was slightly damaged by an explosion of undetermined origin late Saturday night, today received an anonymous letter, by mail, threatening to "blow up" his residence. He resides at 1116 Montgomery street.

Carl Schreiner, president of the C. Schreiner Printing Co., 510 Elm street, related that he received an anonymous telephone call at his office yesterday morning during which a voice declared, in substance, that the explosive at the McAdoo plant had been set off because McAdoo had printed circulars attacking a candidate for re-nomination at tomorrow's primary.

The voice said that the Schreiner plant would be blown up also if it printed similar circulars. Schreiner said today that he does not recall the exact language used.

"I could not understand very well," he said. "The speaker seemed to be somewhat excited."

McAdoo declined to reveal the text of the letter he received. He said it did not mention the circulars nor state any specific reason for the threatened act. McAdoo said he had not received any threats previously.

The explosion caused greater damage to the A. W. Gums Wholesale Floral Co. on the first floor at 1214 Pine street, than to the printing shop, on the second floor. The printing shop damage was limited to the breaking of all window glass in the rear.

The explosive had been placed in an air vent under the rear wall of the building. The rear wall of the floral establishment was virtually demolished, flooring was torn up for an area about six by ten feet and plate glass windows in the front were blown out. A 20,000-pound ice box near the rear wall and extending almost entirely across the building, prevented more serious damage to the front part of the building, in the opinion of A. W. Gumz. He estimated his damage at several thousand dollars. McAdoo said his damage was only a few dollars.

Circulars printed by the McAdoo firm resulted in an altercation between Circuit Attorney Sidener and Joseph C. Schroeder, his opponent for the nomination, who had the circulars printed, last Thursday night at a political meeting at 5137 Gravois avenue.

The McAdoo Co. had completed its printing for Schroeder before the explosion Saturday night. The Schreiner Co., which was printing the same circulars in the German language, had only partially completed its work. Schreiner reported to police that he received a threatening call. The patrolman on the beat was instructed to watch the place.

DIXIE DAVIS JINXES SENATORS' CHANCE TO GAIN LEAGUE LEAD

Sisler's Men Win Second Victory Over Ogden, His 2nd Defeat in 10 Games

Browns' Erratic Right-Hand Pitcher, Who Has Hypnotized Nationals for Several Seasons, Again Exerts His Mastery, Adided by Tobin and McManus.

By Dent McSkimming,

Warren Ogden, who has won 8 games and lost but 2 for the Washington Senators, would be considered one of the pitching sensations of the American League if it were not for the fact that he has been unfortunate enough to have pitched two games against the Browns.

Ogden has won two games from Detroit, two games from Cleveland, two from Chicago and two from Boston. Since he has been with the Senators the only games he has lost are two to the Browns and one of the defeats was administered yesterday at Sportsman's Park.

Connie Mack, sage leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, let Ogden go to the Senators for the waiver price, after he had given the pitcher what he considered a fair trial extending over more than a full season. His surprising performance in winning eight games out of 10 starts prior to yesterday was one of the most interesting subjects of the baseball year. Mack released him not because of a personal dislike (as was the case when Thurston was released to Chicago by the Browns), but because he believed the man couldn't win a ball game.

Driven From Mound First Time.

On July 18 at Washington the Browns knocked Ogden out of the box in the ninth inning and won the game, 7 to 6. That was a close decision and a hard game for Ogden to lose. Yesterday, Ogden tried to even the score against Sisler's club and again he was beaten in a close contest.

Hits by Tobin and Sisler in the third inning and Tobin's single followed by McManus' home-run in the seventh inning, gace the Browns a 3 to 1 victory over this remarkable pitcher.

Whether he knew it or not, Ogden entered the game under a severe handicap, for Dixie Davis was chosen to hurl for the Browns. Ray Kolp can beat the Cleveland Indians by just getting out on the pitching mound (so it is said); and the same hypnotic power applies to Davis' strange mastery over Washington. He has won many games in the past five seasons from the Senators and he has become imbued with the notion that they can't beat him. It is possible that Ogden, coming as he has from the Athletics, was not advised of this Davis peculiarity.

Davis Strong in Emergencies.

Davis gave eight hits and was in trouble in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings, but he tightened up so effectually in the pinch that Washington had seven men left on base in those three innings and Dixie held them to just one run. Joe Judge, a great first baseman and a hard hitter, hit Davis' fast ball, the first pitch in the eighth inning, for a home-run drive into the right field bleachers.

The defeat prevented Washington from entering first place in the American League race for, with New York suffering defeat at the hands of the Tigers, the Senators had an opportunity to lead the league.

There were only two errors, one a wide throw by Gerber and the other a bobble by Goslin on Severeid's single.

Goslin Out of Luck.

A fan, running across the left field foul line, interfered with Goslin's fielding of Tobin's hit in the third inning and although Johnny made second base on the drive, the umpires ruled the hit a single and sent him back to first.

Ernie Wingard and Zachary, a pair of left-handers, are due to work today in the second game of the series. Wingard beat the Yankees on his last previous trip to the pitching mound.

Ogden yesterday was somewhat wild and "Muddy" Ruel had to work hard urging the pitcher to keep the ball over the plate. He was "in the hole" to the batter on numerous occasions and the Browns made it harder for him by deliberately waiting him out.

Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, baseball's great comedians, entertained the 19,000 crowd with some new stunts, one of which was a pantomime canoe ride.

Reds to Recall Pitcher.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 4.—Pedro Dibut, Cuban pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, who was farmed out to the Florida League early this season, will be recalled when the Florida League closes, according to Manager Jack Hendricks. Dibut has won his last six starts with the Southern team.

LAST "LADIES' DAY" AT BROWNS' GAME.

BILL FRIEL, business manager of the Browns, has announced that his club will discontinue "Ladies' day" after today's game. The ladies will be admitted free today for the last time.

The reason given by the club management for the discontinuance of the custom is that because of the inability of the women to protect themselves when a foul ball is hit into the stands there have been numerous accidents and in most cases the injured persons sue the club for damages. Accidents are not so numerous when more men are present, Friel says, because the men make an effort to catch the fouls before they can do damage.

Three more Mondays are on the Browns' home schedule. The Cleveland club is scheduled here on Monday, Sept. 1; the Boston club on Monday, Sept. 15, and the Philadelphias on Monday, Sept. 22.

Heuermann and Drewes in Final Of Park Tourney

Municipal Association Still Short of Funds to Send Players to Detroit.

By Davison Obear.

Ted Drewes and Ted Heuermann reached the final round of the annual Municipal tennis tournament at Forest Park yesterday as a result of their victories in the singles and doubles events. Drewes won from Robert Moult and Heuermann eliminated Joe Smith. The O'Fallon Park stars won from the team of Niemoeller and Sauselle in the doubles.

Heuermann played almost errorless tennis to dispose of Joe Smith. Smith, after the first set, failed to play the game that was expected of him. Heuermann was very steady and gained a number of points by careful placements. Smith had a good serve during most of the three sets, but was erratic in executing other strokes. Heuermann won in straight sets, 6—2, 6—0, 6—1.

Moult surprised by playing very consistent tennis for the first two sets against Ted Drewes. Moult led at 5 to 2 and 7 to 6 in the first set, but was not quite steady enough. The Carondelet player had a lead of 4 to 2 in the second set, but again Drewes pulled it out. Drewes showed an improved game in the third set, which he won very easily. The final score was 10—8, 6—4, 6—1.

Both doubles matches in the semifinal round were decided in straight sets. Bierman and Forester eliminated Anderson and Kunze of Tower Grove Park, 7—5, 6—2, 6—2.

Drewes and Heuermann defeated Niemoeller and Sauselle, another Lower Grove combination. The first set was close, but Drewes and Heuermann were never in danger in the following two sets. The final score was 6—4, 6—3, 6—2.

Only a small crowd turned out for yesterday's matches, and the fund being raised for sending a team to Detroit for the national championship is still short. There is not sufficient money on hand to send even two players to Detroit. Martin Telle, president of the Municipal Tennis Association, said that several individuals had offered to donate to the fund, which might make it possible to send two players.

Today's Pairings.

Singles-final—3 p. m., Ted Drewes vs. Ted Heuermann.

Doubles-final—4:30 p. m., Drewes and Heuermann vs. Bierman and Forester.

RESULTS OF MUNICIPAL BASEBALL CONTESTS

Independent League.

When the Shell team scored five runs in the first inning and nine more in the third, Manager Mike Donohue shifted his lineup to give the regulars a rest and then, in the seventh inning the Stuarts went on a batting rampage and scored six runs, almost overtaking the Shells. However, the lead was too great and the Independent League leaders won by a 15-to-9 score.

The St. Vincents encountered good pitching from the Fruit and Produce Merchants but they won, 3 to 2. The Hamilton Browns and Polish Falcons split even in a double-header.

South Side Sodality.

The St. Boniface team clinched the pennant in the South Side Sodality League yesterday by defeating the St. Henry team, 10 to 5. The St. Francis de Sales nine obtained only two hits off the pitching of J. Bakula of the St. Pius team and the latter won, 6 to 0. One of the hits was a double by Schrand. Bakula fanned 11 men and did not give a base on balls.

Empire League.

The Y. M. H. A. team scored an easy victory over the Wiles-Chipmans and thereby continued to press the Curlees for the lead in the Empire League. It was expected that the Wiles Chipmans would give the Y. M. H. A. a close battle, but Durbin and Walsh of the Y. M. H. A. yielded only five hits.

The Curlees won from the Newells, 5 to 1.

Knights of Columbus.

Kenrick and Kain teams, tied for the lead in the Knights of Columbus League, won their games yesterday. Kenrick scored four runs in the ninth inning to defeat De Andreis, 15 to 11. The Normandy team, after seeing Kain pile up 11 runs in the first three innings, decided that it was dangerous to stand before the barrage of hits any longer and so they forfeited. Laclede won from DeSmet, 13 to 4.

City League.

The Meletio team remained within striking distance of the lead in the City League race by winning yesterday from the Stuart Juniors, 11 to 6, while the leading St. Casimir team was idle. Pitcher Finnegan of the Meletios was a bit wild but he fanned six batters.

H. Rathert's home run with one man on base in the ninth inning broke a tie and gave the Hope team a 5 to 3 victory over Mallinckrodts.

Edith Cummings Leads With 84 In Golf Tourney

National Champion Three Under Women's Par in Western Qualifying Round.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Edith Cummings, national champion, today took a commanding lead in the qualifying round for the Women's Western Golf championship, by scoring 42—42—84, three under women's par for the 6440-yard links of the Onwentsia Club, in spite of the flood that submerged several fairways and made playing extremely difficult.

Miriam Burns, defending champion, was the first to reach shore through the flooded links, and although she managed to get two holes in 2, she required 45 strokes for the first half and 48 for the second. Mrs. Lee Mida and a couple other players avoided the water well enough to score 42 on the first nine, which was one under women's par for the 6440 yards' course. The first nine, however, is nearly 300 yards shorter than the second.

Mrs. F. C. Letts, Chicago, after going out in 42, one under par, took 46 to come home, but her 88 placed her in temporary second place. Both Miss Cummings and Mrs. Letts are members of Onwentsia and familiar with the course.

Louise Fordyce of Youngstown, Ohio, runner up last year, took 93 strokes for the round but seemingly safe as a qualifier as did Mrs. Elaine Rosenthal Reinhart of Dallas, who got a par 44 for the second nine after going six above par on the outward journey.

Mrs. Perry Fiske of Aurora, Ill., a former title holder, required 50 strokes for the first half but was only two above perfect figures on the second nine for a total of 96.

Mrs. Lee Mida of Chicago was one under par for the first nine, but two over for the second, scoring 88, while Mrs. Dave Gaut of Memphis took 45—44—89. Mrs. Melvin Jones of Olympia Fields, Chicago champion, scored 47—45—92, while Francis Hadfield of Milwaukee, with a 50 on the second half, took 96.

St. Louis is represented in the tournament by Miss Virginia Pep, district champion, and Mrs. R. J. Kohn, runner-up in the 1923 St. Louis tournament.

MOUND CITY OARSMEN TO MAKE STRONG BID FOR NATIONAL TITLES

Century Four, Coached by Harry Allen, Is Expected To Show Well Saturday

August Muckler of the Westerns, Winner in Two Local Regattas, Is Entered for the Association Singles and the Senior Quarter-Mile Dash.

By Arthur Schneff,

The crew in the senior four-oared shell race which will probably arouse the most emoement when the boats line up for the start at the National Amateur Regatta at Springfield, Mass., next Saturday and Sunday, will be a St. Louis outfit, the Century Boat Club's quartet.

The Century crew, which departs for the East tonight, recently won in the Central States and in other St. Louis regattas, but these victories do not explain why the local entry will be regarded with close attention.

One reason is that a Century crew established the present world's record for the four-oared shell race at a mile and a quarter in dead water. The other reason is that Harry Allen, who coached the Century crew which set that record in a memorable race five years ago, is now completing his tenth year as Century's coach and has been instructing the present entry. Any crew he sends after a U. S. title is therefore worth the enemy's attention.

Allen Has Fine Record.

Allen has set a great record as a coach during his long connection with the Southside club. Not only does a four coached by Allen own the record at a mile and a quarter, but the same crew owns the record at a mile, while Century crews under his tutelage have won the Southwestern championship for the past 10 years, have never finished worse than second in the Central States regatta, and in five starts have won the St. Louis championship three times, landing in second place twice.

In 1919-21 the Century oarsmen won 22 consecutive victories, before the senior four was defeated at the national championships. Such a record establishes Allen as a highly successful coach.

The Century mentor is a St. Louis product, born here 34 years ago. He early developed a love for rowing and in 1910 became coxswain for the St. Louis Rowing Club. He was too small to develop into a great oarsman himself, but he studied the sport carefully, directing many crews to victory, and pining for himself the reputation of being the best coxswain in the city. In 1914, after a falling out with the Western Club, he voluntarily connected himself with the Century rowers. The change took place two weeks before the Lemp race, then a local classic. Allen was unable to sit in the Century boat, owing to a rule which required a three-months membership to acquire eligibility, but he volunteered his services as a coach and instructed the eight without pay. The crew he coached proved to be the sensation of the harbor, defeating the strong Western eight by three lengths and at the same time gaining its first victory in 10 years.

Beat Duluth, Set Record.

Successes followed each other rapidly. In 1919 the senior four unheard of and unheralded, made its appearance at the national regatta at Worcester, Mass. The Duluth oarsmen ruled supreme then and had not lost a senior race for several years. Allen's men not only astonished the experts by winning the race, but the single St. Louis entry set the world's record of 6 minutes 56 seconds for a still-water race at a mile and a quarter. A few weeks later the same crew, rowing in the Central States regatta at Peoria, set a record of 5 minutes 52 seconds for the mile.

From early in 1919, when the Century crew lost the spring barge race at the Riverview Club, until late in 1921, when the senior four was defeated in the national competition, Allen's crews won every race they rowed.

Allen severed his connection with Century for a short time in 1921, when the Norton Club of Worcester engaged him as coach on the strength of his showing in the national races. Allen soon returned to St. Louis to marry a St. Louis girl, rejoining the Century Club on his return.

All the men who row for Allen are devoted to him. He employs no "rough-neck" tactics in his coaching. He insists on strict training, even when the rowing season is over, and he will fire his best oarsman if he breaks training rules during regatta season. He has long been an advocate of the Western system of rowing, with which Yale has been scoring her great triumphs.

Although this year's Century four is not regarded as a wonderful crew, Allen's record as a coach plainly shows why the St. Louis entry will be closely watched when the championships start Saturday.

St. Louis Oarsmen Entered in 3 Races At National Regatta

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.

ST. LOUIS rowing clubs will be represented in at least three races in the event of the National Regatta which is to be opened at Springfield next Friday.

The Century Boat Club has entered its crack four, while the Western Rowing Club's star single sculler, August Muckler, is entered in the association singl and in the senior quarter mile dash.

Century crews have distinguished themselves in past national regattas and on two occasions have set records.

Another Western club to try for national honors will be the Detroit Boat Club which has an entry in the senior doubles.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Samson Wrecks the Temple.

STONE by stone, Thomas W. Cahill, the Samson of the American soccer world, built up that temple of the United States Football Association.

Then came the Philistines and betrayed Samson. Delilah Peel cut off his locks and sheared away his power. The Peelites even chained him to the temple pillars, in subservience to those whom once he dominated.

But Saturday Samson rose and heaved against the pillars of the temple and down it came with a crash. The pillars were those strong professional bodies, the American and the St. Louis soccer leagues, the financial props of the national institution.

One heave of Samson Tommy put them out of the national challenge cup competition, spelling ruin to this event, the very life of the U. S. F. A. At one blow Samson cut off nearly 90 per cent of the U. S. F. A. revenue and took 14 of the strongest clubs from the competition—teams that for years have monopolized the U. S. F. cup semi-finals and finals.

With no revenue and no major teams to speak of, the cup competition appears only the ruin of a once imposing structure.

May Be Excommunicated.

SAMSON CAHILL, however, is not likely to be buried in the wreckage. On the contrary, his American soccer league, working with the St. Louis and Chicago soccer leagues, ought to prosper more than ever, and the championship of the United States will now lie between these teams.

The only comeback by the clique that connived to get Cahill out of power is to excommunicate Cahill and the teams of the two Big Leagues from the U. S. F. A.

Which would be equivalent to the Three-Eye baseball league telling the American and National leagues that it would never allowed them to play with the Three-Eyes again.

Good Bye, Ladies.

"LADIES DAY," more or less of a baseball institution at Sportsman's Park, will have no significance after today so far as the Browns are concerned. The free admission of the "weaker" sex will cease with this afternoon's show, the Browns' management has urled.

There are two reasons: The first is that the ladies in some instances have proved most ungrateful, repaying kindness and free admissions with law suits.

This has happened in several instances when stinging foul tips have bruised, dislocated or even broken bones or features of spectators. On one occasion one of the almost extinct (on Mondays) male species burned a hole in a brand-new feminine sartorial outfit, for which the club had to assume financial responsibility.

Another reason is that the grand total of acceptances of the invitation to be present without cost, on Modays, runs as high as 7000, so that PAY grandstanders have little space left.

Perhaps the withdrawal of the privilege is penny-wise. As an educational feature the novelty undoubtedly created thousands of women fans, who paid their way on other days.

The creation of new business is the part of any modern enterprise.

Walker Overrated?

MICKEY WALKER appears to have a large number of followers who think he will smash Benny Leonard. Jimmy de Forrest is one of his loyal supporters.

But unless Leonard has been forced into the match with an insufficient time to train, there is no reason to believe that Mickey will be more formidable for him than he was for Lew Tendler.

True, going out of one's weight class is always dangerous. But Leonard, on consideration, will be almost a welterweight. He has always been big for a lightweight. Many believe that he has not always made the lightweight limit, behind the closed doors of the commission weighing room. But in any case he will weigh within five pounds of Walker and that will not handicap him, if Benny is in good training.

Leonard's record shows that approximately every third man he has faced in his career he has knocked out. Benny is as clever as Walker, more experienced, can hit better and knows better how to play poker in the ring by bluffing and concealing his hand. The advantages may offset the weight. In fact, a good guess would be that given equal physical condition, a knockout is more likely to happen to Walker than to Leonard.

Mickey couldn't do so very much with Lew Tendler. But what Leonard did to Tendler is history.

Wray Brown Is Victor in Valley Tennis Tourney

Retains Singles Title and Wins Doubles Final, Paired With His Brother, "Woody."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Aug. 4.—Wray Brown of St. Louis retained his Missouri Valley and Interstate tennis titles by beating Myron Hutchinson of St. Paul, in four gruelling sets on the Shore Acre Boat Club courts yesterday. The score was 4—6, 6—2, 8—6, 6—3.

Half an hour after he had left the courts after annexing the singles championship, the St. Louis star came back and paired with his brother, Woodward, won the doubles titles from Carl Meyer and Walter Newell, Kansas City, 7—9, 6—4, 6—1, 6—2.

Miss Lottie Fuller, Leavenworth, Kan., also was successful in defending her valley titles, taking the singles final from Miss Ruth Hager, Kansas City, 4—6, 6—1, 6—2. Paired with Miss Hager, Miss Fuller won the women's doubles crown in straight sets, 6—3, 8—6.

In the junior competition Horace Burton, Sioux Falls, and Charles Bauer of Mitchell annexed the title from Al Finkel and G Duising, Omaha, 6—3, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Wray Brown Has Good Day.

The stellar play of Wray Brown, who comes into permanent possession of both Missouri Valley and Interstate trophies by his victories, was the outstanding feature of the day. The St. Louis star combined all the elements of a good tennis player and breezed along through his sets with an easy confidence that nothing was able to overcome. Although Woodward did a good share of the playing in the doubles team, the greater burden of the match fell upon Wray, who slammed and chopped his way to victory.

After Hutchinson had taken the first set by winning five of the last six games, he lost the second set. In the third he displayed a tremendous burst of speed and won five games before Brown could pull a single one over to his side of the net. Then with the set point within his grasp Hutchinson faltered and Brown took the game, making the count 5—1, with Hutchinson serving. Hutchinson, however, was not quite equal to the task and the game went to Brown after being deuced.

Brown Takes Match.

From then on it was all Brown, the champion cavorting about the court and hitting the corners with plenty of speed. Only after the St. Louis player had knotted the count at 5—5 was Hutchinson able to win a game. Brown came back however, to make it six all and then broke through Hutchinson's service and won his own taking the odd set and lead as the recess was called.

The champion had little difficulty in the final set as the loss of the third set had been a hard blow to the northerner, and his game was not up to par in the last set.

The point score:

First Set.

Brown . .2 4 4 4 0 0 5 5 1 2—4
Hutch'son 4 0 2 0 4 4 3 7 4 4—6

Second Set.

Brown . . . . . 23 4 4 7 4 5 5— 6
Hutchinson . 4 6 2 1 5 1 3 3—2

Third Set.

Brown— 5 2 2 3 2 5 5 4 4 2 4 4 4—8
Hutchinson— 7 4 4 5 4 3 3 0 0 0 4 0 2 1—6

Fourth Set.

Brown . . . . . 5 4 1 1 4 2 4 4—6
Hutchinson 1 2 1 4 4 2 4 2 1—3

Meyer and Newell the Kansas City pair, entered the finals a favorite to win and after they took the first set after a hard battle it looked like they might win three straight sets and the title. The Brown brothers broke through Newell's service twice, however, and evened the count in sets by taking the second, 6—1. Meyer and Newell won the opening game of the third set, 4—2, and lost the second after it had twice gone to deuce by a 5—7 count. From then on to the conclusion of the match they were able to capture only two games, dropping the third set, 6—1 and the fourth 6—2.

Two Near-Title Bouts at Battery

Moose-Powers and Johnson-Hill Events Virtually for City Laurels.

Six special events have been scheduled by Matchmaker Harry Cook of the Business Men's A. C. to head a program of amateur boxing contests next Wednesday night at the Battery arena.

Two of the special bouts will virtually decide city championship laurels. Joe Moose of the Sherman Park A. C. and Frank Powers of the Muny A. A. will battle for the local welterweight supremacy in one headliner while the other will feature Bill Johnson of the St. Louis Rowing Club and Bobby Hill of the Sherman Park A. C. in a lightweight tussle.

Johnson was a member of the St. Louis team which participated in the Western A. A. U. championships at Kansas City, several weeks ago. He reached the title final by knocking out Burle Quinn of the Kansas City A. C. and outpointing Charlie Watts of Omaha, but was shaded in the championship final by Royal Coffman of Omaha, who afterwards won a place on the American Olympic team by capturing national championship laurels at Boston.

Hill Has 3 Years' Experience.

Hill is an experienced boxer, having advanced from the bantam to the lightweight division through three years of local competition. In his last two outs he defeated Orville Steuvers of Collinsville and Jackie Horner of the National A. A.

Billy Sincoff, a National A. A. star, will meet Eddie Reith of the St. Louis Rowing Club in one of two featherweight specials. The other will feature Jimmy McCarthy of the Sherman Park A. C. against George Cubano, a Filipino, who represents the Business Men's A. C.

Eddie O'Neill of the South Broadway A. C. will face Kid Irish of Benld, Ill., in a 100-pound setto, while Jimmy Dugan of the Municipal A. A. has been matched with Armand Ferrari of the Business Men's A. C. for a 140-pound special. Sixteen entries have been received by Matchmaker Cook for the prelim events of Wednesday night's card.

Corsaut of the Kansas Aggies reached 183, the largest enrollment recorded since the inauguration of the work here three years ago. Head Coach Bachman had the largest class in football, 60 men taking the work. The second largest class was that in basketball under Coach Corsaut, with 44 registered. Bachman had 26 in track.

Hagen and Kirkwood Win.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Walter Hagen, British open golf champion, and Joe Kirkwood, former Australian champion, defeated Mike Brady, Metropolitan champion, and Jack Dowling, 2 and 1 in 18 holes, at the Engineers' Country Club, Roslyn, yesterday. A prize for low score was won by Hagen, whose card read 41-33—74. Hagen did the last nine holes in three under par.

ITALIAN DRIVER WINS GRAND PRIX AUTO RACE

By the Associated Press.

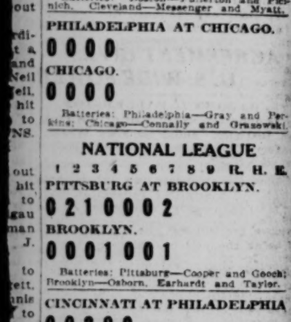

LYONS, France, Aug. 4. — Campari, an Italian driver, in an Italian car, yesterday won the $10-kilometer (603.52 miles) triangular road race for the Grand Prix of Europe. He averaged 114.9 kilometers an hour, which is 13 kilometers slower than the record.

Only eight of the 20 starters finished. Zborowski, driving a special American racer, dropped out at the half-way mark. Dario Resta, driving a British car, stopped two laps from the finish.

TRIPLE A NET TOURNEY WILL OPEN SATURDAY

The annual tennis tournament for members of the Triple A Club will open Saturday. First-round matches scheduled for yesterday were postponed on account of wet courts.

There are 80 players entered in the men's singles event while 26 teams will play in the doubles championship and Class A. In addition to the singles championship there will be three classes with 16 players in each. Harvey Frohlichstein will be official referee.

STEEL SELLS AT 110; RATES ON EUROPE UP

Industrial Issue Highest Since 1922 — British and French Exchange Strong —Time Money 2 Per Cent.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"The present movement in stocks having rounded out eight weeks of advancing prices, the weakness which cropped out in the market during the early hours on profit-taking sales was taken with equanimity by those who are committed to the bull side. In fact, some of the commission houses which have been definitely bullish were advising their clients to exercise caution and to take profits, despite the more favorable turn to European affairs. Nevertheless, there was no follow-up to the early decline, and once more, under the leadership of Steel common the market turned strong. Steel moved up to a new high price for the year at 110, the highest price, in fact, since 1922. With other market leaders and specialties following Steel's lead the whole industrial list presented a good array of advances in late period. Rails meanwhile, though neglected, were steady. For the fifteenth consecutive full day's session, the volume exceeded a million shares. Bonds were moderately active and frim with French bonds under accumulation along with the rise in the exchanges. Call money remained at 2 per cent and time funds also loaned at this rate, thus making a new low.

Exchange Is Strong.

"Actual departure today of the German delegates for the London conference to discuss the Dawes plan with the allied representatives brought a further sharp advance in European exchange rates. The London market was closed for the annual bank holiday and increased activity in trading on this side was attributed in part to participation from London. Sterling and francs were particularly strong, the former again making a new high for the year, the rise carrying the quotation up 2 cents to $4.45⅛. French francs moved up 6 points to 5.33¼ cents. Other European rates met with a good demand and Swiss francs, Dutch guilders and Canadian dollars also established new high prices for the year. While there are still possibilities of a hitch in the negotiations before a German loan actually can be floated, it is pointed out that the chances for a settlement of the reparations question are greater than they have yet been, and many of those who have been holding off on filling their needs for foreign currencies apparently are doing their buying at this time."

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Sterling went to another 1924 high record at $4.44¾ at the opening of today's foreign exchange market. The rate later slipped back to $4.44¼, about one-half cent above Saturday's close. French francs moved up about 3 points to 5.31c.

Bond Market Review

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—With bond prices moving within a narrow trading area in today's early dealings, the interest of investment circles was occupied chiefly by new financing. Oversubscriptions were reported for both the $10,000,000 Canadian Pacific issues of debenture stock and the $15,000,000 of Commonwealth Power bonds. Continued improvement in the outlook for success of the interallied conference promoted additional buying of French and Belgian bonds, which eclipsed their previous 1924 high records. Activity in Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5s, which advanced a point, featured trading in railroad liens.

CORN PRICES HIGHER ON LOCAL MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Aug. 4.—Corn was the feature on the local market today, closing higher. Wheat finished lower.

Private estimates that the 1924 wheat yield in the United States would amount to 817,000,000 bushels had a bearish effect on wheat. This called for a domestic crop estimate 67,000,000 bushels more than the total which a month ago was looked for. There was also 5,298,000 bushels increase of the United States visible supply total, but this was partly due to including for the first time the stock on hand at Wichita, Kan. A private estimate that the corn crop would exceed July 1 estimate by 120,000,000 bushels also was influence in late corn market.

In the cash grain market wheat ruled steady. Cash corn was ½c to 1½c higher under fair demand. Oats were steady to ½c higher. Demand was fair.

Wheat futures were irregular in the early trade selling higher with Winnipeg rise and renewed talk as to black rust and then reacting below previous close. Liverpool was closed today. Adverse crop reports and reported smallness of rural offerings lent strength to domestic corn prices.

Receipts here were 446 cars of wheat local and 58 through; 57 cars of corn local and 18 through; 38 cars of oats local and 10 through; 13 cars of hay local and 29 through.

The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes in bushel for the week: Wheat increased 5,116,000. Corn increased 1,022,000. Oats increased 25,000. Rye decreased 878,000. Barley decreased 6000.

CORN FEATURES TRADE ON THE CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Corn featured the grain trade today by showing further sharp gains to new high levels on the crop. Trade was big. Wheat took a secondary position, with the price action very uneven. Oats followed corn rather than wheat. Corn started out inauspiciously. Lower prices were recorded on first trade because of pressure from longs in September and from commission houses in the new crop months. The decline acted as a stimulant to outside traders and soon the surplus offerings were digested and prices moved into new high ground. Stop loss orders to buy wheat accelerated the advance. Market met with some pressure on the bulge and a reaction followed, but buying power was good enough to start prices upward again. Cash corn did not show the strength that futures did, premiums being cut ½ cent. However, sales were made at the best prices of the season. Crop reports were more favorable. Country offerings to arrive were less than a dozen cars.

Corn lost of its early advance owing to heavy selling by longs for profit. Last prices, however, were ¼c to 2c higher. Sept. $1.14⅝ to $1.15, Sept. $1.05¾ to $1.05⅞, May $1.06⅛ to $1.06¼.

Wheat had a rocky road to travel, meeting resistance on bulges, but uncovering friends on drops. The start was higher under moderate buying, but the advance was soon dissipated under offerings on resting orders. Northwest buying caused a rally, but local pressure inspired by reports of a bearish estimate by a local statistician caused a setback. Support again developed, but around the previous close offerings increased and the market seemed unable to maintain a rally thereafter. Cash wheat premiums were ½c lower. Receipts today will total close to 2,000,000 bushels. Visible supply was expected to increase over 4,000,000 bu. Rust reports were not so numerous.

Wheat closed near the low point with losses of ⅛c to ⅝c registered. Sept. $1.31⅜ to $1.31½, Dec. $1.35¼ to $1.35⅜, May $1.40¼ to $1.40⅜.

Oats were lower at the opening under selling by cash houses. Prices bulged sharply in the later trading on covering by shorts and investment buying prompted by the bulge in corn. Cash oats premiums were off ½ cent. Country offerings to arrive were slightly heavier.

Oats closed ⅝c to 1c higher, Sept., Dec. 53½c, May 56¾c.

Lard closed 7½c to 17½c higher. Ribs 15c to 30c higher and bellies 20c higher.

Local cash sales were 2000 bushels wheat, 60,000 bu corn and 22,000 bu oats.

Provisions were sharply higher at the opening on buying caused by the sharp upturn in hogs. Prices lost part of the advance later under realizing sales.

LOWER RANGE TO COTTON PRICES AT NEW YORK

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 4.—The cotton market opened easier today with first trades 32 to 40 points lower. Prices continued to ease off during the opening call until October traded as low as 27c and December at 26.96c, or 52 to 54 points below Saturday's close. The easier tone was due to reports of rains in extreme South Texas and indications of unsettled weather in other parts of that State. The market later quieted and rallied about 15 to 20 points, while awaiting the weather map. A private condition report this morning made the average 67.6 and the indicated yield 12,275,000 bales.

Another private report, placing the condition of the crop at 69.6 and the indicated yield at 12,600,000 bales, was followed by a flurry of selling which sent prices off to 27.74c for October, 54 points net lower. The decline was checked by covering on the Western belt forecast, which failed to confirm earlier shower predictions. The market was steadier around midday, with October at 27.91c and December at 27.28c, or 34 to 37 points net lower.

Trading was much quieter but the midafternoon market held fairly steady on the continuance of the Southwestern drouth as indicated by the official weather report. October ruled around 28.06c at 2 o'clock with the general list showing net declines of 20 to [illegible] points.

HOG MARKET IS ACTIVE AND PRICES RANGE UP

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Aug. 4.—Receipts today estimated: Cattle and calves, 10,500; hogs, 9500; sheep, 3000; horses and mules, 150.

CATTLE—Of a liberal steer run most of the supply went to grass Texas and Oklahoma steers. Market was slow and first to seller were the good fed cattle. Others were mostly 15c lower. A slow trade in butcher cattle, with light yearlings getting best call. Plain grassy kinds were generally 10c to 15c lower. Stockers were little changed. Canners and cutters slightly lower in the main. Veals were steady with the close of last week. Beef steers range, $6 to $11; Texas and Oklahoma steers, $4 to $10; yearlings, $5 to $12; butcher cows, $3.50 to $7.50; canners and cutters, $1.75 to $3.50; bulls, $3 to $5; stockers and feeders, $3 to $7.

HOGS—Opening rounds active with prices showing a higher trend under moderate receipts of 9500 head estimated. Top advanced to $10.50 on medium weight hogs, this class featuring the large end of the day's advance. Offerings averaging from 160 to 210 lbs. sold on the early rounds in a spread to $10.25 to $10.40 largely, heavier grades from 210 lbs. and up at $10 to $10.25, mostly 35c to 50c higher than Saturday. Pigs were active at prices generally 25c higher. Offerings from 140 to 160 lbs. at $10 to $10.35, medium weights 120 to 140 lbs. at $9.50 to $10 and light pigs and peewees from 120 lbs. and down at $8 to $9.50. Packer sows were 25c to 40c higher at $8.25 to $8.35, stags selling at $6 to $7, according to weight and quality.

SHEEP—Little done on the early rounds, buyers bidding lower. Few native lambs sold at $12.75.

Good to choice lambs quotable at $12 to $13, medium to good gardes at $11 to $12 and plain to medium at $9 to $11. Sheep about steady with best light ewes quotable up to $5.50 and medium and heavy grades at $4 to $4.50. Choppers and bucks at $2 to $2.50 and canners at $1 to $1.50, depending on weight and quality.

HORSES AND MULES.—Estimated for arrival were 150 mules and 50 horses. The horse market was very slow and buying confined to the few desirable classes. In the mule barns, however, it was a fairly good trade and some action were shown for good cotton mules and miners. Spanish orders are consuming all of the best desirable grades being offered for their approval.

Main Street not Wall Street ~ owns the Railroads

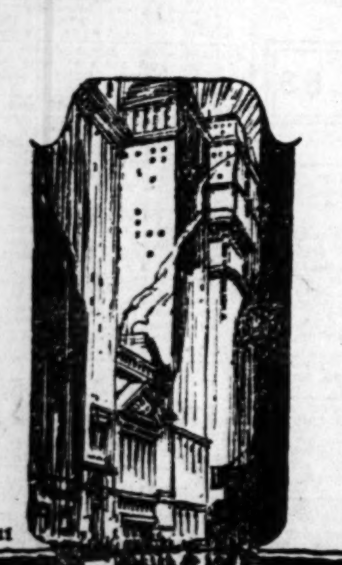

L&N — LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R. — THE OLD RELIABLE

Fifty million Americans—nearly one half of our total population, and more than twice the number that have ever voted in a presidential election—are directly interested in railroad securities. Read this statement again, and consider the enormous responsibility that rests with the managements of the carriers in handling such a trust fund.

About two million citizens are owners of railroad stocks and railroad bonds; their names appearing on the record books. The remaining 48 million people are no less owners of these securities, tho somewhat less directly. Two billion dollars worth of railroad securities are owned by the forty million people who compose the life insurance companies; for 25% of the reserves of these companies has been invested in railroad stocks and bonds.

One out of every four Americans has a savings account, and more than one billion dollars of savings-bank funds are invested in railroad securities. The great fire insurance companies, with thirty million policies protecting the property in the United States, are heavy investors in railroad securities.

Remember these things when you hear the railroads attacked by poorly-posted and in some instances vicious people. The welfare of American railroads is your welfare. Help them to continue the splendid work that they are now doing, and remember also that you and your neighbors are the real owners of the railroads.

Credit for some of these figures is given to "The American Ways" Vol. No. 2, of the Bank of Manhattan Company Library.

LEGAL NOTICE—United States District Court, Northern District of Florida, at Pensacola, Fla. The Central Union Trust Co. of New York, a corporation, etc., trustees, plaintiff, vs. the Muscle Shoals, Birmingham & Pensacola Railway Co., a corporation, etc., defendant.

To all creditors of the Muscle Shoals, Birmingham & Pensacola Railway Co., a corporation:

Whereas, Under date of July 1, A. D. 1924, a final decree of foreclosure and sale was rendered by the above styled court and entered in the minutes of said court July 28, 1924; and

Whereas, The undersigned was appointed special master thereunder with power to sell the properties of said defendant described in the bill of complaint filed in said cause, to satisfy the terms of said final decree of foreclosure and sale; and

Whereas, Said final decree of foreclosure and sale provides and prescribes a period of time wherein the creditors of said defendant railway company may file and prove their claims and demands against said defendant before the undersigned special master;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that any and all persons, firms or corporations having any claims or demands, of any nature, kind or character whatever are hereby required under the terms of the said final decree of foreclosure and sale in said cause to state, particularly itemize and file and prove the same before the undersigned as special master at Pensacola, Fla., on or before Monday, being the 15th day of September, A. D. 1924;

That all such claims and demands be supported by verification under the oath of the claimant or creditor filing such claim or demand.

This notice to be published once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in each of the following cities, viz: Pensacola, Fla.; Mobile, Ala.; New Orleans, La.; St. Louis, Mo., and New York City (Borough of Manhattan), State of New York.

This Aug. 1, 1924.

GEORGE EARL HOFFMAN, Special Master, P. O. Box 1315, Pensacola, Fla.

Larkin, Rathbone & Perry, 30 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.; Philip D. Beall and J. M. Coe, Pensacola, Fla., attorneys for plaintiff. (c18)

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

L. E. K.—Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer, is a Mason.

A. B. C. — Take your treasury note to any bank to ascertain its present value.

READER.—A half dollar of the mints of 1823 and 1834 is worth from 50c to 55c.

X. X. X.—Write to the Automobile Club of Missouri, 4428 Lindell boulevard, regarding the automobile tour.

B. J.—You can obtain the name of the person who owns the automobile by consulting the records for the number in question at the City Hall.

MRS. F. A. S.—The Knights of Columbus conduct a free night school. It is located at Grand and Olive. Inquire there for the information desired.

MR. D. G.—The "Commercial" is published at Vincennes, Ind., every morning except Monday.

J. G. G.—If the cleaning establishment has been unable to remove the spots from your suit, we are unable to advise you further.

J. M. E.—If he has your address and wishes to communicate with you he will do so, or you can write him with propriety. (2) We advise you to consult a patent attorney regarding your invention.

THANK YOU. — The amount of boiled linseed oil and oil of turpentine to be used in the thinning of the varnish would depend on the quantity. Consult your neighboring hardware store.

P. S.—La Follette is a French name, pronounced Lah-Foll-ette, accent on the second syllable (foll—as in folly). The English pronunciation is Laf-o-let. However, there is no ruling for the pronunciation of proper names.

ANXIOUS.—Try addressing the man in question at Granite City, Ill. If the letter is returned, go to the Public Library and consult the directory of manufacturers and you can probably locate the concern with which he was connected.

ANXIOUS.—Little is known of the causes of the light of the firefly. One scientist claims that the light is due to the fact that they hatch in a particular kind of decayed wood which imparts a phosphorescent quality to the body of the bug.

A DAILY READER—Following is the form to be used in addressing an envelope in answer to an advertisement. "Box ..." on first line, "St. Louis Post-Dispatch" on second line, "12th and Olive sts.," on third line and "City" or "St. Louis, Mo." on the fourth line.

ANXIOUS—In order to loosen a glass stopper let fall a few drops of ammonia into the crack around the stopper. Or tap the stopper sharply, but not too hard with a clothes-pin or piece of wood. Or heat the neck of the bottle slightly with hot water or over the gas.

WIFE.—To clean white paint use spirits of ammonia, in sufficient quantity to soften the water and ordinary hard soap; this will make the paint look white and clean with half the effort of any other method. Care should be taken not to have too much ammonia, or the paint will be injured.

HOUSEKEEPER. — In sizing a rug dissolve one part of common glue with 10 parts of warm water. Hang the rug over a pole and paint the wrong side of it with a paint brush dipped in the solution. Do not get too much of the solution on the back side of it or the solution will soak through and show on the surface. It is best to do this out of doors, where the rug can dry quickly.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

A. J. K.—It is necessary to have a permit to convert a shed into a garage by making the shed larger.

MRS. MAY.—You cannot sue a person for sending you an ugly valentine.

WORRIED.—Apply to the Probate Court for the removal of the administrator of an estate.

FAIR PLAY.—You could not set aside the will without more evidence than your statement shows.

ANXIOUS.—If the holder of the mortgage will carry it without renewing it, it is all right, but it is much safer to have it renewed. A mere promise to carry it is not legally binding.

H. H. B.—It will require about 30 days to examine a title on a piece of real estate, and about the same time to record a general warranty deed. A general warranty deed is not sufficient without a title.

ANXIOUS.—A man's widow can claim one-third of his estate for life at his death, whether he makes a will or not, or she can claim a child's share. The widow will have to pay the mortgage on her one-third interest, or let it be foreclosed. (2) She can claim a child's share in the personal property (stocks and bonds) unless they have been transferred into the children's names during the husband's lifetime.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

BUNNY.—It should be possible to be treated at the hospital you mention. If not, apply at 1605 S. Fourteenth street, or Grand and Caroline avenues, for treatment.

X. Y. Z.—Some of the symptoms of diabetes are as follows: General feeling of being out of sorts and not up to the mark, loss of flesh, and sugar in the urine. Consult a medical bookshop for a book on the subject.

MRS. G.—A "pain in the back" may occur through so many causes, that a careful search in such a case is necessary. We do not think a neuritis is likely. An X-ray examination should be made of the spine, among other things, in search for the cause.

T. M. E.—To remove freckles, apply the following at night. Hydrag. ammoniat and bismuth subnitrat., each one dram, and ungt. aq. rosae, one ounce. (2) Freckles are not injurious to the skin, nor is superfluous hair injurious to the health. Clean water will not hurt the eyes.

P. O.—Perhaps all the lice were not destroyed in previous treatments of the hair. Soak the hair in coal oil and wrap in a towel for some hours, being careful of fire. Wash thoroughly and dry out excess rinsing water. Soak hair in vinegar for an hour or two, wash, rinse dry, and use fine tooth comb. The vinegar dissolves the attachment of the nits to the hair. Repeat if necessary.

KSD NOTICE

There will be no evening program broadcast by Station KSD during the period beginning July 27 and ending Aug. 6. Market reports will be continued on regular schedule.

THE QUESTION OF THE FUTURE — Chapter 7.

MARJORIE had tried to slip away from the library after her father's announcement that he was ruined, but he restrained her.

"You might as well know everything," he told her grimly. "You'll hear it from other people soon enough."

As a matter of fact, it was well Marjorie stayed, for Mrs. Boice-Nevins, after one blank uncomprehending stare at her husband, sat suddenly down in a chair and had lady-like hysterics.

Neither Marjorie nor Boice-Nevins was at all upset by her performance, having seen it given many times before over such trivial matters as a misfit gown or unmatching pearls.

Marjorie employed a restorative far more effective than aromatic spirits or brandy.

"Dearest," she pleaded, kneeling beside her, "you'll ruin your eyes and your pretty frock will get crushed."

It was magic. Mrs. Boice-Nevins sat up, still sobbing gently, and fumbled for a handkerchief. Having found a scrap of silk and lace, she dabbed it carefully to her eyes and remarked petulantly:

"Boice-Nevins, how could you! What a criminal thing to allow!"

"Yes, wasn't it?" he said grimly. "Very careless of me to permit myself to be wiped out. I can't fancy what I was thinking of."

She flushed resentfully at his sarcasm.

"Of course, it's only temporary?" she questioned. "You'll be on your feet again at once. Mr. Hollister——"

Boice-Nevins mouth set grimly.

"Hollister did his utmost to save me. I owe him a debt I can never repay—not money alone, though Heaven knowns how much that is . . . I tell you, Charlotte, everything is gone, everything, and my creditors——"

He flung himself down in a chair and bowed his graying head on the table with a groan.

Mrs. Boice-Nevins sniffed gently, dabbing carefully with her handkerchief lest she damage her make-up.

"Oh well, you can borrow more somewhere, I'm sure, and we can cut down with a servant or two. I suppose we'll have to abandon the European trip this winter though," she added regretfully.

He raised his head with a harsh laugh.

"I rather think we will . . . Charlotte, can't you understand? Everything's gone! Servants, cars, the place at Palm Beach, this house . . ."

Mrs. Boice-Nevins was out of her chair in an instant. She stood before him, a small, quivering, defiant figure.

"You mean it? You're telling the truth?"

"Would I lie about something like this?" he asked bitterly.

"Why do the house and cars have to go?" her voice was strangely crisp.

He made an impatient gesture.

"To pay my creditors . . . Charlotte, you don't know what I owe, how I've borrowed and schemed and mortgaged and sold to try and avert this thing that happened today! I've gambled with everything I could lay my hands on . . And I lost!"

The despairing pathos of his voice brought Marjorie to his side, warm, impulsive, pitying.

"Not everything, Dad. You've got mother and me and——"

"Please omit me," Mrs. Boice-Nevins voice was cold, contemptuous. "I have no patience with failures, and I refuse to be noble and sacrificing and heroic. You shouldn't have taken such chances, risked things that you had no right to risk when their loss deflected on other people. I won't suffer for your blunders, please understand that. I won't give up my house and cars and servants, just because you owe money to stupid people who make a business of collecting on failures . . . . We'll continue to live just as we are doing and you can get into some other business——"

He interrupted her grimly.

"Do you know how long it would take to build up an income that could support the expenditures of this household, of yourself, for instance?"

She shrugged.

"Please don't waste time blaming me for your failure. It's like you, of course. The thing to discuss now is, what are you going to do? Not lie down and say your beaten, I hope," her voice was cool, crisp, decisive.

He wavered, passed an uncertain hand over his tired eyes.

"I don't know. My brain's in chaos. I can't think. There's a South American opening Hollister offered me. It would take years perhaps to build up, but we could live cheaply down there." His voice was beginning to take on hope, but Mrs. Boice-Nevins cut him off with a curt laugh.

"YOU can live cheaply down there . . . . I have other plans."

WHAT FLOWERS DO FOR YOU

By Sophie Irene Loeb

FEW people realize the value of flowers—what they do to you. While as a general thing it is natural to love blossoms and to like to have them about, the real good that flowers accomplish is inestimable.

SOPHIE IRENE LOEB

As Henry Ward Beecher puts it, "Flowers are the sweetest things that God ever made and forgot to put a soul into."

A great author tells a story of how once when he was in the heart of the forest he broke his leg. He was entirely alone and was just able to crawl to a shed that had been abandoned. There he lay for several days without any human aid, ministering to himself as best he could.

On the second day he noticed coming through the crevice of the stony floor a little blue flower, and he has written a story of how this flower was his one beacon of hope. Watching it grow, seeing its beauty seemed to inspire him and keep up his spirit.

Every morning the first thing that greeted his eye was this blossom. It was like some friend come to buoy him up and to give him courage. When he was able to get out on the highway and secure help his stronghold on things was that little delicate flower that seemed to him to have come from heaven itself.

My good friend, Margaret Wilson, is never so happy as when she has a few pink roses at her bedside. She gets inspiration from them. They stimulate her thoughts and give her much solace and comfort.

As for myself, I can accomplish twice as much when I have some flower to look at when I am working. I dont' care what it is. It may be a wild daisy or the loveliest pink rose. There is something about the sweetness and beauty of it that gives solace to the soul.

The love of flowers should begin in the school room. I know several elderly people who have most lovable dispositions and I attribute it to the fact that they wander in their old-fashioned gardens. You will seldom, if ever, find a person who likes flowers to have a harsh or biting manner. People who tenderly care for them are usually kind.

Nothing is more beautiful to me than the smile on old Higgins' face, my old gardener, as when he brings me the first iris that he finds in the early spring. How graciously he cares for each kind of blossom as it comes. He is 72 years young because he has learned to love these beautiful blooms.

Flowers in the sick room—how much they mean to the sufferer. What is there about it? There must be something in the nature of the flower than gives comfort and hope. It is worth while for every mother to teach her children to cultivate an appreciation of all kinds of flowers—for both boys and girls.

The one who coined the phrase, "Say It With Flowers," knew that there is no messenger, no harbinger of happiness that gives joy to greeting as much as such fragile gifts.

It is just as important to learn the love of flowers as that of music. Both are food for the soul and in the material world of today they they are badly needed.

Cranberry Frappe.

Boil one quart of cranberries with one pint of water 10 minutes and strain through a fine sieve; add the juice of two lemons and two cups of sugar. Freeze to a mush. Serve with or after a roast turkey. Arrange the frappe in a deep glass dish and surround with six stemmed shallow glasses, on a large tray. Place the tray before the hostess with the proper spoon and knife with which to serve the frappe.

TENTING TONIGHT ON THE OLD TOURIST CAMP GROUND

By NINA WILCOX PUTNAM.

A BOY friend of mine once wrote a piece something to the effect pearls, pearls that my bosom so adores, you used to come from oysters but now you come from stores.

I don't remember are them the exact words, but the idea is correct, and often the beautiful sentiment comes to my mind when I think of camping out. On account camping out used to be done in the wild woods and now it is done in the wild Fords, instead.

I'm not so old but that I can remember ½ doz. yrs. ago when I and George, that's my husband, first went camping.

We selected a neck of the woods which could be got to by train and by horses and wagon, and which some alleged friend claimed was noted for its fishing.

When we finally got to there, we set up a tent, soon noted for its leakage, and after that we never moved from the spot except maybe to slap a mosquito.

There wasn't nobody within miles, and I would sit making shell pattern table mats all by myself, pretty near dying for a chat even wtih my worst friend ,while George was off at the river hoping that eventually he would catch something bseides his line in the underbrush.

One of the chief sports we went in for on them trips was going to the jolly old river for every drop of water we used, and dipping it up, bugs and all, in the jolly old dish pan.

If we wanted a bath, why we either kept on wanting it, or else we took it in the river, along with the water spiders.

And then at night, after all the fun of washing up the supper dishes, we would sit around the camp fire, and the dear little gnats and moths and mosquitoes would come and join us in a real tame not to say chummy manner, and we would try to keep up each other's courage with talk about ain't this wonderful.

Wonderful was correct. Wonderful we lived through it but it all come under the head of pleasure so we felt we had to stick it out, and when our term was up, we come home brown as a berry, from iodine.

That was in the old days when camping out was something a person done more so's to be able to say they had than for the actual pleasure.

It was the real thing, of course—the mosquito bites and poison ivy markings a person generally brought home was proof enough of that.

But it was what you might call the prehistoric or stone age of camping out, because such modern camp helps as practically indestructable flivvers wasn't as yet invented, and permanent camps and permanent waves was not, as now, on the market within reach of all.

The last named is really the most important camp accessory of all, at least to us ladies' way of thinking, on account the minute a woman's hair is off her mind, if you get what I mean, she ain't so afraid of outdoor life; and, believe you me, the permanent wave has done lots towards we up-to-date girls going in for it, although Ma still gets around the hair question on our auto comping trips in the old-fashioned way by merely adding a permanent boudoir cap to her khaki shirt and knickers.

Well, anyways, municipal permanent camps, which pretty near every sensible town in the country now has one of them, have also helped a lot with the development of my true love for the grate-out-doors.

Running water from a faucet, even when a person has to stand in line to get it, appeals to me a whole lot better then running water from a brook. While waiting to tap the camp tap a person can at least talk, and exchange views about ain't the road over Lump Mountain something terrible and did you-all ever know Joe Bush of the Hawthorne Club he come from Michigan too, I see you have a Michigan license. And other high signs of the high road.

Yes, I'll tell the world it's all very fine to pitch a tent, but I'd a whole lot rather park the Ford.

Once I and George and Ma and Junior gets started on a camping trip in our Henry car, we should worry about our neighbors, we got lots of them. But we don't have to stay put, we can go anywheres we want, and we have done it, including the X-continental trip.

It is my strong advice to motor campers that they should never attempt to carry more than the entire contents of their house when they start out, on account they are bound to pick up a few souvenirs such as pieces of the petrified forest, grass baskets, real genuine Indian blankets from New Jersey, strings of beads and strings of seeds, shells, chips off of monuments, and so forth. And the point is, a lot of states don't allow more than one trailer.

So start out light. Don't clutter up any place except the tonneau, the trunk rack, the running boards, the fenders and the space behind the emergency brake. If you do, and there is more than five or six in your party, you are just naturally going to be crowded and uncomfortable.

Of course, if you go build yourself one of these automatic, self-starting houses, why then that's something different; you get a whole lot more space to clutter up.

Another grand rule we have found possible to enforce on ourselves with auto camping is to take the kids.

Then, when you are not busy changing a tire, making personal examination into intimate parts of the engine in order to try and locate the squeak in the rear fender, or some other dainty mechanical chore along the wayside, why you can amuse yourself thinking up a new bunch of "don'ts" to tell the kids, unless they beat you to it by suggesting a few original ideas along that line by their actions.

Kids on a auto camping trip will help to keep it from being unhealthfully restful. They will also give you a highly superior feeling over the campers who was too mean or too scared to bring theirs along.

Kids is as important to the equipment of your car as the jack, or the spare tire, and all first-class sporting goods departments in the big stores now carry special hobbles for campers' children, to be put on the feet while parking, and the news portable phonograph have a dandy little record that says "dont!" once every minute, and "come back out of that road," "leave that alone," and "stop it" alternately after every three "dont's," so it is now easy and scientific to take the dear little ones along.

Another boy friend of mine wrote another poem, onct, to the effect East is East and West is West and never the twain shall meet. And ever since he wrote it the world has been claiming he said a mouthful.

Well, all I got to say is, he was never in a auto camp.

I don't care where you take it, up in Connecticut, down in Miami, out through Illinois, at the Grand Canyon or the Yellowstone, I never yet seen a camp where you didn't find East and West meeting and discovering mutual friends.

Of course, quite a few times these mutual friends has got to be improvised, as you might say, on the spur of the moment.

For a sample, if you are from Bangor, Maine, and you find yourself parked next to a family from Needles, Ariz., why the chances are they will say to you say do you know a feller in Bangor keeps a livery stablé by the name of Smith?

And you will say Ed Smith, all smiles, see.

And they will say, yeh, that's him, say do you know him?

And you will say, why not exactly but my cousin Bill Hall used to kep his horses over there all the time.

And then all will join in singing the Auto Campers' National Anthem entitled, "My! Ain't the World Small"

As you may have observed your own self, East not only meets West, but each of them go there, if you get me. And North goes South and vice versa. Which is one reason why every movable American is yearly more proud of his country, and more if a booster for the whole of it.

It's a modern, new, up-to-date way of being out of doors, this auto camping. There are still plenty who claim that it's not the genuine thing on account there ain't no breaking of camp sites, no chopping of fire wood, no solitude. All of which is true enough. But the new way is teaching us to know each other, to see our country and to love it.

Meeting, talking, understanding; them are the things which prevents sectional feeling, prevents jealousies, and petty wrangling.

These is what welds a people together, to make them kinda like one big family, each working for the good of all.

And a good name for the Auto camp might be "The Melting Pot for Americans."

It seems that the charm of black lingerie is insistent. Scarcely is black lingerie out of style than it is back again. Just now, a set of black georgette under things trimmed with small flat white satin flowers is noteworthy.

The Cold Shoulder

DRAWN [BY] NELL BRI[NKLEY]

SHE was Bill's "icy mountain." Out of the mild atmosphere that Bill lived in, the gentle, golden haze that his amiable mind made warm his world with, she lifted her pale, blonde beauty—inaccessible, remote, icy, chill! She froze him even while she called him.

The cold light that silvered her forehead, eyes and shoulders was a beacon to him—that lured. He dreamed of climbing there and conquering his siren-mountain. And all with the good aid of a hopeful, zealous guide—same old guide who has taken you and me and the other fellow to many places—castles in Spain, country lanes, places obscure, places next door, north, south, high and low—anywhere, everywhere.

Sometimes he has dropped one or another of us over the side—quite accidentally. He is "devastated" of course, and you—YOU never see either your goal, your dream—or the safe place you came from any more!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

Garrets.

IF dusty garrets of the world could speak, if vivid words could well from crazy floors and chairs that moan and squeak, what stories they would tell! How bare and grim and cheerless are the walls, how hard the narrow bed, and when by chance some climber's footstep falls, how long loud echoes tread! The spider webs that drape the corners there are like the tenant's hopes, as fair as flowers, but twice as frail as fair, while through doubt's mists he gropes. The dingy walls have watched through many a day the vigilant hand and heart, have watched to see Youth's glories fade away as April days depart. And yet, there has been recompense enough for all this pain and care, for shining dreams wrought out of splendid stuff have grown and blossomed there. When Winter howled the cheerless place was cold, but fires of Genius burned, and lo! the walls, so tumble down and old, into a palace turned. Outside the cruel north wind raved and blew, the tempest roared all night; but on dull canvas crimson poppies grew and clover fields shone white; and piercing through the clamor of the storm came poignant notes and strong, notes falling swiftly into perfect form, in sweet, undying song. If bleak and dingy garrets of the Earth could tell the tales they know, of lovely things that in them came to birth, how fair their walls would glow! Ah, pity not poor Youth who climbs the stairs that tremble at his tread, for who can know but what, unseen, he wears a crown upon his head?

Cecil Hull of Shinn, Kan., did not change her name when she became a bride recently, for her bridegroom's name was also Cecil Hull, therefore Miss Cecil ... came Mrs. Cecil Hull.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Press It First.

Press the mussed material before attempting to cut it out. You are very apt to have a misshapen garment if the material is not smooth under the pattern.

Refreshments.

For that informal "feed" after the evening card party, try sandwiches made of sweet pickles, chopped fine and mixed with plain cream cheese. Spread between thin slices of whole wheat bread. Serve with iced ginger ale.

Clean As You Go.

If bottles, jars and jelly tumblers are washed thoroughly, dried and aired before putting them away for preserving time, you will find a big part of your work done before you start. Then they need only have a boiling hot water bath and they are ready.

Did You Know?

You can buy a pie-sealing tape that comes by the yard and is used to wrap around the edges of the unbaked pie, to be removed when the pie is done. It would prove invaluable to the cook who bakes a number of pies, particularly during the berry pie season.

A head of cabbage for a scrub brush? One woman cleanses her rugs beautifully that way. She cuts a large firm cabbage in half and uses the half to rub the carpets. Of course, the soiled portions should be sliced off from time to time.

...here is great rejoicing and ...y-making in a Norwegian ...sehold when a marriage takes ... To people in this country ...costume worn by the bride might appear ridiculous, but to these simple-living, quaint and finely friendly souls, it is considered the very latest, and the bride always reserves her very best finery for this happy occasion.

Each village or town in Norway has a different mode of dress for the women. The different embroidery and designs on their costumes enable one to tell from what district the wearer comes.

In the larger cities of Norway weddings are celebrated in the same way as in America. But in the more remote parts of the country one may still see a real Norwegian wedding.

The bride, arrayed in her best wedding finery and wearing the dress of her particular district, rides to church on a pony. The master of ceremonies selects the pony, which is usually a strong animal capable of holding any number of her relatives who care to ride with her.

It is considered nothing unusual for a wedding celebration to last for two or three days at a time. There is much joy and feasting, followed by a dance on the green.

After marriage the woman wears a white, starched, linen cap, called a "skaut" to distinguish her from the unmarried women who wear no caps.

French Toast.

One-half cupful flour, one teaspoonful baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful salt, one-half cupful milk, one egg, sliced bread. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt, add milk and beaten egg. Beat well. Into this dip bread, fry in hot fat, drain and serve hot with powdered sugar.

Ham Butt With Milk Sauce.

Prepare ham butt for baking seasoning according to preference but use quart of milk instead of water in roaster or baking pan, basting frequently. Thin gravy in pan before serving.

Egg Salad.

Boil three eggs hard, remove shells, split eggs lengthwise and remove yolks. Rub yolks to a paste, add salt, paprika and bit of mustard. Fill halved whites with this mixture, serving on lettuce leaves with French or mayonnaise dressing.

FASHION FRILLS

There is a new way in Paris today of wearing the scarf. It is folded, shawl like, and then the end folded under again after which it is tucked into the neck in front. The result is a Marie Antoinette touch.

A black felt hat bound in black grosgrain is the chic thing at present for daytime wear in London. It has a very tailored ornament of ribbon or feathers in the middle of the front and a high directoire crown.

Forecasts of autumn styles emphasize the note of simplicity. With this simplicity goes a tendency toward the strictly tailored, but, also, for a chance, a thought is given to the more mature woman instead of the boyish young girl.

Some of the new frocks have an adjustable belt, so that the waist line may be high or low as desired. In these days when fashions change from directoire to low waist line such an adjustable device is a happy idea.

PEOPLE WE HATE

MARGUERITE MOORS MARSHALL

THEY are the intellectuals, who prate of the free, untrampled, primitive life.

And insist on giving you a taste of it!

Arriving, you are told you must sleep in the open.

A specimen of every insect—known and unknown—shares your bed.

Next morning you appear with swollen eyes,

Grimy of face and hands—

And there's no water—the spring is a MILE away!

After breakfast all start out, attired in bathing suits,

Armed with soap, lunch, fishing paraphernalia, and a can of WORMS.

You walk, and walk, and walk, and walk, and WALK.

You walk right into a lake, with a cake of soap in your hand.

Bugs are on the surface of the lake, mud is on the bottom.

After bathing, all sit down to lunch;

Big ants are crawling all over you, but your courage holds out

Until a fuzzy, fat caterpillar drops right on your hair!

You SCREAM—

Your host jumps up and, in his excitement, kills it—right there!

Unsuccessful at fishing, all start for home more dead than alive.

You pause on the way, to look at a he-cow,

And are observing that "she" looks queer

When "she" suddenly gives chase—gosh, how you run!

You never knew you had so much pep.

Safe over the fence, everybody begins to laugh.

At YOU—you look so scared!

When you arrive at the shack, sunburned, mosquito-bitten, hungry,

The chicken cannot be served for dinner—primitive life is iceless.

This is the last straw—you decide to return home in the morning.

NEVER AGAIN!

To Get Best Results From the Refrigerator

UNDER ordinary household conditions and where ice is obtainable, the refrigerator is generally the best means for keeping foods cool, states the United States Department of Agriculture. When ice is placed in the refrigerator, it begins to melt by absorbing heat from the surrounding air. This air, becoming colder and heavier, settles to the lower part of the refrigerator, while the warmer air rises, gives up heat by coming in contact with the ice, and in turn becomes chilled and sinks to the bottom. These currents of air come in contact with the food, absorb heat from it, and so cool it.

On the continuous and rapid circulation of cooled air in a refrigerator, then, in large measure depends its value as a storage place for foods. All spaces for the passage of air from the ice chamber should be kept open. It is a mistake to wrap the ice in paper or cloth. Such a covering retards the circulation of air and insulates the ice from the rest of the refrigerator. Hot foods should, whenever possible, be cooled to room temperature before being put into the refrigerator. Food from the market should be unwrapped and vegetables trimmed before being put into the refrigerator. The coldest place in the refrigerator should be reserved for the most perishable foods, such as milk and meat. This is usually just below the ice chamber, but it can easily be located with a reliable thermometer.

The refrigerator should be kept scrupulously clean. Only clean food, clean ice and clean containers should be put into it, and any food spilled should be wiped up immediately with a clean, damp cloth. The ice chamber, drainpipe and trap must be kept free from sediment and slime and consequently should be washed occasionally with hot water and washing soda and rinsed with cold water.

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

The Narrowest of Escapes

Give luck full credit when you must,
But ne'er in luck put all your trust.
—Old Mother Nature.

MANY, many times had Happy Jack Squirrel's four children played tag around the trunk of the tree in which they lived. In playing this they had learned to be very quick. It was well for the foolish little Happy Jack, who had disobeyed his mother and when no one was looking had jumped over in the next tree, that he had learned in play how to dodge around the trunk of a tree. He was dodging now, but not in play. No, sir, he wasn't dodging in play! He was dodging around the trunk of the that tree for his life! That is what he was doing, dodging for his life!

He was dodging around the stump of that tree for his life

Every time he dodged there would be a swish of great wings, and a big bird with the most awful looking claws would sweep past. It was Redtail the Hawk, and Redtail had made up his mind that he was going to have a dinner of tender, young squirrel. Swoop and swish would come Redtail. The frightened, foolish, little Happy Jack would dodge around the trunk of a tree. Redtail would turn with surprising quickness and with a swoop and swish he would be back again. It seemed to the foolish little Happy Jack that he hardly had time to get his breath before he must dodge again.

How he did wish he hadn't disobeyed his mother. How he did wish that he had remained with his brother and sisters in the home tree. He was in a tight place, was that little Happy Jack. There was no hole in that tree for him to dodge into. He knew nothing to do but to keep on dodging and dodging around the trunk of that tree. He couldn't keep this up forever. He knew that. Already he was beginning to grow tired. You see he was only a little fellow.

His mother had discovered what was going on, and she was doing her best to distract the attention of Redtail. But it was useless. Redtail was too old and too wise a hunter for this. He had tried too many times before to catch Mrs. Happy Jack. He knew that the little Happy Jack would soon become too tired to dodge quickly. So he paid no attention whatever to Mrs. Happy Jack, although she bravely showed herself in the open where it would seem that he had every chance to catch her.

More and more tired grew the little Happy Jack. He didn't move as quickly now as he had moved at first. Twice Redtail all but caught him. Terror filled his heart. He had no hope. Still he kept on dodging. He would keep on doing then to the end.

To win this dreadful game of dodge for his life the little Happy Jack had gradually worked down the trunk of the tree until at last he was only a few feet from the ground. Redtail turned more quickly than usual and came swooping back. Frantically the little Happy Jack scrambled around the trunk of the tree. He was so tired that he had no strength left. His claws slipped. Then he lost his hold on the bark, and down he fell. It was his good fortune that right below him was a little pile of brush. He had just strength enough to crawl into that brush. With a scream of anger Redtail made a last swoop just as the little Happy Jack's tail disappeared. He was safe! But it had been the narrowest of narrow escapes. It had been luck that he had fallen just where and when he did.

One exclusive designer declares that while nothing is more chic than the yellow flannel sports suits, yet a yellow suit or frock is losing half its chic without a touch of black. He introduces little stiff black bows and black silk pipings.

-to keep them air-tight

ROW on row of beautifully packed jars! What a gratifying show they make on your storeroom shelves.

But what assurance have you that your jar rubbers will safeguard them through the weeks and months to come?

Every jar rubber must do two important things if it is to make an air-tight seal. It must first stretch and then it must "set."

It must stretch enough to pass easily over the neck of the jar. Too much stretch robs it of the ability to snap back into place—to "set."

Only if the rubber will "set" firmly can you be sure of a permanent air-tight seal.

Today you can buy jar rubbers already tested for stretch and "set." For months in its own great laboratories the United States Rubber Company worked to develop a superior jar rubber and in its "U.S." brand it offers you rubbers that meet the most rigid test.

Ask your dealer for "U.S." Jar Rubbers—tested to keep your pack safe. In red and white rubber, plain or double-lipped.

What careful milling means to your baking

You know what happens when you try to save time by beating white of egg into cake batter instead of "folding" it in. The air cells in the egg are broken down and the cake refuses to rise properly!

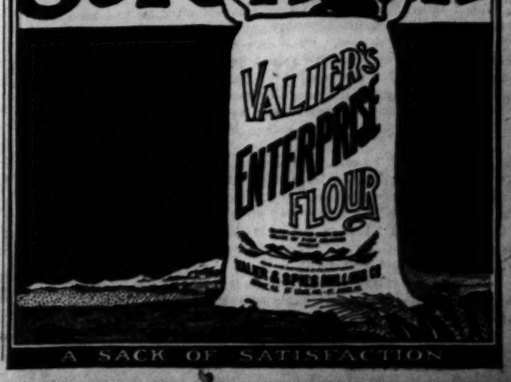

A similar thing holds true in the milling of flour. If the wheat is ground too fast the "life" is crushed out of it. Baking done with it won't rise as it should.

That is why the mills run so slowly when they grind the top premium grade of hard winter wheat that goes into Enterprise Flour. They cut the wheat into tiny particles instead of crushing it.

Enterprise retains the life and strength nature put in the best part of the very best wheat. The inevitable result shows in your baking.

You can always depend on Enterprise

A SACK OF SATISFACTION

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH DAILY MAGAZINE

Ring Lardner's Monday Letter

Set the Pace in Retiring From Field of Action

Also Remained Faithfully for Year and a Half

Dear Editor:

SOMEBODY anonymous and probably fictitious has wrote in and asked me to tell them a few words of truth in regards to the recent debacle in New York city which I have nicknamed the Democratic convention.

Well in the first place a N. Y. newspaper worked its head off to get the convention into N. Y. city but nobody worked their heads off to get them out. During the first year and a half I attended pretty faithfully as I was supposed to be covering same.

I am speaking from a reporter's standpoint. The delegates probably think they done a grand thing and I haven't no doubt they did, because Mr. Davis's pictures looks like he was O. K. and Mrs. Davis's pictures looks like she would be a fine first lady of the land, but the leading question is why could not they have found that out sooner.

At this junction my suggestion for future Democratic conventions is that they take a leaf out of the book of certain newspapers when the last named is picking the most beautiful gal in the country from photographs and they have a jury composed of Neysa McMein, Harrison Fisher and Charles Dana Gibson or somebody and it don't take them more than a couple of minutes to pick the winner and if this same jury has been chose to name the Democrat nominee and wife, why we would of been through the second day instead of sweltering there a couple of weeks. And probably got the same results.

Another trouble with this convention was that the chairman was Senator Walsh, who had been running the oil investigation ever since last fall and ½ their witnesses would not be there so the Senator from Montana got into the habit of saying leave us adjourn.

It seemed to me like as if every time I looked up at the roster the Senator from Montana was saying leave us adjourn till tomorrow morning, which meant that the newspaper men would half to get their wife out of bed and say I won't be home tonight and receive a sour word in reply and the delegates would half to go back to their hotel and get a dirty look from the night clerk who was wondering when they would go home so as they would have rooms for customers that paid their bill and wanted food once in a while.

Delegates or Gunmen.

They was one very good political reporter whose name I won't mention on acct. of jealousy but any ways he told me that he showed up every A. M. at 10:30 or whenever it was and stood up while they had the opening prayer and sung the Star Spangle Banner and then he would set down and listen till the guy from Alabama said 24 votes for Underwood and then this here reporter would start in on a new book and during the life or death of the convention he read the entire works of Dostoievsky and Shakspeare and memorized the role of Hamlet and learned the music to Carmen by ear. When Senator Walsh reached the adjoining stage, this reporter would go to the nearest police box thinking it was a typewriter and send 3000 snappy words to his paper, the gist of which was that Alabama was still casting 24 votes for Underwood.

On one occasion I come out into the so called open air and met Delegate Covay Woola from Peru, Indiana, and I made the perhaps indelicate remark that he looked like he needed a shave.

"I know I do," was the reply of Covay Woola, "but I only brung a dozen blades with me."

What can you do with a convention like that?

At one stage they say that both Gov. Smith and Mayor Hylan and the dept. of the Interior was going to call on the Immigration officers and have all delegates deported irregardless, but they kind of thought that would be rude, so now it can be told they asked me what to do about it and I give them the suggestion to have all newspaper men quit attending the convention which I for one had all ready set the pace and a whole lot of others had followed and the result was that one night the people that was supposed to be running things got us all out of our hiding places and said if you come down tonight we will nominate a candidate and also tell the delegates to walk, not run, to the nearest exit. So that is what come off but I was not present, greatly to my regrets and regards as I had predicted Davis in the first place.

Well gents they may have another convention in N. Y. city but it will be on the same basis that the police deals with gun mens, namely:

"We ain't got nothing on you, but if you don't leave town in 24 hours, well—"

And a delegate's word is as good as his bond. Or better.

A WIZARD ON MONEY MATTERS.

THE visitor was an Englishman. He was paying his first visit to America, having come to see his married daughter and his newly-arrived grandson.

As it happened, the steamer landed earlier than was expected and so there was no one at the dock to greet him. But he knew his daughter's address—it was only a matter of six blocks across town from the wharves—and in due time a public conveyance landed him with his luggage at the proper destination. Before anyone suspected his presence, he was ringing at the apartment door.

"But father," asked the young matron, after he had been welcomed, "did you have any difficulty getting here?"

"Not at all," he said. "The only thing that perplexed me was your Yankee money. On the ship I had two pounds changed into American coins. The purser tried to explain their value but I couldn't understand him—after dealing with pennies and shillings and half crowns, these American terms seemed so stupid."

"Well, then, how did you reckon how to pay your taxi fare?" she asked.

"I didn't try," he said. "When the cab stopped here in front of the house I thought of an expedient. I'm very quick-witted about money matters, as you know. So I just drew out of my pocket all the Yankee money the purser had given me—quite a handful of it, I assure you—and I held it out to the cabby so that he might take his fare."

"How much did he take?"

"That's the extraordinary part of it," said the canny Britisher, "he took it all. By a remarkable coincidence I had produced the exact amount."
